MENDING EIGHT SOCKS, $7. Owner Had It Done In Germany and

A German resident of Chicago whose name has not been made public recent ly returned from Germany, bringing with him six pairs of socks which his old mother had made for him. To escape payment of duty on them he wore them all when he landed. In the course of time they began to wear out at the toes. Then he bundled four pairs into a package and sent them to Germany for his mother to mend, says the New York World. They were returned by parcel post, and the custom house officials at New York opened the package and assessed duty on them. The owner protested against the charges, but paid the duty pending a hearing of his protest. As it stands he is out $7 by the transaction.

A Little Too Severe a Test.

Charles Bell of Albion, Mich., became so confirmed a believer in the efficacy of faith that he believed himself able to take poison without any ill effects. So he took 24 grains of morphine the other day. The next morning he appeared sick, but triumphant, and told of his feat. He said he had vomited up the morphine and felt no serious effects from taking it.

The success of this test probably encouraged him to go further with his experiments, for he bought a revolver and declared his intention of proving that he could shoot himself without fatal results. He then went to the front vard of his house and, placing the revolver to his temple, fired. Death was instantaneous.

The Lemon. The lemon contains various acids, citric acid among them, with citrate of potash, and these acids oxidize in the blood into carbonates of potash and carbonic acid. As scurvy is believed to be due to a lack of potash salts in the blood, we see how substances like lemons, potatoes and fresh vegetables generally act as preventives of the ailment. Also in rheumatism, in which it is desirable to maintain the alkaline character of the blood, lemons are of service. Beyond this I do not think anybody can vaunt the properties of the fruit. A healthy person has no more need of lemons than of, say, tea, for his ordinary food will supply him with all that is necessary for the maintenance of a sound body. People who talk about lemons as "good for the liver," and so forth, found their belief rather on faith than on knowledge. London Chronicle.

KIPLING.

Kipling's last poem is just retribution on England for going to war in South Africa.—Toledo Blade. If Ruddy Kipling keeps up the stroke himself in the class with Alfred Austin.-St. Louis Republic. When last sighted, Mr. Kipling's muse was blind of one eye, lame in both feet, crippled in her writing arm and completely exhausted in what has facetiously been called the think tank.

-Philadelphia Inquirer. In his new poem, "The Lesson." Mr. Kipling has shown at least that he is able to write a political pamphlet in of the world. Few, however, exceed in sex, England The Telegraphy The Telegraphy T ish in giving a careful. own experiences states that his house stands on a hill 288 feet above sea John Kilgus, Wm. > What the Eye Tells. Eyes are very treacherous, and those who meddle in amorous matters should know all about them.

When the upper lid covers half or more of the pupil, the indication is of cool deliberation. An eye the upper lid of which passes horizontally across the pupil indicates mental ability. Unsteady eyes, rapidly jerking from side to side, are frequently indicative of an A unsettled mind. It is said that the TH prevailing color of eyes among the patients of lunatic asylums are brown weak brows and long, concave lashes are indicative of a weak constitution. Eves that are wide apart are said to indicate great intelligence and a tenacious memory. Eyes of which the whole iris is visible belong to erratic persons, even with a tendency toward insanity. Wide open, staring eyes in weak countenances indicate jealousy.
