SAND AND THE SUEZ CANAL.

A Plant That Is Preventing Sand

From Filling Up the Channel. One of the problems which have given the management of Suez canal much trouble is that of the sand that blows into it, adding to the dredging expenses. A considerable number of plants have been tried in the effort to fix the sands so that a comparatively small quantity would be blown into the except one, which, it is now believed, will be quite effective in keeping the sand in place.

This large plant is the casuarina tree. It thrives in the southern hemisphere and grows well on the sand banks that skirt the Suez canal, says the New York Sun. It not only survives intense drought, but also excessive humidity, which is important, as the northern part of the canal is subject to inundations at some periods and droughts at other seasons of the year. The roots of this tree penetrate the sand so deeply that they tap subterranean sources of water. Many of the trees planted 25 years ago have thrivthey are now over 40 feet in height. a net increase of $461,151 over the re-All who have studied the problem of sand fixation are certain that this tree will offer important resistance to the showed a decrease, Syracuse, whose movement of sand along the canal. receipts were $23,131, a decrease of Steps are being taken to plant it ex-

Confiscation In Morocco. It is a custom in Morocco that all the property of an official reverts at death to the crown. The logic which leads to such a result is simple, for the government argues that all fortunes thus accumulated consist of moneys illegally retained by the authorities. A governor when appointed is probably possessed of no considerable fortune. When he dies, he may be a millionaire. Whence came his wealth? Squeezed most certainly his authority and therefore amassed only by the prerogatives of the position in which the sultan had placed him. It has never struck the Moorish gov ernment that these great fortunes might more honorably be returned to the people from whom they were sto The result is entire confiscation to the crown, including often such prihave been possessed of before his ap pointment and not seldom, too, of the property of his relatives.

When the mighty fall in Morocco, the crash brings down with them their families, even uncles and cousins and all connected with them, and it is not seldom that the sons of great gov ernors, who have been brought up in the luxury of slaves and horses and retinues of mounted men, have to go begging in the streets.-Blackwood.

Barbers of Spain. The barber's business in Spain is pehis shears on donkeys as well as men for it is an important item in the care of Spanish donkeys that they should be sheared as to the back in order to make a smoother resting place for man or pannier. So, while the master held his animal, one of the barbers plied some enormous clacking shears and littered the ground with mouse colored hair, leaving the beast's belly fur cov ered below a fixed line and for a small additional price executing a raised pat-

The tonsorial profession is an indisticed among all the humbler orders, not to mention toreros and ecclesiastics. But the discomfort to which the barber's customers submit is astonishing. Instead of being pampered, soothed, labored at with confidential respectfulness and lulled into luxurious harmony with himself, as happens in America, a man who courts the razor in Spain has to sit upright in a stiff brass basin full of suds and fitting his throat by means of a curved nick at one side.

A Good Memory. A bad memory in most cases might be more properly described as one rusting from sheer want of use. The fact is our brain cells are always "ready to oblige," but we do not give them sufficient encouragement in their well meant efforts. Naturally the individual may cultivate a memory for certain details more readily than for others, but the general basis of all recollective acts is the same, and there is no department of human mental activity in which the motto that "practice makes perfect" holds more truly than in the science of mnemonics. The view may be expressed, indeed, that we never forget anything presented to our brain cells. When we say we have forgotten, we really mean that we can not find the mental photographic negative whence we can print off a positive reproduction.-London Chronicle

WASHINGTON LETTER

Thousands of dollars in counterfeit notes and plates and dies which have printed millions of dollars of government bonds and greenbacks went up in a great cloud of smoke at the Washington factory a few days ago. From the tall chimney of the gun foundry curls of green smoke poured out and told the 3,000 workmen in the yard that the government was having its annual destruction of property from the bureau of engraving and printing. These plates are cast off, and, instead of melting them for their metal, they are allowed to disappear in the great furnace of the gunshop, while the counterfeit notes of all denominations go up the chimney in smoke.

