DISARMAMENT NO NEARER

Now that the Geneva conference on limitation of armaments has added and the alibis and counteralibis have been for the moment at forgotten, one is forced to the conclusion, after examining all the evidence at hand, that little if anything was accomplished in the matter of prospect of limitation of armaments any rosier in the near future. All nations of course have submitted to the Kellogg peace pact, and they admit, publicly at least, the significant fact of course is that nothing has been done by the nations of Europe to put the theories of "disarmament" of the Kellogg into actual practice.

Europe is still an armed camp and continue to be one so long as the European nation has a suspicion that other countries regard it with suspicious eyes. There are many spots in Europe, in the east and south especially, and overshadowed all of this is the great military armament of Soviet Russia where even men and children have been organized for military purposes.

These reasons nothing constructive could be done in Europe and can be done by the League of Nations or any other human agency.
Nations who won something out of the World War are anxious to and they have a suspicion that nations who lost territory are only waiting for a favorable moment to take their losses. Hence preparation for war continue and would be greater were it not for the existence of the various countries.

The situation was aptly summed up in a newspaper article recently by A. Simonds, the noted American expert of European affairs, as said:

"Europe is not ready to disarm, it is even ready to consider real limitation of armaments. That is the fact does this fact mean that Europe today planning a new war?
What it more clearly means is that Europe is still under the shadow of last war and still fearful of it. No nation is visibly preparing for aggressive war—unless it be that all the great continental powers believe that you must have before you can have limitation of disarmament. And that is that it has security save its military establishment." Despite all the camouflage from Geneva, the best one can get at the whole question of disarmament in Europe, even the more problem of limitation, has been solved. The league has tried and it insoluble in all present conditions.

It will be noted that all of the talk of the suspicion and fear is in Europe. It is a little to see how the International League of Nations can therefore be situated on to the United States though they will of course do so whenever the occasion arises.

By the United States cannot suspicion and discord of moral suasion. We did not and we cannot unmake it.
The League of Nations enter into an effort to maintain the status quo but we could only guarantee offering the force of our armament in any future difficulty might occur in Europe, only no sane American will make such a commitment would be the sacrifice, especially as serious doubt whether any could even then be accomplished.

It seems therefore that the League of Nations is in who are so busy trying to the cause of peace where good is done. When one is suffering with

New Currency Will Appear About July 1

The issuing of our present currency was discontinued April 30th, and after July 1st, it will reappear in new form and dress. The size which will be one-third smaller than the present currency, will be more convenient.
Also, it is claimed that it will have a higher folding endurance which was one of the serious objections of the former issue. Silk fibre segments will be scattered throughout but not in rows as in the past.

New portraits will appear on the face of these new denominations and new embellishments on the back as follows:
$1.00, Washington, Ornate "One"; $2.00, Jefferson, Picture of Monticello; $5.00, Lincoln, Lincoln Memorial; $10.00, Hamilton, U. S. Treasury; $20.00, Jackson, White House; $50.00, Grant, U. S. Capitol; $100.00, Franklin, Independence Hall; $500.00, Mc-Kinley, Ornate "500"; $1,000.00, Cleveland, Ornate "1000"; $5,000.00, Madison, Ornate "5000"; $10,000.00, Chase, Ornate "10,000".

The back of every bill will be printed in green, the face in black, with the treasury seals and serial numbers the following colors: United States Notes—red. Silver certificates—blue. Gold certificates—yellow. Federal Reserve notes—green. National Bank notes—brown.

As will be noted in most cases a similarity exists between the face and the embellishment of each of the denominations of the new series. It will be some time before the circulation of this new series becomes complete, but it appears to have many advantages over its predecessors.

Boosting the Home Town

The town tavern used to be the sole "one-night stand," but since the popularity of automobile touring for weekends and vacations, "Tourists Accommodated" signs dot the landscape wherever the motorist turns his iron steed.

While most women who hang out the shingle consider it an easy way to earn extra money, those who are really successful consider the comfort of their temporary guests. The hostess has a responsibility toward them which is not discharged by the mere renting of a night's lodging.

She owes it to her guests, for their health as well as comfort, to surround them with an atmosphere of genuine cleanliness. "Cleanliness and comfort should be the keynote of the entrance and porch as well as of the whole house," Mrs. Nancy Masterman of the New York State College of Home Economics said recently. "Good beds, clean sheets and bedding, as well as an immaculate bathroom, an abundance of hot water, fresh towels, and a good supply of soap, are necessities."

If she does not give the over-night guest a room as spotless as elbow grease and soap and water can make it, she is failing in hospitality, and what is even more important, she is failing to provide the safeguards of health. The tourist hostess, is moreover, the official representative of the community for the time, and the guest's impression of it will be based to a large extent upon her cleanliness and hospitality.

If you want to boost your town, treat every guest as if he were the Governor of the State. Give him every courtesy —and remember that the one that will make him most appreciative, is cleanliness.

Weekly Health Talk

"At this time of year when outdoor sports are of general interest, a note of warning needs to be sounded to those of middle age or over," said Dr.
Theodore B. Appel, Secretary of Health, today.

"The business man who is fat and forty, or at least forty, suddenly develops a logical enthusiasm for tennis, golf and baseball at this outdoor season. And while such an inclination should be indulged to a reasonable limit, there is such a thing as permitting one's affection for a sport to get the better of one's judgment—then something happens.

"For instance, at a recent tour-ament of some new tennis courts who happened to weigh 175 p and was forty-seven years old, boastfully took his racket in hand 'to lick the kid' who was twenty and a college tennis 'flash.' Well, he didn't do it, but in his attempt he so injured his heart which was entirely unaccustomed to such strenuous demands that he is now flat on his back, broken in body and spirit and, as a matter of cold fact, lucky to be alive.

"The business of imagining at forty or fifty years of age that one is just as young as ever is a mighty poor proposition if one deliberately sets out to prove it after a winter's physical lassitude, by way of suddenly over-exercising or indulging violently in outdoor sports.

"Sunshine and exercise are among the cardinal necessities for all-young and old alike. But sudden exertion, or even protracted exertion that is not so sudden cannot be indulged in safely by the middle-aged who are unaccustomed to it. It is not even good for the college man. This fact is recognized by all trainers who regulate and step-up athletic activities.

"Play golf and other outdoor games if you like them. You should even adopt one, if you don't have a particular fancy. But don't go in for this just-as-young-as-I-used-to-be performance. It can cripple, and sometimes kills."
