A PIG SECRET

Mrs. Lazy Pig shook her snoot which meant that she wasn't always spoiling her children, for some of the other pig mothers had said that she did.

"I make them grab for their own food, and I always try to grab first," she said.
"No, I don't spoll them. I'm a regular pig, grunt, grunt, squeal, squeal."

The others wanted to know why this family of pigs were called the Lazy Pig family.

Mrs. Lazy Pig had been too lazy to explain, but at last Mr. Lazy Pig said, lazily:
"I'll tell them."

So Mrs. Lazy Pig, Lawrence Lazy Pig, Letty Lazy Pig, and four other Lazy Pig children, as well as the oth-er pigs, all listened to Mr. Lazy Pig while he told his story.

"We had the usual family name of Pig," he said, "until a short time ago.
"We were fed and fed, ah, such goodles as we had, and nothing seemed to make us fat.

"That was the great joke over which your mother, Mrs. Lazy Pig, and I, were laughing about a little

One would take it he had led a free and easy life, until gradually the impression formed that there was something about him denoting a sorrow. Possibly it was his eyes.

"It's up to you, Paul," he said in a voice that was singularly soft and pleasing. "I would not try to argue you out of this marriage, but I want to warn you to be sure you are not to warn you to be sure you are not making a mistake—as I did once, I regret to say."
"I am sure, father," the son said, with a note of finality, "I love this girl of the wilderness."

"But your station in life," his fa-ther insisted. "This girl cannot be your social equal. You say she and her mother live in a shanty in the woods near Cedar Creek, where you spent your vacation. They must be

"She's as good and a lot better than most of the girls in my station of life," Paul said. "I did not see her mother, for I never could get Anne to invite me to their home. Your mother was a lovable good girl, but she had not been educated to my ways of thinking. Like this girl you think you love, she was fond of the woods and she wanted me to spend my life in them. I could not reconcile myself to it, because I love the noise and bustle of the city. The silence of the wilds drives me frantic. But I consented to try it and built a habitation in the woods; not a modern structure, as I desired, but a rustic log house to suit your mother's fancy. I could not endure the solitude and finally one night we quarreled; and a terrible quarrel it was! In fairness to your mother, whom I loved in spite of our incompatibility, I must say of our incompatibility, I must say that I was the cause of most of the

"I sneaked out of the cabin with you bundled in a blanket before Ethel, your mother, was awake. I did not return for three months, and when I did, repent-ant, I found nothing but ashes to mark the spot where we had tried to live. And never was I able to get a trace of your mother."

The son was silent several minutes.
"I know you mean well, father," he nally said. "But I love this girl, I am sure of it; and, besides, I love nature, too, so we ought to get along."

So they packed traveling heart.

Two hours of walking brought them to a clearing, where a log house sent a thin wreath of smoke heavenward. It was a small but, but it looked inng, an island in a sea of flowers

"This is the place," Paul announced. "I had never seen it, but I received good directions in my last letter." His face was lighted up expectantly.

From the door of the hut romped a laughing girl, clad in a blue blouse, short khaki skirt and leggings. In the doorway behind her appeared a tall, handsome brunette of middle age.
