REPUBLICAN PRIMARIES

The American is informed by County Chairman William L. Gouger that the Republican primary election will be held at the usual voting places on Friday of next week, June 6th, between the hours of 6 and 8 p. m. The county convention will be held in the Court House on the day following, June 7th, at 10 o'clock.

The Republicans have lain very quiet up to the present. Several candidates have announced themselves, but with the exception of the office of County Commissioner, for which there are four candidates, it does not seem that there will be much of a contest for the nomination. H. E. Seidel, of this city, has announced himself as a candidate for the office of County Chairman. W. L. Gouger, the present incumbent, will no doubt be put up for re-election and between the two there may be a very hot fight. George W. Cromis of Washingtonville, is a candidate for delegate to the State convention. The four Republicans who want to be County Commissioner are: Hiram C. Sandt, present member of the board, Charles W. Cook of Valley township; Jacob C. Miller, of this city, and J. F. Mower, of Derry township. Up to the present no one has announced for the office of District Attorney, but there is a movement on foot among the friends of Ralph Kiser to urge him to run. Montour county has no Republican candidate for Congress. According to custom in this county the delegates in all probability will be uninstructed, so that so far as the primaries are concerned it will be almost to tell whether the result favors Quay or Elkin.

SCHOOL BOARD MEETING

The last regular meeting of the School Board for the present year was held Monday night. There was a good deal of business on hand incidental to the closing of the term, in addition to which an hour or more was occupied with tax exonerations for 1899. Tax Receiver Peters submitted a list of delinquents, taking in the four wards of the borough, each individual being considered separately.

A petition was presented on behalf of the orphanage maintained by the Sisters of Christian Charity at this place asking that it be relieved from taxation under the law of 1874 relating to charitable institutions. The orphanage is assessed at $6,000, the tax due for 1899 being $65. On motion the exonerations were granted as asked for.

On motion of Dr. Barber it was decided to close the schools on Memorial Day.

Professor Carey formally invited the School Board to attend the baccalaureate sermon, which will be preached by Rev. N. E. Cleaver at Trinity M. E. Church on Sunday evening next at 7:30 o'clock. The board decided to accept the invitation on motion of Mr. Keefe, who asked that two pews be reserved for the directors near the front of the church, by the graduating class.

Mr. Keefe reported that the school ground of the Second Ward nightly after dark becomes a rendezvous for boisterous and unmanly fellows who make the vicinity hideous. Only a few of these are pupils of the schools. Mr. Green reported that about the same state of affairs exist at the school building of the Fourth Ward. It was the sense of the board that the several janitors of the borough, who are empowered to act as constables making arrests if necessary, ought to be able to keep up some semblance of good order about the school buildings, even after dark. No definite action was taken.

Borough Superintendent Gordy presented a list of pupils belonging to the senior class of the High School, who have successfully passed the examination for graduation. The names are as follows: William Bailey, Joy Brader, Alice Small, Harry Gaskins, Elsie Sainsbury, Blanche Ruffel, Sara Ungar, John McCaffrey, John Corman, Walter Good, Jean Curry, Luella Werkheiser, Annie Childs and Kathryn Rogers.

Borough Superintendent Gordy submitted to the board the new course of study for the High School arranged by himself and the teachers of that grade. The six courses formerly employed, all of which were more or less complex, he explained, had been reduced by the change to three, involving a much better classification and enabling pupils to determine at a glance which course would be the most beneficial to them. Under the change the course includes more English classics, but will necessitate the purchase of no additional books. The new course of study was referred to the High School committee, they to report at the first meeting of the new school board.

Attorney Kiser reported that with very few exceptions pupils under 13 years of age are in attendance at school. Parents, generally, he said, along with those employing children have been brought to understand their duty in the premises. By next term, he thinks, the good effects of the present effort will be manifest and that the attendance will be all that can be desired.

The following directors were present at the meeting: Fischer, Orth, Green, Burger, Barber, Harpel, Werkheiser, Keefe, Byerly and Curry.

A BAND OF GYPSIES

The monotony of rural life in the vicinity of Maudsland during the week past has been relieved by the presence of a camp of gypsies, considerably larger and more up-to-date in its appointments than is usual. The camp lies this side of the village between the P. & R. Railway and the wagon road at a point just beyond Mahoning creek. The nomads are the object of much curiosity and the spot is daily visited by a number of people, many being from this city.

A representative of The American yesterday strolled into the camp and had an interview with the "King." This personage is both a surprise and a disappointment. He is the son of a countryman—a most willing conversationalist who without giving the least offense manages to withhold the very thing you want to know. There was never a man living that had such a command of generalities and his remarks abound in such vague phrases as: "I'm sure I don't know." "That's it, exactly." "I wouldn't be surprised."

