TRIBUTE TO R. K. POLK'S MEMORY.

The house of Representatives on Saturday last laid aside public business to pay tribute to the memory of the late Representative Rufus K. Polk. Those who delivered eulogies on the life and character of Mr. Polk were Messrs. Green and Bates of Pennsylvania, Richardson of Alabama; Bellamy, North Carolina; Stark, Nebraska; Badgett, Tennessee, and Clayton, Alabama. Mr. Green said in part-"Amid the carnival which the Grim Reaper has been holding with the members of this body. I am called upon to perform the most difficult and the saddest task of my life. With graceful words and elegant phrases it is easy to pay a last tribute to colleagues respected, admired, and esteemed; but this man was my friend, my comrade, my roommate, and I loved

Not with the flowers of rhetoric, but with heart throbs and with tears I approach his grave. The rose and the forget-me-not, with the violet and the leaves of the sturdy oak. I would weave in a chaplet to his memory and bind them together with heartstrings. Justice I cannot do him, for the feelings of the heart are not told by words. While he lived I never knew how much attached I was to him, and his death has left a void which time alone may

When the rumor of his sudden and unexpected death was brought to me I felt benumbed, and the truth came as a bolt from out of the clear blue of son of them fought from start to finish sunny skies. Never will I forget the the battles of the Confederacy, and for days afterwards when I came back they lived when the outbreak occurrto the cosy apartments where together ed. They were generals and colonels miss one so much, and I never felt so fighting stock from Revolutionary years ago when we came to the Fifty sixth Congress. One makes few warm friendships in middle life. This was one, and a strong attachment, stronger perhaps for that reason. I liked him from our first meeting, and as we were drawn oftener together the bond of union strengthened. He was ten years my junior, and it surely was not his advice nor his judgment I

But what made every man, woman, and child who knew him love him? He had many warm friends among his colleagues, and when you heard even his acquaintances refer to him it showed that he had impressed them with his irresistible charm.

At his funeral, when the long line of brawny workmen whom he had employed filed by his coffin, pausing to take a last look at his face motionless in death, you could plainly read in each man's countenance the fact that they, too, had come under the spell of this charm, and sincerely mourned the loss of one whom they regarded as a dear friend. He was a lovely fellow. I never met one more lovable. His voice, soft and sweet, and its musical accent and expression bespoke him a son of the "Old South." No one who ever heard him talk will ever forget its gentle, winning tones.

More winning than his voice were his manners. They were never acquired, but inherited from aristocratic ancestors, polished gentlemen and charming ladies of the old school who ruled the South in the antebellum days; and this inheritance was strength ened by education, breeding, and refined surroundings.

His nature was sympathetic, and he could not bear to see man or beast suffer, and was always ready to give to distress such relief as was in his power. His generosity was proverbial, and not only did he spend his money with lavish hand, but I never heard him fail to give everyone the benefit of a doubt, and never, unless richly deserved, have I heard him say an unkind or uncharitable word about even a social or business acquaintance. So much did he crave the good opinion and esteem of his associates and so prodigal was he with his favors to them that I sometimes thought him vain and seeking admiration. To an exceptional degree he posses ed the charming spirit of camaraderie. and that made him popular at home and abroad. His faults were but skin deep, and never reached his heart or scarred his

With all these traits his character and personality were strong, not weak, and no one could ever say "no" more firmly or was more tenacious to his own carefully formed opinions. Often, when a man or a question was being discussed with general agreement, to the surprise of all would he announce a different opinion and give convincing views in its support. Yet his manner of announcing such a difference, although firm, never seemed to offend. I envied his tact on such occasions.

But more than all these he was man ly and just and strictly honest in both word and thought and deed. In our close association I never heard him atter a word from which one could form a suspicion that he sought to injure or obtain an unjust advantage of anyone with whom he dealt, and he exacted the same business integrity from others in their dealings. He despised a dishonest man and left hin

He had a vein of stubbornness running through him, and at times it took a rough bit and a strong hand to control him when his teeth were set. These fits happened but seldom. As a rule he was gentle, full of warm, generous impulses, kind-hearted sympathetic, courteous, and tolerant even of the prejudices of others. Much of his life and his ambitions I learned from his own lips as we sat after dinner in the evening twilight and exchanged mutual confidences before we took up the never-ending tasks of Congressional life.

He would light a cigar and stretch out on an easy chair and talk of his wife and his babies, of his parents, and his illustrious uncle Leonidas, the fighting bishop. This was the history of his life as I gleaned it chiefly from hese talks.

