The medico told his assistant that death would have been immediate if the man had made the cut in a way which he illustrated, and he was startled two days later to learn that his assistant had attempted to commit suicide by lacerating himself in that very manner. The man admitted that he had never thought of suicide until the day of the examination and the doctor's remark .-London Globe.

ANTIQUE FIENDS.

Women Who Spend Their Time and Money Unearthing Old Relics. The antique craze is like a malignant fever-when it seizes a woman, she rarely gets over it. There are three stages-the first when she simply admires the collections of her friends, the second when she begins to haunt auctions and "read up." the third when she spares neither time nor money to obtain some broken down treasure and when if fair means fail she will not hesitate even at foul ones. This sounds dreadful, I know, but I have in mind a perfectly respectable woman of my acuaintance who was so fascinated by a brass knocker on the door of an unoccupied farmhouse that she crept there in the dead of night and—well, there is no other word for it-stole it. Women in the second stage fall easy victims to the so called antique dealers. The profits of these people must be enormous, for certainly the expenses cost much to bury modern colonial furniture until the worms and the mold have done their artistic work; neither are ovens or acids particularly expenadays I hear the path of the antique It cured my cough and greatly benedealer is made even more easy. One of Sothern's Jokes. That inveterate joker, Sothern the actor, had made an appointment with Toole, the comedian, to dine at a weli known London restaurant. The hour of meeting was fixed and Sothern arrived some few minutes before the appointed time. An elderly gentleman was dining at a table at some little distance from that prepared for the two actors. He was reading a newspaper which he had comfortably arranged before him as he was eating his dinner. Sothern walked up to him and striking him a smart blow between the shoulders said:

"Hello, old fellow! Who would have thought of seeing you here? I thought you never"— The assaulted diner turned around angrily, when Sothern exclaimed: "I beg you a thousand pardons, sir. I thought you were an old friend of mine -a family man whom I never expected to see here. I hope you will pardon me."

Something Which He Learned. A soft answer has not only the effect of turning away wrath. It may serve to avenge an injury. Years ago the Rev. J. H. Jones was making a visit in Bos ton and attended a biweekly conference at Divinity hall. Just at that time he was out of sorts with the east, and his address reflected an acrid mood. Especially did he insist that "They didn't know everything down in Judee or even in Cambridge." When he sat down, there was a momentary hush, and then the late Dean Everett slowly rose. He began in his usual soft and hesitating tone, "There are doubtless a great many things which Mr. Jones knows and we do not know, but there are also a few things which we know and he does not." each man held his breath, for the dean

Tipping the Butcher.

Did you ever buy your own steaks and get the worst in the shop nearly every time? An old friend has had that misfortune, and he is always willing to pay two or three cents more a pound than any other customer. Having listened calmly to his tale of woe, I inquired if he had acquired the practice of tipping the butcher. Tip-ping the butcher? No! He thought it was a sufficient tip to offer the two or three cents more a pound. "That offer," I tried to explain, "goes to the proprietor direct, or his block man thinks you are trying to make a thief of him by inducing him to hold out for himself the extra price. It will never work.
