The closing of the Nineteenth Centuary has witnessed marvelous strides in the improvement of methods in the world. Formerly the whole dairy business was conducted largely by "rule of thumb." Instead of a vocation requiring a certain apprenticeship it is fast becoming an exact science, in which chemistry and bacteriology play no insignificant part. The increasing interest and attendance at the various dairy schools throughout the United States and Canada and the existence of great co-operative and commercial organizations for the manufacture and sale of dairy products are an indisputable testimony to the achievements of modern science In this great industry the Government has appropriated vast sums of money to help the dairyman in his work, an this is indicative of its importance a factor of the great food problem the world. The territorial lines of the dairy beli have long since been annihilated. A few States and Provinces in the East no longer enjoy the exclusive distinction of being in the dairy sections. In the Dairy building at the Exposition space has already been asked for by Maine and California, Manitoba and Texas. The supposed disadvantages of soil, water, climate and food in portions of North America have largely been eliminated by the skillful dairy the future of the dairy business. Few people have any adequate conception of the present magnitude of the dairy industry. In the United States and Canada there is one dairy cow to every four persons, or 20,000,000 cows. annual milk production is estimated at $550,000,000. Add to this the value of dairy cows, $650,000,000, and we have $1,200,000,000. To this add the investments in dairy appliances, and we reach a grand total of $2,000,000,000 invested in this great industry in the

He Knew Spades. Johnny Jumpuppe—I tell you our preacher knows a thing or two about

Mrs. Jumpuppe-Why, Johnny? Johnny Jumpuppe—You bet he does! He said in his sermon this morning that he always called a spade a spade. -Ohio State Journal.

A man who was raised in the state of Pennsylvania left the old home lected to keep in touch with the old home and his kith and kin and heard nothing from there for 18 years. He then, having made some money, thought he would go back to the old place and see how the folks were getting along. When he got there, he found the old house and barn looking just as he left them, but father, moth er, brother and sister were all sleeping up in the little cemetery on the hill. There are all too many people who