In the spring of 1898, when the United States declared war with Spain POLK, with his associates in the National Guard left his wife, family, and large, growing business interest and was mustered in as first lieutenant of Company F, Twelfth Regiment of Pennsylvania Volunteers, and serv ed until his muster out and honorable discharge after peace was established Almost immediately after his return home from this service he was nominat ed and elected as a Democrat to repre sent the Seventeenth district of Pennsylvania, composed of the counties of Columbia, Montour, Northumberland and Spllivan, in the Fifty-sixth Congress, and although that district was then represented by a Republican, his majority was nearly 2,000. This was his first appearance in the political arena. Two years afterwards he was reelected to the Fifty-seventh Congress with an increased majority of nearly 1,500, so popular had he be come, and would have been renominated and elected to the Fifty-eighth Congress had he lived and not positively refused to run again on account of the exactions of his large and onerous business interests. One evening he told me the reasons why he enlisted in the Spanish war and went to the front in spite of the fact that he left a wife and family of young children and large business interests which required his care and attention behind-a sacrifice which no man under such circumstances could reasonably have been called upon to make. The story was, as near as I can remember it, as follows:

"You see, GREEN, all my people in the civil war were what you Yankees called rebels. Every mother's we lived. I never thought I could and majors in that war. We were of Mecklenburg County, N. C., was one of the organizers of the Mecklenburg and one of the signers of the Mecklenburg declaration of independence. My grandfather was Col.

ed we would all enlist. "So when war was declared with Spain my brothers and myself and to the United States service and showed that we were loval to our country and ever ready to sacrifice our lives in the defense of its honor and its flag. Our pledge has been so far kept, and we stand always ready to redeem it while life and strength shall last." nan in my eyes, and I knew him well vord he had told me.

Is it any wonder that the people of his district. Northern men and loyal men though they were, nevertheless not be long after the board is out bewere ready to intrust him with their interests in the great Legislature of this nation, with a firm conviction that their interests and the Republic's interests were intrusted to a loval and patriotic man. But a few short weeks ago the slendr figure and manly presence of the roung statesman of the Seventeenth district of Pennsylvania was in our $1,400; Clearfield, $2,400 to $2,500; midst. POPULATION SHOULD INCREASE

The population of Montour county hould be on the increase, if the ex ess of births over deaths has any hing to do with it, a fact attested by ocal statistics for the past year.

The records show two hundred and sixty births in the county and one nundred and fifty-five deaths. It is a oincidence that just one-half of the births, one hundred and thirty, occurred in the borough of Danville. The records for the borough show: First Ward-hirths, 27 deaths, 20: Second Ward-births, 28: deaths, 19: Third Ward-births, 45; deaths, 14. Fourth Ward-births, 30: deaths, 21. The natural gain of population in the borough is fifty-six.

In the county outside of Danville there were forty-nine more births than deaths, the records of each of the sev eral townships showing the following: West Hemlock-births, 5; deaths, 6 Cooper-births, 5; deaths, 11; May perry-births.3: deaths, 2: Mahoningbirths, 35; deaths, 17; Derry-births, 4; deaths, 11; Limestone-births, 8 eaths, 9; Anthony-births, 18; deaths 11; Valley-births, 21; deaths, 3; Librty-births, 20; deaths, 9.

In Washingtonville one birth and two deaths were returned.

Home Burned to the Ground. Clarence Rishel of near Strawberry Ridge, is the victim of double misforune by storm and fire which has not only left him homeless, but has robbed him of everything but the bare acres of his farm.

During last winter his barn collapsed nder the deep snow and was a total oss. It had to be torn down and Mr. Rishel is just now beginning the erection of a new barn on the site of the old. Early Friday morning Mr. Rishel's house took fire from a defective flue. Before it was discovered the entire roof was on fire. The high wind fanned the flames into a fury, which oon enveloped the entire structure ourning it to the ground. Although assisted by neighbors the family was able to save but a few articles, contained in the lower rooms and the cellar. All their clothing was lost.

The house was a fine frame structure nearly new. Mr. Rishel's loss is at least $2,000. He had only $500 insurance. The farm is now without any buildings, and the unfortunate farmer William C. Lowe, of Philadelphia, was and his family last night were obliged to seek shelter with the neighbors.

Mr. Rishel formerly resided on Boom street, Mahoning township.

Civil Service Examination. A Civil Service Examination will be held by the local board on Wednesday morning, May 28th. The examination this time will carry with it a new feature in as much as the accessful applicant will be eligible to the position of either clerk or carrier. Heretofore an examination for each position was held. With the many rural routes terminating in this city and the prosperous outlook for Danville it is quite possible that more help in both departments may be needed.

Intelligence Office Opened. Rev. H. W. Gregory, pastor of the olored Methodist Episcopal churches of this city, Milton and Muney, has established an intelligence bureau at the residence of Mrs. Elizabeth Boley, No. 201 East Mahoning street. The object is to supply the demand for kitchen help in this city. Since the establishment of the sev eral industries in Danville employing female help domestics have in many instances been hard to obtain. To fill the want colored girls will be brought up from the South. By calling at Mrs. Boley's information may be obtained respecting help to be hired.

onsiderable sums of money. During the evening the man, who eadily, passed as a respectable country nan, appeared in the general store of D. R. Eckman and made some pur chases. Before giving his order he ex plained to the proprietor that he was short of ready cash. His name, he aid, was George Mosier, and he was an employe of Andrew Steinman, County Treasurer. In lieu of ready cash the man carried Mr. Steinman's check for sixteen dollars payable at the First National bank of this city. which he desired the merchant to ac ept in payment for the goods.

checks presented by strangers and Mr. Eckman hesitated. The fellow, however, seemed plausible and showed a very intimate acquaintance with the farming community in general and the Mosers in particular. He finally disarmed all suspicion by talking in a very familiar way over Mr. Eckman's nunting trip last fall in which the merchant and County Treasurer Steinnan were companions.