Once every year the treasury officials in charge of the departments of bonds and notes proceed to the navy yard, whither the dies and plates and green goods are hauled in wagons guarded with the greatest care. The big furnaces are stoked to their fullest blazing capacity, and then the destruc tion begins. The counterfeit money is first burned, then the dies and last the plates. The operations last an hour or two, and when it is over papers are signed for the government, showing that such dies and plates have been destroyed by fire. Any other course might lead to the plates being secured and used by unscrupulous garment is trimmed round the skirt

High Salaries For Experts. Mr. Milton Whitney, chief of the division of soils, department of agriculture, was before the industrial commission the other day. Mr. Whitney said that there is still a tendency among young men reared on farms to leave agricultural pursuits in order to go into industrial or commercial pursuits, but a change is taking place in that respect, brought about by atcultural experts. It is a common thing now, he said, for a tobacco expert to be paid $3,000 or $4,000 a year. These frequently have deficient general eduand allied industries. Such salaries canal. All of these plants have failed are now often paid men who are experts in the manipulation of soils of various kinds and in the management of large truck farms. Recently Japan gave a salary of $6,000 a year to a tobacco expert of the department of agriculture, and still more recently that government offered $5,000 a year for an expert of that kind to go to the island of Formosa. A large beet growing concern had paid $3,000 a year to a man who could successfully treat the alkali soil with which it has been trou-

Increase In Postal Receipts. The monthly balance sheet for the 50 largest postoffices in the United States for February, 1901, shows the well in their new habitat that total receipts to have been $4,011,539, ceipts for February, 1900, or 13.2 per cent. Out of the 50 offices only one $1,150, or 4.7 per cent. For all the other offices the showing was very favorable, especially when it is considered that February is not one of the heavy mail months. Chicago, as usual, leads the list in the amount of increase, its receipts be ing $625,394, an increase of $104,646, or 20 per cent. New York remains at the head in amount of receipts, $825,-717, an increase of $89,880, or 12.2 per cent. Greater New York would of course lead Chicago by many thousands, as Brooklyn shows receipts of $123,805, an increase of $8,362, or 7.2 per cent. Dayton, O., ranks all the cities in percentage of increase. Its receipts for February of this year are $23,001, an increase of $6,429, or 38.7

per cent. Perhaps the slickest game that was ever worked upon members of congress was that used a short time ago by a colored employee of the house who was vate property as his governor may assigned to duty in the members' toilet room. This enterprising individual obtained a roll call which gave the name of every member entitled to vote. He tapped each and every one of them for the uniform sum of $2 and worked his "graft" so successfully that during the last year of a service in that particular place he succeeded, according to accounts, in securing something like $600 from 300 representatives.

Two dollars was not much to lend, and this enterprising African was careful never to strike the same man twice. He probably would have kept the game culiar in that he is called upon to ply suspected that he was being worked and who insisted upon repayment of the loan. CARL SCHOFIELD.

"Save Me From My Friends." This saying is commonly attributed to Voltaire, who at Ferney when pes tered by professions of insincere friendship said, "I pray God to deliver me from my friends; I will defend myself from my enemies.

The thought, however, is attributed by the French to Marshal Villars, while Kant discovers it in an Italian proverb, and a German collection of proverbial wisdom gives it in a modified form. Antigonus, one of the generals of Alexander the Great, offered sacrifice that the gods might protect him from his friends and at the same time declaring he could look after his enemies himself. Churchill has something of the idea in the lines:

Greatly his foes he dreads, but most his friends: He hurts the most who lavishly comp

The present floral touch to the cos tume is mighty pleasing. One likes to see a smart woman thoroughly well chair and meekly hold under his chin a Dakota from the Nebraska district and bunched. SMART DOGS. Dogs living in Chicago get to be as tricky as men. A St. Bernard dog was moving along the sidewalk on Michigan avenue carrying a basket in his mouth filled with parcels of meat. Two bunko dogs saw him, and one ran up behind him and bit the big dog's tail. This was too much of an insult, so Bernard set his basket down and, turning on the dog in his rear, proceeded to chew the stuffing out of him. This was the other dog's opportunity, who grabbed the package of meat and quickly disappeared round a corner. As soon as the rear dog could get away he joined his companion, and a few moments later they were seen enjoying a big square meal together, while Bernard, inconscious of his loss, marched home in a dignified manner, thinking, no doubt, he had taught one dog a lesson.

In Case of Burns. Burns may be ordinary, but they lose none of their smart because of the ease with which they are acquired. Some persons seem to have a perfect genius for getting burned. If they strike a match, it breaks and scorches them, while a visit to the kitchen ends in a burn from the oven or a scald from hot water or steam. Of course the right thing to do with a burn is to get it away from all contact with the air and to do this with all possible haste. The necessary articles for the treatment should be on hand, and they are baking soda-not washing soda, notice-fresh fat of some sort and several thicknesses of cotton cloth.
