Little Perry's Awful Threat.

I won't ever live in this house no more, and I'm going away. You may hear here in the dark woods, and muller a roar. Or something nobody ever saw before. Might come and eat me up, and then I let you, when my pa has no little boy he'll be Perry he punished me.

And I'm going to starve and not ever eat anything in this world. And when I'm up with God and get wings and can look at my pa and he comes home and see my coat in the hall and looks all around everywhere and I ain't there. The hell he'll be wry he punished me.

And when I'm far away, and nearly starved and can hardly stand they might be a big, bad man come along and say:

He'd take me off to some strange land, and then when the people told my pa how cruel he was, I let him be by the saddest person you ever saw.

And when they had no little boy no more, mamma would cry all day, and when no little boy would open the door for at night and say:

"Hello!" I let him be by the saddest yet.

And I'll stay this time, but he'll be a better person next time.

MEDICAL NOTES.

Dr. LAS CASAS of Rio Janeiro says he has discovered a cure for tuberculosis by injecting patients with a vegetable extract.

For the first time in 18 years a new kind of ether has been discovered. The new compound is yellowish or orange in tint, is made from kresol or thourite brombenzine.

It has been found that the blood corpuscles are greatly increased when a person from a low altitude reaches a higher one, but this effect, with the powerful stimulus involved, is only transitory.

The apple is an excellent brain food, because it has more phosphoric acid in easily digested shape than other fruits. It excites the action of the liver, promotes sound and healthy sleep and thoroughly disinfects the mouth.

Cabbage, cauliflower, brussels sprouts and broccoli are cooling, nutritive, laxative and purifying to the blood and all so act as tonics, but should not be eaten too freely by delicate persons. Celery is good for rheumatic and gouty persons.

Feeding the Infant.

In modifying milk for babies water is usually the element in the milk, even when diluted with water, will sometimes form tough curds in the stomach, and it often becomes necessary to use something else. Bottles should be thoroughly washed in hot soap and water and boiled once a day; also thoroughly scalded just before filling with the food—MARIANNA Wheeler in Harger's Health.

Himself to Blame.

In one of Bret Harte's clever parodies of the French he told a story in words something like these: Three gamblers were playing in the streets of Paris, a priest passed by. "There goes a priest," cried one; "look out for your eyes and your chickens!" Then the priest, hearing the words, knelt down and prayed for the boys. But upon reflection he was convinced that it was not the fault of the boys, but of their parents. He knelt down the second time and prayed for the boys' parents. On another thought he saw that it was not the fault of the boys' parents, but of society. He knelt down again and prayed for society. As he rose from his prayer he heard a voice say: "My friend, who is society? You and I are society." So he knelt down the last time and prayed for himself.

Thiers' Fulfilled Prophecy.

In January, 1871, M. Thiers made the following remarkable prophecy: "When England is in conflict with a foreign power Europe will see her colonies rally and co-operate with her. Without the slightest expense to her, they will equip their soldiers, they will only ambition being to show their close union with her and to demonstrate that their strength and energy are at her disposal. Just as her resources are at their disposal, I predict this in spite of your smile of incredulity and although perhaps none of us will live to witness it."—United Australia.

AFTER THE BATTLE.

A VETERAN'S STORY OF A TASSELLED TURKISH FEZ.

The Grievous Incident in Which He Participated at the Second Battle of Manassas—A Brave Boy and His Dying Request.

"Whenever I see a tasseled Turkish fez," said a Confederate veteran whose attention had been attracted by a smoking cap of that pattern in a Canal street window, "I am reminded of the curious and rather grievous incident of my campaigning days. It was on the morning after the second battle of Manassas," he continued in response to a request for the story, "and several of us from my company had gone over to the field in the hope of picking up a few things that we badly needed and for which the dead had no further use—waterproofs, for instance, and sound cantowigs."

"During the previous day's engagement you may remember that a regiment of freshly recruited New York zouaves held the crest of a hill and were charged and almost annihilated by Hood's brigade. They were moved down like ripe grain and fell so thickly that their corpses literally carpeted the earth. I dare say it was awful a slaughter, considering the number engaged, as occurred anywhere in the course of the war."

"Well, we hadn't gone very far when we came to this hill and began to get among the dead men. The poor fellows had been mustered into service less than a week before, and they were said to be the most gorgeously uniformed military troop ever organized. They wore scarlet Turkish trousers, blue jackets embroidered with gold bullion braid and purple fringes with long pendant tassels.

"Being just from the outfields, all this finery was perfectly fresh and new, and somehow or other it added to the ghastliness of the spectacle on the hillsides. The corpses were in all sorts of strange postures, and their fantastic costumes gave them an air of horrible grotesqueness that I could begin to describe in words. And when I'm up with God and get wings and can look at my pa and he comes home and see my coat in the hall and looks all around everywhere and I ain't there. The hell he'll be wry he punished me.

"I took his canteen and hurried down to a branch at the foot of the hill, where the first thing I saw, by the way, was the corpse of a zouave floating in a pool. I went up the stream far enough to get out of the horrible death zone, filled the canteen with pure water and was soon back at the boy's side. I gave him a drink, and he thanked me. 'Is there nothing else I can do?' I asked awkwardly, because I knew our company was under early marching orders that morning and that it would be impossible for me to linger much longer. 'Nothing at all, thank you,' he replied. 'No message to anybody?' 'No; nothing, thank you.'"