The King's name; where the camp came from; whether it is bound; matters concerning which there is much guessing, no matter how arduous the questions are put, the gypsies bring the public to keep on guessing.

The "King" may be a gypsy, but he does not say so; neither does he resemble one. There is in his language a familiar brogue suggestive of the soil of "Merry England" or the less favored land of Wales. Still he is a natural leader and boss of his people.

He admitted that the camp contained a "good many" people, made up of several families, who trade horses and move from place to place, but beyond this nothing could be learned from him. The King's subjects likewise were very guarded in their replies but from one it was learned that the camp consists of but two families, one being the King's and the other his son's. The families both are large; in one of them there are twelve children.

The camp consists of six very handsome modern gypsy wagons, with a corresponding number of tents. The wagons, which seem to be used exclusively for sleeping purposes are models of convenience. The bedding where downy and snowy white in its purity. By the side of each wagon is pitched a tent, in which the family lives. A glance on the interior revealed an exceedingly small cook stove of the wood-burning variety, with probably a small table. Chairs generally were conspicuous by their absence. In several of the tents the ground was covered with carpet. In one a swarthy-faced maiden, gaudily attired, was seated on the floor combing her long black hair.

Whatever the nationality of the "King" may be, there would seem to be no doubt but that the bulk of his followers are closely akin to the gypsy race. The women, especially, several of whom dally stroll into Danville, have the dark complexion and other characteristics of the gypsy. They dress in bright colors, tell fortunes and seem to love their outdoor life. Whether gypsies or only playing such the camp is certainly living up to the traditions of the race.

Some eighteen or twenty horses, valuable or otherwise, along with a good many dogs of doubtful pedigree, the usual stock in trade of gypsies, were in evidence about the camp. The "King" and his men have canvassed quite a large section on their fortune-telling expeditions.

Several persons, including a business man of Danville have traded horses with the gypsies during the past week and are said to have been treated very fairly. Indeed, the Maudsland people, who have frequent dealings with the camp, give the gypsies credit not only for honesty, but also for quiet and good order about the camp. Whatever they need in the way of supplies they buy and pay cash for it. On the whole the camp in no way seems to be the cause of complaint.

Rev. L. F. Wagner of Minersville delivered a lecture in St. John's reformed church at Maudsland last evening, on the "Life of Christ." During the lecture several five stereoscopic views were shown representing the career of Christ from His birth until the Resurrection.

To-night Rev. Wagner will lecture on the same subject in St. James' reformed church at Ridgeville. During his stay in this vicinity he is the guest of Rev. C. D. Lerch, this city.

Civil Service Examination.

A civil service examination was held yesterday morning in the High School room, being conducted by Post Office Clerk Ralph Diehl. A class of five took the examination. Some of the questions were very intricate, but the examination, as a whole, was not difficult in a technical sense. Those who pass it successfully, with the highest marks, will be placed upon the eligible list and from which the appointments are made when a vacancy occurs in the post-office or the staff of letter carriers.

New flag stone pavements are being laid in front of the residences of John Evans and Warren Welliver, East Mahoning street.

MAY SESSION OF COURT

Court convened Monday morning with R. R. Little, President Judge, and Associates Dr. S. Y. Thompson and Frank Bleo on the bench.

The constables presented their returns, which showed no neglect or violations of law except in the townships of Limestone and Derry, where defects in the public road were reported. In the former township in addition several index boards were reported as down. The Court instructed the constable, of Limestone township to confer with the District Attorney, the latter to lay a bill before the Grand Jury, if in his opinion all the circumstances warrant such a course.

Fred Jacobs was sworn in as foreman of the Grand Jury. Carl Litz, Andrew Schmidt and A. D. St. Clair, grand jurors, were excused.

McClellan Diehl was appointed stipendiary clerk of the Grand Jury and Judge Welliver and Peter Mottern, tipsters to wait upon the Court. Jacob Little in charging the Grand Jury informed them that there is only a small amount of business before Court and dwelt in a congratulatory way upon the reasonable degree of quiet and good order that prevails throughout the county. The most of the cases on the list for trial are continued or settled. The Judge explained that experience in the past has made it clear that owing to the pressure of routine business incidental to the opening of court it is practically impossible to proceed to any extent with trial by jury on the first day. For that reason in order to obviate a needless outlay of money he had caused the traverse jurors not to be called until Tuesday. This is a departure which will no doubt meet the hearty approval of tax payers.

In the case of Charles Amaton, charged with breaking into the bar room of Hotel Oliver, the grand jury ignored the bill. The accused was in jail awaiting action of the grand jury.

The old river road, closed to travel since the heavy flood of last spring, figured in the first day's proceedings a petition being presented from the citizens of Mahoning township asking that the road be vacated. The petition was ordered filed and a rule granted to show cause why viewers shall not be appointed as prayed for, rule to be served on County Commissioners also on the Borough of Danville and on William A. Shepperson and Lloyd Lamberson. June 30th was set apart as the date for argument.

