Clergymen Collect Their Own Dues. An extraordinary survival from the of stone roads are even greater than those resulting from the use of imcollecting their own dues in kind from proper material. Macadam never in the people may now be seen in full swing tended that a heterogeneous conglom-eration of stones and mud should be dle of October clergymen, attended by youths bearing sacks and baskets, go from village to village, receiving the contributions of their parishioners. No sort of consumable commodity comes amiss, sult in most cases is that the dirt and though money is most favored, and every evening the sack or basket goes back heavily loaded. These contributions are a popular test of respectability, and many a housewife has been known to borrow the whole amount of her offering
