ing and Recurring Winter Colds. The Meaning of Blue Hands-Apo-plexy's Warning Signals. Nature scarce ever strikes without warning. In so far as disease is concerned it gives clear signs of what is impending days, weeks, months and even years before the attack. If people looked for these signs and took warning from them, they would escape years longer than they do. It is indeed remarkable how careless we are in this respect. A man who will anxiously scan the sky for signs of coming rain lest his top hat may get spoiled will never dream of examining his eyes. nose or finger nails for signs of coming

The sneeze, for instance, is very significant. It is always a sign that something is injuring the air passages anywhere from the nose down to the lungs. Should it be only a case of snuff or pepper, of course the sneeze is of no equence. But often it is an indication of congestion. There is inflamma tion somewhere, with too much blood, and the object of the sneeze is to give relief by getting rid of some of the fluid. This sneeze is a warning that every prudent person should attend to. It is at least the forerunner of a cold. But it may indicate an approaching attack of bronchitis or pneumonia. When there is much sneezing, accompanied by something like a small shower o rain, the victim will do well to take a warm footbath, go to bed and adopt the other usual remedies to cure a cold. The winter cold itself is a grave warning. When it recurs two or three times every winter, it is sure to be followed in the end by chronic bronchitis. Once this comes on it is practically in-

Men are started on their lives much as a shell from a cannon-with a certain fixed quantity of energy. If disease or accident does not carry them off, they will die some time of what we call old age-in other words, when the energy with which they started is spent. Some have energy enough to carry them over the full century; others have only sufficient to keep them going for ninety, eighty, seventy, sixty or fewer years. Now, early baldness is a sure sign, with some exceptions, that the energy is likely to fail sooner than in the average man. But all kinds of paldness have not this significance. Sometimes the loss of hair arises from scalp disease caused probably by microbes. The warning baldness is that kind which commences about the temples and on the crown of the head and gradually eats its way over the scalp until only a circular fringe of hair is

Blue nails, or blue hands, betoken weak or obstructed circulation. They are a warning against overexertion of any kind. The obstruction may occur from disorder of several organs in the body. But most commonly the blueness indicates that the heart is not up to the mark.

Yawning is a somewhat similar warning. It is a sign that the steam has run down and that it is time to go to bed or perhaps to go into the open daily contact did not recognize me, my disguise was perfect. I laughed to up to a "boss" and asked for a job. lungs do not receive sufficient of the vital gas, oxygen. The yawn is then a desperate effort of the lungs to properly aerate the blood, and it warns you [ to open the windows or to leave the room. When you are out of bed too long or when you have done an unususive quantity. Then the yawn is a warning to you to lie down and rest.

Most people have a great horror of getting a "stroke" or fit of apoplexy. It is not by any means as unpleasant as the toothache, but the suddenness of it is what appalls. There is really no suddenness about it, however. No disease gives such early warning. A "stroke" is a very simple occurrence and not at all horrible. It results from two or three causes, but the most common one is this: A little artery in the brain wears out and lets some blood escape, which clots, presses on the brain and paralyzes whatever part of the body is governed by the piece of brain pressed upon. Now this artery wears out only in common with other arteries of the body. In some people they all become what is called atheromatous, or hard and brittle. At the same time they become tortuous or twisted. We can see these hard and tortuous arteries on the temples, and then we know it is not safe to do anything which will congest the brain, lest the one little artery there, which is especially liable to give way, shall let the blood escape. Likewise warning is often given by the tiny arteries of the eye. They break and let out little traces of blood, which can easily be seen, but a cold or sleepless night may do the same. When these signs occur-and they occur months and years before the stroke-do not get excited or angry, no matter how great the provocation, do not rush to catch an omnibus or in any way overexert yourself, and do not dine too heartily. By taking the warnings given by nature you will insure yourself against this pleasantest way of leaving the

Mr. Levi Alleger of 102 North Spruce street, says:—"I had much lameness in my back right over my hips and an ever-lasting aching over the kidneys. It hung right to me, and stooping or lifting anything caused sharp pains to pass through me. I had pains between my shoulders and running down my spine, which unfited me for my work. I could not sleep nights, and was tired all the time and especially first thing in the morning. I read about Doan's Kidney Pills curing others of this trouble and I got them and after taking them I felt all right. They are the only thing which exer did me permanent good.

Calling a servant, he gave the order for the orchestra to play another waltz and to wait for word from him before striking up the march for supper. Then he sought out the private detectives he had stationed in the house and told them the plot on foot.

And while the crowd of poets, soldiers, heroes and heroines of bygone ages in the ballroom were waltzing to the strains of "The Serenade," a red and a black devil, a white faced nursemaid and two trembling lackeys marched ingloriously out the front door and boarded a large covered wagon resembling an ambulance, but which is known down in the west end as the Black Maria.

Then I knew he wanted to come. When my little sister came down to the junior prom this fall, Brome thought she was the most charmingly unaffected and gentle mannered girl he had ever met and with his usual frankness confided this opinion to me. curtly. "Never mind the list of virtues. The crowd is waiting." But when she swept into the great hall the flush had not entirely faded from her cheeks. It seemed to Charley Brome that she had never looked o pretty as at this very moment.

He trudged along at her side, pleased because she had quietly fallen behind the merry throng to talk about some new fittings for Tom's room at college. Brome thought it must be very delightful to have a sister to make the dainty knickknacks which somehow never found their way into his den. His mother was managing a small farm in Illinois and with three other boys to clothe and send to school had little time for fancy work. Madge tried to think that she was simply doing her duty by her brother's guest, but before the mile to Beemer's hill had been covered she became deeply interested in her companion.