An application was filed for a charter by the Montour Rolling Mill department Beneficial association.

A subpoena in divorce was awarded in the case of Elias Heilmann vs. Margaret Heilmann.

In the case of Commonwealth vs. William Knapp a nol. pros. was allowed.

The Sunbury Trust Company was appointed guardian of Madge Sandor, to give bond in the sum of $200.

Court convened Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock. The first proceedings of the day were on the verge of being sensational. The list of traverse jurors was called, when twelve failed to respond. It was a most unprecedented state of affairs and as a piece of disobedience, if not contempt, it could not be overlooked. In commenting upon it the court remarked that nothing remained but to impose a penalty of ten dollars upon each of the absentees. Before long, however, the delinquent jurors began to drop in, when it developed that under the change inaugurated this year, which holds the traverse jurors off until Tuesday morning, the notices so read as to summon them to appear at 10 o'clock. By the latter hour all were present.

The forenoon was occupied by the case of Commonwealth vs. Joseph Gross, the charge being assault and battery upon his 15-year-old daughter Ida. The prosecutrix was Mrs. Alice Jones, an aunt of the young girl. The jury returned a verdict of not guilty, placing the costs upon the defendant.

Gross was arraigned in the afternoon on the charge of non-support. Mrs. Jones again took the stand. The wife of the defendant was not in court for nearly nine years and is confined at the Hospital at this place. Mrs. Jones swore that Gross does but very little for his children—that he drinks and otherwise misapplies his money. He has 3 children at home and these Mrs. Jones and the neighbors look after furnishing them with both food and clothing much of the time.

The daughter Ida and a brother older than herself corroborated the testimony of Mrs. Jones.

The court directed the stenographer to write out the testimony of both cases in which Gross was defendant, and he wished to consider it carefully before he disposed of the matter. Meanwhile he ordered that the defendant be remanded to the custody of the sheriff. Gross has been in jail since March 17th.

An interesting case was taken up immediately after noon, in which the defendants were five young girls. The prosecutor was John Nevius. The defendants were the daughters of John McDermott, who resides near the P. & R. railway just north of the borough. They were charged with assault and battery on Mr. Nevius' 12-year-old daughter Carrie.

The heavy air defendants formed quite a group and along with their

FRESH AIR CHILDREN

Last summer a car load of waifs from New York were entertained by kind hearted people in South Danville, Riverside and the country surrounding Danville. For two weeks they revelled in the delights of fresh air and sunshine. They thoroughly enjoyed their outing and the tales told by them have caused many more of the children of the great cities to long for a sight of the wonders that have so far been unknown to them. The Fresh Air people would like to send many more out this summer and there is no doubt that those who had the little ones last summer will gladly take them again. But more places are desired and there should be responses from Danville. The appeal says in part:

Blessings come not alone to the receivers, but to donors as well, in broadened views—in sympathy with types; and especially in whatever tends to universal love for all child life.

Again, comes the appeal, what will Danville, South Danville, Riverside and the good people in country near do now, this summer, for our overcrowded city children? What shall be the reply sent back? How many can we take? How many shall we make better and happier for two brief weeks? And, how much shall we add thereby to our own innate consciousness of having done the best and most possible in our power to do?

A Birthday Party.

Shiloh Reformed church Tuesday night was the scene of an interesting function, which was enjoyed by nearly the whole congregation. The event was known as a "Birthday party" and was given under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society.

Although never carried out with greater success, entertainments of the kind were given in our churches before. The plan is to arrange a program of music, recitation and the like to be rendered on a certain evening by the young people of the church. Invitations are sent out to the Sunday school, the congregation and even to friends outside, accompanied by a miniature sack very neatly made which the person invited is requested to bring along to the entertainment filled with pennies, one for every year of his or her age. The invitations are also accompanied with a card setting forth in lively the purpose of the little sack and adding that "beside the musical treat a social time may be expected with something to eat."

The lecture room of Shiloh Reformed church Tuesday night presented a very pretty appearance under the lavish decorations in which the radiant hues of flowers in many varieties, mingled with the broad folds of the stars and stripes.

The program was well arranged and rendered throughout in a way that could not fail to please. The choir sang two selections with quite pleasing effect. Vocal solos were rendered by Miss Jennie Fouk, Miss Minnie Miller, Miss Berta Miller, and C. C. Ritter. Piano solos were rendered by Miss Lizzie Ritter, Mrs. Marshall and Miss Ella Mottern. Recitations were rendered by Miss Snyder. The male quartette consisting of Charles Shelhart, Leonard Fouk, Walter Russell and C. C. Ritter sang two selections. A violin solo was rendered by Ralph Fouk.