"I turned away most reluctantly and had gone only a few yards when I heard his thin voice calling me back. 'Excuse me,' he said, 'but I want you to accept this as a present,' and he handed me his fine purple fez. 'No, no,' I exclaimed, greatly embarrassed; 'I can't take anything of the kind when I left him. I kept the fez a long time,' added the veteran, 'but it was finally lost, with other odds and ends, in the general confusion following the war. I'd give some money for it today.'—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The Good Effects of Apple Eating.

The apple is such a common fruit that few are familiar with its remarkable efficiency. Everybody ought to know about the very best thing they do to do is to eat apples just before retiring for the night. The apple is an excellent brain food, because it has more phosphoric acid in easily digested shape than any other vegetable known. It excites the action of the liver, promotes sound and healthy sleep and thoroughly disinfects the mouth. That is not all. The apple agglutinates the surplus acids of the stomach, helps the kidney secretions and is one of the best preventives known of diseases of the throat.—Journal of Agriculture.

How to Scovee New Cabbage.

For most appetites cabbage can be improved by parboiling it in two waters before the final boiling in order to remove some of the flavor. It is a good idea to cut a small piece of soda in the first water. New cabbages are especially delicious if cut into large pieces, cooked in this manner and served with a rich cream sauce.

Colored tissue paper is better than white for wrapping up toys and ribbons to be laid away so that they will not be ruined by white particles to turn yellow.

Infallible for Jaundice, Biliousness, Malaria, Fever and Ague and all liver and stomach troubles. Gentle but effective. Only 25c at Paul's and Co's, drug store.

COLORADO HIGHWAYS.

How Improved Roads Would Benefit the State.

Discussing the work now being done by the National Good Roads association, the Denver Republican says: "That the invention of the bicycle would result in a movement among the members of the league by his efforts of members of the league by his efforts in behalf of good roads. At the expense of the association he sends a crew of road builders to different parts of the country to construct a mile or half a mile of sample road to show the people what may be accomplished and to illustrate the advantages of maintaining highways of that kind. It is expected that in course of time his crew will reach Denver and that a strip of good road will be laid from the city out into the country. When built, it will be firm and substantial, and it will be available as part of any projected highway that the public may intend at some later date to construct. Too much praise could hardly be given an association which enables this to be done."

"Another name that strikes you is the Cotton Belt. This is how the St. Louis will be available as part of any projected highway that the public may intend at some later date to construct. Too much praise could hardly be given an association which enables this to be done."

"Down in Texas and the neighboring certain southwestern states, cutting of the railroads without gloves when it comes to giving names. A favorite plan is to take the principal initials of a road and spell them out. Being a native of the southwest, I know the names of the roads in Texas. The New York capitalists who built another road thought that Missouri, Kansas and Texas would be a good name, but the Texas people refused it to Katy."

LOWA ROADS IN SPRING.

Mad Causes Road Inconvenience and Loss to Farmers.

Business in most of the country towns in Iowa during this spring has been at a standstill on account of the almost unprecedented bad condition of the roads. Not since the great flood in the course of 1892 has there been so much water in Iowa as there is this spring. It is a serious and dangerous undertaking for a farmer to start to town with an empty wagon, and to haul a load is out of the question. The other go on horseback or on foot when it is absolutely necessary to go to the postoffice or on some other errand to the nearest town.

LONDON COSTERS.

Itinerant Street Vendors Who Make Fairly Good Incomes.

It is difficult, if not impossible, to calculate with any degree of accuracy the number of costers who are engaged in the course of a year by the costers, but interesting figures may be supplied by placing on record the gross receipts of some street traders.

The Chinese Roads.

The Chinese road is private property, and is taken from somebody's land. This does much against the will of the owner, since he not only loses the use of it, but also still has to pay taxes on it.

Develop the Country.

I am heartily in sympathy with the good roads movement. I do not know of anything that will more materially benefit the country. Good roads will create a base of supplies for the towns and cities. They will reduce the cost of marketing the produce of the farm and thus turn thousands of dollars into the channels of trade every year that are now spent for wear and tear of teams and vehicles, and the loss of time in getting to and from market. By reducing the cost of marketing they will enable the farmers to diversify their crops, thus developing the country along all lines. No country can be thoroughly prosperous without good public highways.—Rev. J. B. Lawrence.

USEFUL CLUBS FOR WOMEN.

THE members of the clubs I have in mind never quarrel, so far as they have been heard from, and they are almost exclusively clubwomen of whom this can be said. The reason is they are working for the beautifying and improving of the localities in which they live and do not get themselves elected presidents. The clubs I mean are the rural improvement societies among women. The old style rustic village and railway station were blisters on the face of the earth. The horror of them comes over me now as I sit and write this. I see still the piles of ashes, the foul remnants of the tobacco habit, the desolate, weed grown grounds, the vacant lots covered with things unspeakable. It was a credit to the young women and men of such a town that they got away from it as soon as they could. In that old style town children ran riot, and brutal drivers beat horses at will. These are the things the women's village improvement societies are changing. Let us take one as an example in an eastern state. Here are some of the things that club has done. It has brought about that vacant lots are no longer to be used as dumping grounds for rubbish and disease breeding debris. It has made the railway station in particular as clean and pret-

NAMES OF OUR RAILROADS.

Curious Changes in Titles Brought About by the Public.

The fashion of naming railroads has changed considerably in the last quarter of a century. The three and four word titles have about gone out of style, and one word names succeed them. For instance, the Santa Fe is no longer referred to as the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe, although this is the corporation title. The old Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railway pattern has been discarded by the public decree, and the title Rock Island has replaced the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific.
