The only real safeguard against small-pox is vaccination and that vaccination is necessary is proved by the prevalence of small-pox the country over. People who handle money, or receive mail are not free from the danger of being infected with the germs of small-pox. The processes of fumigation are not absolute and neither are they so positive that the assurance of safety can be entertained. In vaccination is found practical immunity from the dangers which threaten and at the present juncture the safety of the public depends entirely upon the thoroughness with which the people vaccinate. Small-pox is one of those contagious diseases that spread with rapidity once it does get going and everybody should be concerned in an effort to stop the onward march of a dreaded malady which is no respecter of persons—unless those persons have been vaccinated. If today every person within a radius of five hundred miles were vaccinated, three weeks from today there would be no cases of small-pox.

Something That Will Do You Good. We know of no way in which you can be so well served as by a doctor than to tell them of something that will be of real good to them. For this reason we want to acquaint them with what we consider one of the very best remedies on the market for coughs, colds, and that alarming complaint, croup. We refer to Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. We have used it with such good results in our family so long that it has become a household necessity. By its prompt use we haven't any doubt but that it has time and again prevented croup. The testimony is given upon our own experience, and we suggest that our readers, especially those who have small children, always keep it in their homes as a safeguard against croup.—GOSWELL'S Messenger. Planning to Observe Lent. Lent begins on February 12, one week from tomorrow, and Roman Catholics of the city are preparing to observe it in a spirit of penitence, renouncing pleasure and partaking of humble living during the holy season.

The observance of this special church season, which is of more than ordinary significance, will be along the following lines: All the week days of Lent are days of fasting on one meal with a moderate collation in the evening. All the days of Lent are of abstinence from meat.

By dispensation, however, the use of meat is allowed without restriction on Sundays, and once a week on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays except on the Saturday of Lent week and the Saturday of Holy week.

The use of eggs, butter and cheese, at the collation, provided the quantity prescribed by the fast be complied with, is by general custom tolerated in this country. Lard and dripping may be used in preparing fish and vegetables.

Strict observance of Lent along all these lines cannot be required of everyone for obvious reasons, and the following persons are exempt from the obligation of fasting. Young persons under twenty-one years of age, the aged, the sick, the nursing women, those who are obliged to do hard labor, and all who through weakness cannot fast without prejudice to their health.

Persons dispensed from the obligation of fasting on account of tender or advanced age, or hard labor are not bound by the restrictions of using meat only at one meal on days on which it is enjoined by dispensation.

The Episcopals of Danville are also preparing to observe the Lenten season with services and fasting.

SAMUEL GULICK ON THE STAND

Bears Up Well as He Tells the Story of His Son's Unnatural Crime.

The trial of John Gulick for the murder of his mother and brother began yesterday afternoon. The jury was selected at a session of court held Tuesday evening. The aged father of the murderer, the only eye witness of the awful tragedy, was placed upon the stand about two o'clock. The fatherly old man bowed under the weight of years and sorrow was a pitiful object. Yet he stood the ordeal remarkably well and told the story of the double murder, differing in no respects from his testimony before the coroner and as printed in THE NEWS at the time.

The trial of Jacob Gerhardt for the murder of his wife is not yet completed. The taking of testimony was temporarily suspended yesterday at noon for the two fold purpose of giving some very important witnesses time to arrive and to enable Samuel Gulick to testify, who is likely to break down at any time.

James Scarlet, Esq., of this city, is leading attorney for Gerhardt.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know it.

How To Find Out. Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What To Do. There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scaling pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50c and $1.00 sizes. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail.

To the end that the education and morals of the school children of the city may be safeguarded, the very best and most capable men should be elected to the school board. A man who seeks election with a mercenary motive in view—who would become a school director for any other purpose than to secure the interests of the taxpayers and secure for the public schools the greatest educational and moral benefits is a dangerous man to elect. Let the school directors be chosen from the most honest and capable of the candidates who seek election.

A FRIEND'S ADVICE. Will Often Help you Greatly. Read What a Danville Citizen says.

You may hesitate to listen to the advice of strangers, but the testimony of a friend or resident of Danville is worth your most careful attention. It is an easy matter to investigate such proof as this. The evidence must be convincing. Read the following: Mrs. Edward H. Lutzer of 11 Church street, says: "I suffered so much from pain in my back that I could not sleep in my bed. There is no sense in saying that I read about Doan's Kidney Pills and in the statements of those who had been cured the symptoms were so much like mine that my husband procured a box for me. They did me more good than any medicine I ever tried. No longer had any backache and was free from any embarrassment caused from the secretions. I can honestly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to others suffering as I did."

