REPUBLICAN STATE TICKET

FOR GOVERNOR. Samuel W. Pennypacker, of Philadelphia. LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR. William Brown, of Lawrence County. SECRETARY OF INTERNAL AFFAIRS. Major Isaac B. Brown of Erie County. REPUBLICAN COUNTY TICKET. Congress (Full term.) James Foster. Congress (Short term.) Thomas J. Price. STATE SENATOR. John E. Roberts. LEGISLATURE. John E. Roberts. DISTRICT ATTORNEY. Ralph Kiser. COUNTY COMMISSIONERS. J. F. Mower. Charles W. Cook. COUNTY AUDITORS. John L. Jones. E. V. Flick.

The State Convention met Wednesday of last week at Harrisburg as called and after a very interesting and exciting session, nominated Judge Samuel W. Pennypacker for Governor by a majority of delegates, over Hon. John P. Elkin, at present Attorney General under Governor Stone.

The end brought about was not an arbitrary one, but in consonance with the opinion and belief of the largest portion of the party. Elkin made a good fight and stayed in to the end. He made a vigorous and personal campaign, but he has announced like a good Republican his loyal support of the ticket made and the animus aroused in him and his friends all of whom were prominent regulars, will soon disappear in the general good of the party and desire for its most complete success.

Of Judge Pennypacker we have already spoken in the highest terms. It is the best nomination possible and the remainder of the ticket, Lieutenant-Governor and Secretary of Internal Affairs, is excellent.

It will demand all shades of Republican support and be elected by 250,000 majority. All that now remains is for every Republican to see to it, from this on to November, that earnest, intelligent and enthusiastic effort is given to call out every voter in support of the ticket now made and endorsed by a united and harmonious party.

The platform is the best made in many years. Succinct, cogent and intelligent, it upholds and sets forth all the grand principles and work of the Republican party, commends President Roosevelt in the highest terms, and names him as our standard-bearer for 1904.

Beyond the questions of right and might evolved in the controversy between the anthracite coal operators and the striking miners is the supreme duty resting upon all parties concerned to obey the laws of the land. The evils complained of by the miners for the remedying of which they have inaugurated the greatest strike of recent years will not excuse violations of law on the part of the strikers, no matter how well grounded they may be. On the other hand, the attempted coercion on the part of the operators so bitterly condemned by the miners will furnish no excuse for setting aside the law in order to establish their power and force the workmen back to the mines. The duty of obeying the law is not any more incumbent upon the miner than upon the operator. Because the miner is exposed to the temptation of resisting force with force, and is therefore more apt to be led into overt acts of violence does not mean that he is the only lawbreaker upon whom close surveillance should be kept. The law that is intended to restrain him is also intended to operate against the exercise of unfair or sinister forces against him.

The country at large looks to the chief leaders on both sides of the unfortunate contention for the preservation of the law. Both the strike leaders and the operators are regarded impartially by a majority of the American public, and the law that it expects shall be enforced against disorders among the miners is the same law that it hopes to see put in the way of unjust advantage on the part of the operators. There are not two kinds of law in this country, one for the poor and one for the rich, and this truth should be rigidly impressed in the coal regions just now.

Object to the Publicity. The Mt. Carmel newspapers are full of denunciatory articles concerning the press of the coal regions. They claim that the smallpox situation at Mt. Carmel has been misrepresented to the public.

Will Erect Double Dwelling. A cellar is being excavated on Water street, below Rough and Ready, for a double dwelling house for John Sanford, engineer at the Silk Mill, and his son, E. A. Sanford, a machinist at the same mill.

HURLED MANY FEET BY FREIGHT TRAIN

Joseph Baird has just returned to Danville after passing through an experience so thrilling that he was at one time reported dead and his relatives at Altoona wired instructions to have his body held until his arrival at the place of his supposed demise. He was run down by a Pennsylvania fast freight, on the Trenton cut-off, and for days laid unconscious in a hospital at Norristown.

Baird left this city in April to go to Philadelphia. He got off a train at White Marsh Junction, north of Norristown, on the evening of April 16. While walking down the tracks he was hit by the freight train, which was bound from New York to Harrisburg and was running at a high rate of speed. He was thrown thirty feet in the air, falling a hundred feet down an embankment. His left arm was broken in two places, the left side paralyzed and the leg and foot injured. He also was seriously hurt about the spinal column and kidneys. It was not until three o'clock the next morning, seven hours after the accident occurred that he was found. Then he was hurried to the hospital.

After an examination the surgeons gave little hope for his recovery. For seventy-two hours he was unconscious and his life seemed ebbing away. Word was telegraphed to this city and Altoona that he was dying. The Altoona relatives misunderstood their message and wired to Norristown to hold the body until a member of the family arrived. Information later reached here that he had succumbed to his injuries. After recovering consciousness Baird was kept four days in the dark room. Despite the rumors of his death and the predictions of the doctors he slowly grew better and was discharged from the hospital on May 23. From Norristown he went to West Washington, where he remained until his return to Danville. He resided here for thirteen years and has many friends who are glad to know of his safe return, after passing through such peril. He has secured a position at the Reading Iron Works. He has almost entirely recovered from the effects of his terrible injuries, although his back and kidneys still cause him some trouble.
