the country. They showed him around their new rook alen apartment, eighteen floors above the street, and only pointed out their Frigidaire, in the pantry.

Well, "chuckled our farmer friend, "Mother has a plen full of old fashioned flowerithat the discover made theirs..., and as for the refrigerator, we have a higger reidsing than they have!"

He also mentioned his Delco-Light power system and DL water pump, which give him every other city considere. As he often says himself, his farm is "General occasion from how to hath tak!"

It is perfectly true that General Motors, through its ricus units, offers even more to the farm family than to eity family. By applying methods of automobile processor to home electric lighting and power plants, after pumping systems, and automatic refrigerators, need Motors can make the reliable kind of product a farmer wants, at a price he can afford.