One of the largest and best popular priced companies on the road will be at the Opera House commencing Thursday evening February 6th. The Huntley-Harris Stock company. This is their fourth season on the road, and they have gained an enviable reputation by giving the popular priced patrons of the theatre something new and a novelty, presenting the largest scenic plays with all care and detail, a car-load of special scenery, effects, lights, etc.

Among the important events of the theatrical season will be the appearance of Mr. Robert Mantell and an unusually strong company in a grand scenic production of "Richelieu." He will be seen here Monday night.

ROBERT B. MANTELL as "Cardinal Richelieu"

It is with no small degree of pleasure that the management announces for next week what will undoubtedly prove the society event of the season, viz: the coming of Mr. Robert B. Mantell, supported by what is reported to be the most excellent company of Shakespearean artists on the American stage. For his first season, Mr. Mantell has prepared an elaborate repertoire of plays, which for scenic perfection it has by the press elsewhere has never been equalled. In "Richelieu," which is featured among the plays this season, he has received an ovation all along the line.

"More haste, less speed," and "hasten slowly," are proverbs born of experience that some things can be hurried with. That is especially true of eating. The railway lunch habit, "five minutes for refreshments," is a habit most disastrous to the health. You may hurry your eating, but you can't hurry your digestion, and the neglect to allow proper time for this important function is the beginning of sorrow to many a busy man. When the signs are given in the head aches, when there are sour or bitter risings, undue fullness after eating, hot flushes, irritability, nervous irascibility, cold extremities, and other annoying symptoms be sure the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition have "broken down." Nothing will re-establish them in active healthy operation so quickly as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It strengthens the stomach, nourishes the nerves, purifies the blood, and builds up the body. It is a strictly temperance medicine containing no alcohol or other intoxicant.

Given away. Dr. Pierce's great work, The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expenses of mailing. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the papered book or 31 stamps for cloth binding, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

How to Make Lemon Jelly. Lemon jelly may be made without gelatin, although the common method requires the gelatin. For the other, the uncommon sort, there is required one egg, one cupful of sugar, the grated rind and the juice of one lemon and two tablespoonfuls of water. This mixture should be cooked as a soft custard is cooked.

How to Make Dumplings. Sift a cup of flour with a heaping teaspoonful of baking powder and a half teaspoonful of salt. Into this work two teaspoonfuls of shortening and a cupful of cold water. Mix to a soft paste, roll out, cut into squares and drop these into the boiling gravy of the stew. Boil for ten minutes before dishing.

MARRIED AT RAILROAD SPEED

Traveling westward on the C. B. and Q. railway and finding the smoking car crowded, I went into the baggage car. I was puffing quietly when I was startled by a farmer sitting on a trunk exclaiming: "No. 1401, by thunder!"

The baggage man looked at him inquiringly. "An' you're the baggage man too?" "Of course I'm the baggage man."

"You was a rumm' at this car when we had a weddin' an' a weddin' tower all to one," replied the farmer. "You don't mean it?" "I do mean it, an' I never see any one connected with that little affair that I don't shiver, an' then I want to lug 'em. I have had some close shaves in my life, an' that was the closest I ever had. If it hadn't been for that fellow that first helped us out 'n' then prevented my gettin' a bullet through my head, I'd 'n' been slumberin' all these years in our buryin' ground."

"You refer to the time when the gun went off," said the baggage man. "I confess I was as much frightened as you were. To tell the truth, after I heard the report I expected to see you fall and was surprised when you didn't."

"My friends," I said, offering both a Havana cigar, "I never can bear to see people enjoying a good thing without sharing in the amusement. Tell me the story."

"You see, stranger, An Eliza Perkins 'n' me, bein' bent on gittin hitched, an' me not bein' acceptable to the ole man, we lighted out one mornin' from her home in her paw's buggy, calculatin' to ketch the train for Quincy that stopped at our station at 5:35.

