THE BROILER.

A Branch of the Poultry Business That Can Be Made to Pay.

In entering the broller business the most important requirement is good incubators, as without them failure is sure. To accompany the incubator one should have first class brooders, and of these the indoor is best, because you can easily attach a regulator, thereby guarding against smothering your chicks. If you are a good judge of the amount of heat a lamp will throw out when lit at night and left till morning, you can with safety use outdoor brooders. Where many chicks are hatched it is best to adopt the compartment brooder, heated by steam.

In raising broilers they must have warm, dry quarters. They must be fed little and often a variety of food and with lots of fresh, clean water. Their food should contain lots of oil. Skimmilk is splendid. My broilers cost from 20 to 40 cents a pair to raise and when selling for 80 cents to $1.20 a pair I think it is a paying business. I give my chickens six square inches each in the brooders and 18 square inches each in the yards. The brooder is raked out every morning while the chicks are eating, and the yards are swept with a wire broom every night after they go to bed. In this manner they are not frightened while the work is going on. When I first began to raise broilers, I almost gave it up in disgust. It seemed I could not raise them successfully. When I looked into the matter, I found they were crowded and that the pens were not cleaned as they should be. Matters were changed, and to my astonishment my broilers then paid me better than my layers. Constant attention brings success. I would rather go without one of my meals every day than see my broilers go hungry, while I take pleasure in seeing my layers on the hungry side at all times. As for sickness, it comes only a few times a year. The most common ailgestion." - Ci.

SAID BY THE LITTLE ONES.

Some Bright Things Culled From the Talk of Youngsters.

Little Catharine, aged 21/2 years, was one day examining her chubby hands and, turning to her mother, said: "Mam-deal of pain through the top of my ma, I's dot to have some new hands. Mine are full of holes.

A north side schoolboy, having good them a great while, they cured me and naturedly helped a classmate with a dif-ficult mathematical problem, was asked by the teacher, "Why do you work his lesson for him?" "To lessen his work," was the curt reply.

Little 6-year-old Harry, while reading a chapter of Genesis, paused and asked his mother if people in those days used to do sums on the ground. He had been reading the passage which says, "And the sons of men multiplied upon the face of the earth."

Johnny, aged 4, went into a nearby grocery and asked for a box of canary seed. "Is it for your mother?" asked the grocer. "No, of course not," replied the little fellow. "It's for the bird."

"What shall I say next?" asked small Harry, who was writing a letter to his grandmother. "Well," replied his 4-year-old sister, "you might tell her that the baby is now occupying my old shoes."

Little Ruth was visiting in the coun try, and one day she came running to the house with an egg in her hand. "Oh, randma," she exclaimed, "here's an egg got out of a nest just as an old hen vas getting in. Isn't it lucky I saw, it before she sat down on it?"

"Oh, mamma," exclaimed small Tom see how fat Aunt Ella has grown?" "Yes, dear," said his mother, "but it isn't polite to say 'fat,' You should say polite to say 'fat.' You should sa stout.'"
