SEWERS

J. C. MILLER.

One Cause of Lawsuit for Continuation of Nuisance Removed.

Blizzard's run is rid of one source of pollution. The sewer connecting the dwelling on Walnut street owned by the Saul Lyon estate and into which four other drains open has with the consent of John B. McCoy, acting for the estate, been discontinued. On Thursday last Street Commissioner H. B. Deen dug down to the sewer at two cular productions of "Faust" ever at points, breaking it and cementing it shut. It would be impossible therefore to use the sewer and it is probably permanently out of use. This is the only sewer that empties into the stream above the Blizzard property and was the one cause of their complaint. But one source of pollution above that point now remains and that is the P. L. Brewery. The closing of the sewer is regarded as be a great exhibition, including scenes quite a triumph by the anti-sewer taken during the visit of Prince Henry. people. WHO IS PORTER J. WHITE?

While in reality there are few better and more favorably known stars before the public than Mr. White, and it is for the benefit of those who do not call to mind the brilliant young star's career, which reiterates an experience of un precedented success, covering a period of almost a quarter of century, and ye this powerful young star has not at tained the age of 31. He received his histrionic education from a school of artists to whom we must bow in rever ence our heads of pride, those who were looked upon by the thespian and liter ary world, as the grandest and noblest delineators of the writings from the im mortal Shakespeare, and Dumas Know les, which were no other than Booth Barrett, Irving, Charlotte Cushman,

Thomas Keene, Daniel Bandmann and others. When but a boy Mr. White re ceived his instruction from these mas ters; but later he appeared with great success throughout all the important city stock companies, including Boston. House, on Wednesday evening, April 16th., it being announced as an exact reproduction of the play that ran all last season at the Garrick Theatre in New York. A more successful dramatization of a successful novel has never town. What success they will meet left New York, the most critical being at a loss to pick flaws of any kind in it either as comedy or a production. Some books lend themselves readily to the We offer One Hundred Dollars Reward for dramatic scissors and paste pot, but the thread of the story of David Harum was difficult to follow for stage purposes and nobody expected the immense suc cess that started in from the very first night. The secret after all was the human nature of the main character, wily "David Harum." Nothing of the original character of "David Harum." in the phenomenally successful novel is missed acting directly upon the blood and mucous in the character as seen in the play, it might be said, seen in the flesh, every tone and gesture, every touch of tenderness and hint of pure mischief, and above all the sound horse sense are embodied in the acting part, and are easily and gladly recognized even by those who have never read the famous book. The dramatization has the sound merit of portraying in an intelligible theatrical form every detail of the book relat ing directly to David that could be put to use in a play.

WHEN KNIGHTHOOD WAS IN FLOW-ER.

The Great Historical Novel to be a North American Series.

The most remarkable historical novel n recent years, "When Knighthood Bailey, near the Opera House, East Was in Flower," is to appear in the Mahoning street, will be occupied by Sunday North American in the form of Mrs. S. A. Moore and Mrs. Amelia a serial story. The opening chapters Moore, who removed to this city from will be out on April 6.

Never before has any newspaper se cured for publication in its columns a ANNUAL STATEMENT OF novel so recent and yet so successful as this one. Julia Marlowe, now appearing as the Princess Mary Tudor, in a Edward Roberts in Account with play written from the book, is scoring the greatest hit in her brilliant career upon the stage.

In writing "When Knighthood Was in Flower," Mr. Charles Major fixed upon the most romantic spot in the most romantic period of English history. the time of Henry VIII, as a setting for his book. The story thrills with the tender, pure love of a King's sister for an untitled but heroic young Englishman. The hero loves the heroine in spite of his fight against his passion. Their pitiful struggles to avoid one another. their noble sacrifices the one for the other, touch the most hidden string of human sympathp.