"Waal, we was a-drivin' silentlike outen the gate when you goes a winder, an' ole Perkins' head stuck out. I give the mare a cut, an' we went lickety split down the road. We had three miles to make to the station an' I took my minutes to do it in. But it didn't make no difference as to our time. It was the time of the train an' the time the ole man would make a-chasin' us, fer we knowed he'd follow with his gun. We made the station in fifteen minutes, but as we wasn't on a private we couldn't see whether the train was a-comin' or not. Fact was the track run around the base of a hill, an' we couldn't even hear the engine a-puffin'."

"You bet that was a long five minutes, An Eliza up on the platform a-lookin' fur her dad, me with my ear to the ground on the rails a-listenin' fur the train."

"He's a-comin'!" cried An Eliza, a-turain' pale. "So's the train," said I, a-shakin' with excitement, a-bearin' the rattlin' of the wagon an' the click of the rails on the ground.

"When the train drawed up, we got in ter the baggage car, to be furtherest from the ole man. When we moved on, I put my head outen the door, an' there was a hangin' on to the rail of the last car."

"Game up!" I said, lugubrous. "Not a bit," said a Chicago drummer who had followed us inter the car. "Wonder of there's a parson aboard?"

"There's nothin' to see but a comin' through the train mighty fast."

"I'll play parson myself," said the drummer, an' whippin' off his cravat, he tied a white handkerchief around his neck, buttoned up his coat, borrowed a pair of spectacles an' told us to stand up afore him fur to be married.

"I hadn't a-got to be married by a bogus parson," said An Eliza. "I want a certificate, an' a genuine one too."

"You don't catch on to the game," said the drummer. "When the ole man comes, he'll think you're married, an' he'll give you his blessin'. Soon's you reach Quincy you kin git a minister an' be married regular."

"This pacified An Eliza, an' we stood up afore the drummer. He had time to yell as the ole man came, an' he was too late to save his daughter from a-marryin' me, which I recollect was a bad piece of luck fur An Eliza. He began to cry, an' An Eliza went to him an' put her arms around him an' began to cry, an' I, not to be out in the cold, began to cry, too. The bogus parson—was really a soft hearted fellow—uk his han'kerchief from his neck an' filled it copiously.

"How could you hev done it?" sobbed the ole man. "'Oh, paw,' cried An Eliza, 'I ain't!'"

"My dear," said the drummer, inter ruptin', "I'm sorry I ain't got no blank certificates with me, but I'll fill one out as soon as we get to Quincy."

"The ole man put out his han' to me an' I hoped I'd be good to his dear little gal, which made me feel if I'd been a-gittin' apples offen his best tree. When we reached Quincy, we shook him long enough to git married real—the drummer tuk him off—an' that was the end of the yarn. Isn't that how it was, Mr. Baggage Smasher?"

"You've told it beautiful."

STATE LINES. HUMOR OF THE HOUR

Minnesota is called the "Bread and Butter State" and rightly, too, for last year her mills turned out 26,629,590 barrels of flour and churned over 69,000,000 pounds of butter.

Oil isn't the only boom in Texas. The rice lands in the big state have quadrupled in price within two years, and ninety-three national banks have been organized within nineteen months.

The death penalty for murder has been restored in Colorado and Iowa. In both states the imprisonment for life experiment resulted in a largely increased list of homicides. There are now only four states in which the death penalty is not inflicted—Wisconsin, Michigan, Maine and Rhode Island.

Restoring an Old Road. A California association is making an effort for the restoration to usefulness of El Camino Real, the royal road, or the king's highway, which was traveled by the Franciscan missionaries for years in the days, more than a century ago, before the "gringos" invaded the land. This road was the most direct route practicable between the pueblos and the missions. It ran through very many of what are now the counties of the state, and the supervisors in those counties have been asked to aid the movement. Many of them have consented.

"An attack of la grippe left me with a bad cough. My friends said I had consumption. I then tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and it cured me promptly." A. K. Randles, Nekomis, Ill.

You forgot to buy a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral when you cold first came on, so your lot first run along. Even now, with all your hard coughing, it will not disappoint you. There's a record of sixty years to fall back on.

How to Fry Onions. When leeksteak and onions are in demand for luncheon or dinner, try this method of cooking the onions: Slice and soak in milk for ten minutes or more, then dip the onions in flour and plunge into boiling fat for six or seven minutes. Remove with skimmer and place around the steak.

How to Soften Shoes. To soften shoes, dip the shoes wash over with warm water and then rub castor oil into them. This makes the boots soft and elastic.
