When partly worn suits are properly mended and renovated, it greatly improves their appearance and makes them last much longer than if this work is neglected. When the back of the coat becomes shiny, sponge in well, lay a cloth over it and iron it dry. Place a piece of thin, firm goods under three cornered tears and tiny breaks when they occur and darn the edger down to it. When the edges of the coat or vest become worn, remove the braid, if there is any, and replace it with new. The back of the vest often wears out before the rest of the garment, and when such is the case remove the old back, press it carefully and use it as a pattern to cut the new one by. You can see how to put it in by examining a new vest. The corners of the pockets should be sewed back in place as soon as they begin to tear

A thorough brushing and cleaning are often necessary, but many cleaning fluids contain strong drugs which are neither necessary nor advisable for this purpose, as they often fade the cloth. The following is a very simple and effective method of cleaning coat collars and removing soiled spots from woolen clothing: Prepare a strong, foamy suds by dissolving pearline in bot water, dip a clean, stiff brush in it and scrub the soiled portion with it. An old toothbrush that has been discarded for tollet purposes is good for this work. Dip it in frequently, changing the suds for a clean one whenever It gets dirty. When the spots are removed, scrub with clean water and hang it up until dry enough to iron. Press it on the wrong side or if that is not convenient cover the right side with a cloth and iron until perfectly dry.

How to Carry & Gun. There are only two directions in which the muzzle of a guncansafely be pointed; these are up or down. A shot fired in air can scarcely injure any one or anything and one discharged into the ground is equally harmless. Therefore, in all the different positions which the gun assumes, see that it is pointed either up or down. Sometimes a man will be seen who carries his gun reversed, holding it by the muzzle while the fore end rests on the shoulder and the stock projects behind. Happily, this practice is not common, for it is extremely dangerous, and many men have been killed by carrying their guns in this way. If a man stumbles or steps in a hole or catches his foot on a root and falls, his gun will very likely be thrown forward with the muzzle directly toward his body and may easily enough be discharged. Sometimes one may see a boy or even a man who will carry the gun across the back of the neck, with one arm over the stock and the other over the barrels, sometimes with the hand resting on the muzzle. This is certain to give a very uncomfortable feeling to any one who happens to be walking by the side of the person carrying his gun in this fashion and opposite the muzzle end. While the danger of a discharge is perhaps not great, it is unpleasant to be walking along with a gun pointed at your neck or head .-Forest and Stream.

They Were Forming Opinions. The club was full. Evening papers were at a premium. An atrocious crime had been that day committed, and every member was reading the account of the tragedy and eagerly discussing the details.

A foot had been found in the East river, a leg in the Hudson and the trunk of a body in the park. Loud were the expressions of horror and disgust. Sudtwo small voices were heard above the modified din discussing the law of human nature which made people lean toward curiosity even in its morbid tendency. The small voices grew louder and the argument stronger, until at last a man in tones of undisguised pity turned to the disputants and said: "So you think we are filled with mor-

What a Patent Costs,

In the course of its progress through the office up to the issue and mailing of a patent, says E. V. Smalley in The Century, an application passes through the hands of 52 persons. An applicant pays $15 to have his claim examined, and in case he is granted a patent an additional fee of $20 is required. Attorneys charge from $25 up, according to the work demanded by the cases and as the applications number about 40,000 yearly it will be seen that there is a good deal of money to be divided among the patent lawyers whose signs cover the faces of the buildings in the vicinity of the patent office.

An inventor is not required to employ an attorney, but probably 99 out of 100 do. In simple cases where there is no interference with prior claims an inventor can almost as well deal direct with the government, but in most cases the knowledge of the lawyer is valuable. He can study other inventions in the same line and knows how to make the claim of his client broad enough to cover all that is new and valuable and not so broad as to be rejected.

The Australian Federation. As had been predicted for several months, the dawn of the twentieth | rice. century sees the birth of a new nation-the federated commonwealth of mania. The six former colonies become states of the new federation, which might be properly termed the United States of Australia. It is significant that in organizing a scheme for national government the Australians followed the American rather than the Canadian plan as to the autonomy of the states and the representation in national legislation. The new nation is practically a republic, paying only nominal sovereignty to Great Britain, the imperial government being restricted to the appointment of an executive, whose duso proscribed as not to interfere materially with the independence of the commonwealth. Except in name it is a sovereign state. If the British empire can welcome what is practically a republic in Australia, why does it so strenuously seek to repress representative government in South Africa? Why should the English people hesitate to accord to the latter a system of government as liberal and as enlightened as to the former?

The Story of a Hoodoo Hat. Mr. John Cooper, one of Dooly county's most prominent citizens, is in the city on his way to Augusta to attend | zuela the old veterans' reunion. When he got off the train, he looked up Captain Warren Moseley, one of the bravest of the boys who went out in the sixties, and they immediately began swapping reminiscences about their army life in Virginia. Finally Mr. Cooper asked Captain Moseley if he remembered the Yankee hat. A reporter who was standing there heard the following story, which both men youch for as being at

On the first day of the battle of Winchester a Yankee was killed so near the line of battle that a soldier of the name of McLendon, Company I, Fourth Georgia, picked up the hat and put it on and wore it. Cyclone Pranks.

A traveler in the west, the Rev. C. T. Brady, says that of all the manifestations of power he ever witnessed, from an earthquake down, a cyclone is the most appalling. The midnight blackness of the funnel, the lightning darting from it in inconceivable fierceness, the strange crackling sound from its bosom, the suddenness of its irresistible attack, its incredibly swift motion, its wild leaping and bounding, like a gigantic beast of prey, the awful roar which follows, all this but feebly characterizes that strange ravager of the plains. He continues:

The cyclone plays odd pranks. have seen two horses lifted in air and carefully deposited, unharmed, in a field about an eighth of a mile away. I have seen chickens and geese picked clean of feathers and yet feebly alive. One house, I remember, had a hole ten feet in diameter cut out of its roof, as if by a circular saw. I have seen the black, whirling cloud lift a building and shake it to pieces, as one shakes a pepper box. One of the worst cyclones I ever knew threw a heavy iron safe about as a child might toss a wooden alphabet block in play.
