SALTED BUTTER.

Why It Keeps Better Than Butter That Is Fresh.

Secretaries.

Why does salt butter keep better than fresh butter? We must first real- into them ize that the bacterial population of a moderate sized pat of butter may be reckoned by millions, that a tiny lump only large enough to go into a thimbl nearly 48,000,000, that, in fact, in consuming a slice of bread and butter you may unconsciously be assimilating individual lives exceeding in number those of the whole of Europe. Thus the urgency for keeping these hordes in check and hence the efforts which are made, first, to set up effectual barriers to their ingress by taking proper pre cautions in the production of milk and, second, in the conduct of the processe involved in the manufacture and distribution of the finished article.

Included in these processes is the addition of salt in such quantities as to fustify the butter being known as salt the object of extending the keeping powers of the butter or, in other words to suppress to a large extent the activi ties of the butter bacteria. That salt does act in this manner is shown by the fact that in butter thus treated : very large reduction in the number of micro-organisms present is effected There can be little doubt, therefore that the common butter microbes de not by any means regard salt as their elixir of life.

In England boracic acid is said to be extensively used in butter as a preserv ative or antiseptic agent, while in the United States a recent public health document states that none was report ed to have been found in the sample of butter examined. This is probably due to the fact that in America there exists a strong prejudice in favor of salt butter, whereas in England the us of salt butter is the exception and not the rule. Hence in America salt can be used as a preservative instead of the boracic acid employed for that purpose in England.

The densely populated condition of butter above referred to is not to be wondered at if we realize that the raw material in the shape of milk may con tein from 500,000 to as many as 169, 000,000 of bacteria in a few drops. Longman's Magazine.

Chinese Roads.

The Chinese road is private property, a strip taken from somebody's land This is done much against the will of the owner, since he not only loses the use of it, but also still has to pay taxes

One consequence is that it is wide enough for only one vehicle, and carts can pass one another only by trespass ing on the cultivated land. To preven this the farmers dig deep ditches by the roadside. As the surface wear away and the dust blows off it gradu ally grows lower, and after awhile it becomes a drain for the surrounding fields. A current forms in the rainy season, which still further hollows it out, and thus has arisen the proverb that a road a thousand years old becomes a river.

I am heartily in sympathy with the good roads movement. I do not know of anything that will more materially benefit the country. Good roads will create a base of supplies for the towns and cities. They will reduce the cos of marketing the produce of the farm and thus turn thousands of dollars into the channels of trade every year that are now spent for wear and tear of teams and vehicles, and the loss of time in getting to and from market. By reducing the cost of marketing they will enable the farmers to diversify their crops, thus developing the coun try along all lines. A COUNTRY ROAD.

A dusty, stony way, whose bord'ring sod. Is thick with blackberries and goldenrod; Abrupt, bare hills on one side looking down, O'er which thick woods and marble ledges lean. A little farther, where the road descends,

Watching the west, whose glory seemed to flood

Some Startling Figures Charles T. Harrison, United States special agent on road work, said recently: As a result of 10,000 inquiries sent out by our office in 1895, figures have been compiled that are startling in their conclusions. The most conservative estimates based upon these figures show that the total of the farm and for est products hauled over the country roads amounts to over 300,000,000 tons and that the average cost of transporting it is $3 a ton, or a total annual cost can State Committee to announce that for transportation of nearly $950,000,the Republicans of Pennsylvania, by 000. Advice From the Box.

On one occasion in the fifties an ama teur dramatic performance was given in San Francisco for the benefit of some deserving charity. Among the performers was the late Hugh Farrar McDermott, the poet, and in a box was piece, and the acting was so bad that what should have been a tragedy became a farce. In the last act McDer mott dropped his sword and, stooping awkwardly, picked it up. There was a titter in the audience, which increased as the luckless performer asked, "What shall I do with this envenomed blade? From the banker's box came in a queer stage whisper, "Stab yourself, Hugh, and be done with it!"-Frank Testimonials. Leslie's Monthly.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

Kidney trouble causes quick or unsteady heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble, because the heart is over-working in pumping thick, kidney-poisoned blood through veins and arteries. The selection, planting and care of all trees in the streets of Washington are under the direction of the District authorities. Individual preferences or private enterprises are not allowed to regulate this improvement, as is generally done in other cities. Moreover, the city has its own nursery, where seeds planted from its own trees grow and supply all the needed varieties. In 1871, during the era of great municinal improvements. Governor A. R. Shepherd appointed a commission to regulate this important matter, and its efforts have brought about the beauty and uniformity of shade existing in Washington today.

A TRUTHFUL NARRATIVE OF CANING TENACITY AND SAGACITY.

As the Story of the Feat Was Related by a Preacher Who Was a Party to the Incident No Further Testimon; Is Necessary.

A certain Nashville statesman is about one of the best story tellers in Tennessee, and his repertoire includes a lot of good ones, fish and otherwise. On the truthfulness of some he will stake his reputation for veracity, but he tells one which he always prefixes with the statement that it was told him by a minister of the gospel. Dr. Bard well, who will be remembered here by the older inhabitants as the assistant of Dr. Edgar of revered memory, who was pastor of the First Presbyterian church during the latter years of Gen eral Andrew Jackson's life and attend ed the old hero in his last illness. The story teller said:

"Dr. Bardwell used to visit my fa ther's house when I was a boy, and the story I am about to tell you was related to me on the occasion of one of these visits. We were out on the veranda smoking one evening after supper. The doctor was fond of dogs and was a pretty good sportsman and naturally the conversation turned on this subject

He then took out a silver half dollar and, walking some distance into the woods raised up a large rock and put the money under it. We then resumed our journey, and when probably half a mile away my friend called his dog and told him to go back and get the money.

"'The dog, without the least hesita tion, started back on a run, and, my friend explained, as the rock was heavy the dog would be unable to turn it over, so would have to scratch under it to reach the piece of money, and he would not probably get home before we reached there, it then being about three miles farther on to his house. " 'He put the money in his pocket, and the dog followed him home. The dog appeared to be friendly, and the man petted him and gave him his supper. At night when the family retired the dog was put on the outside, but he kept up such a racket that no one could sleep on the place, and when the man opened the door to drive the dog off he rushed into his bedroom and at once became very quiet, lying down near the foot of the bed, where he slept all night.
