Brown October.
Beautiful fall weather.
One half of October gone.
Bloomsburg Fair this week.
The hunting season opens today.
Only three weeks until election day.
Beware of pickpockets at the Fair today.
See the Murray & Mackey Company at the Opera House tonight. "Dublin Bay" will be produced.
Congressman C. H. Dickerman of this district has expressed himself as heartily in favor of the thirty-five foot channel in the Delaware river. The proposed channel means much for Philadelphia and in a lesser degree for the entire state.
Next winter's buckwheat cake crop will be limited. The reports from Columbia county noted for its fine grain, indicate that the buckwheat harvest will be very light.
While the Fair is in progress fourteen cars are being kept constantly running on the Bloomsburg trolley line.
See the Murray & Mackey Company at the Opera House tonight.
The smallpox epidemic has not been stamped out in this state. It behooves the health authorities to be on the alert.
The report circulated that the Milton Fair would be held next week owing to the fair being spoiled by wet weather last week is not correct.
The twenty-ninth annual convention of the Pennsylvania Sabbath School Association was opened yesterday at Scranton.
The firemen of the state were drenched to the skin during the parade at Allentown. There is one consolation, it is not the first time that the knights of the nozzle have been soaked.
The Nanticoke Justice of the Peace who offers to give trading stamps to couples who give him the job of marrying them is certainly abreast of the times.
Montour county is a county of roads and it goes without saying that most of them are poor roads. But the spirit of improvement is being cultivated.
The University of Michigan has 22 college presidents among its alumni, and what is more interesting in this autumnal weather 11 foot ball coaches, remarks the Detroit Journal.
Harrisburg is building houses by the hundreds. Wilkesbarre, Scranton and Reading are doing the same.
The locomotive engineers of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad have organized a brass band. There are 28 pieces in the organization.
Every school in the county should observe autumn Arbor day, October 16.
Railroads are after young men to become firemen, and preferably those whose fathers are engineers. Such young men are more interested in their work, it is said, than others.
Should the weather stand a march on the goose-home man, it would be the joke of the season.
Soon there will be no Christians left for the Turks to slaughter.
At the Milton Fair last week 12,000 chickens were exhibited, the largest aggregation of farm yard beauties ever assembled in Pennsylvania. And yet eggs are thirty cents a dozen.
Trot fry is plenty. But will they be permitted to grow big enough to fry. That's the question the sporting fishermen would like to know.
Last week's rains caused heavy losses to agricultural fair associations.
At any rate the crop report indicates enough to eat during the winter.
On account of continued trouble with his help, E. O. Spindler, of the Shamokin stocking factory, has decided to move his plant to Lowell, Mass.
Milton is trying to secure a new silk industry.
Now that the leaves are falling thick and fast let the burning nuisance be stopped.
Statistics go to show that almost 10 per cent of Uncle Sam's pensioners reside in Pennsylvania.

Two Hawks in Captivity.

A chicken hawk would be one of the last things that a person would think of selecting for a pet, yet the fact remains that the hawk is an intelligent bird and may be tamed with some degree of success.
There are two fine specimens at the Hospital for the Insane, which are kept on the lawn near the front of the building. One of the hawks was captured at Pilgrim's Rest, Dr. Thompson's farm near Mooresburg, two years ago. The bird had swooped down to carry off a chicken and was in the act of rising when it became entangled in a barbed wire fence. The hawk was taken alive by the farmer's wife after a desperate fight in which the woman was nearly wounded. The other hawk confined on the grounds was shot by Dr. I. H. Jennings of this city, about a year ago. Its injury, which was barely sufficient to cripple it, did not prove serious and the bird, like its companion has thrived.
The hawks have become accustomed to captivity and do not object in the least to being carried. Each is provided with a low perch which it roosts upon. A large cage which the hawks occupy at night. As darkness approaches, the stout cord attached to the leg is loosened. The birds make no effort to get away, but of themselves fly or walk directly to the cage. The hawks are of the red tail species; they have become quite a fixture and add to the interest of the grounds.

Legacy of Twenty Thousand Dollars.

Rev. Dr. M. L. Shindel of this city, a director of Susquehanna University, Schuylkill, yesterday received a communication from J. L. Woodruff, dean of the institution, stating that by the terms of the will of the late Rev. Reuben Hill, D. D., formerly Professor in Mt. Airy Seminary, Susquehanna University has fallen heir to $20,000 or over.
The executors and trustees under the will are the Lehigh Valley Trust and Safe Deposit Company, who filed a report on the 29th day of June 1896, to the effect that the total amount of inventory was $41,583.91 and that the value of the estate after deducting the expenses of settling was $40,971.91. The Susquehanna University is an equal heir with the Lutheran Mission and Church Extension Society.
The widow of Dr. Hill died on Sunday, October 4th, and the funds will now be available very soon. The directors of the University feel much encouraged owing to the fact that the legacy becomes available at this time when they are putting forth every effort in the direction of the "Million dollar fund" movement.

Hydraulic Cider Press Busy.

The heavy storm of last week shook nearly all the apples off the trees and the hydraulic cider press at Hooyer Bros. has been quite busy this week disposing of the windfall. The press goes to work when the plaining mill starts, at 7 a. m. and continues in operation until 7:30 p. m.
On Tuesday between the hours named 20 loads were brought to the mill and turned into cider. This was the biggest days' work of the season, the product of the press being 2909 gallons. Yesterday 3000 gallons were produced. From now on the daily product of the mill will gradually grow less.
There is only a medium crop of apples this year and the average daily product of cider is smaller than last season.

Re-visiting Danville.

J. H. Fress, of Wyoming, formerly section foreman of the D. L. & W. railroad here, joined his wife on a visit with relatives in this city yesterday. Mr. Fress, who was transferred by the D. L. & W. Company from this city on August 6th last, states that he is very pleasantly situated at Wyoming and likes the place very much.

THE BOAT CAPSIZED

Bert Orth, the well-known barber of South Danville, came within an ace of losing his life while sailing Monday. There was a fifteen foot flood on and the river was a raging torrent. Orth's boat upset and clinging to the upturned craft he was swept on for a quarter of a mile and rescued just as he was about to give up the struggle.
It was during the afternoon. Rigging up his canoe Bert notwithstanding the high water set out for a sail. He crossed the river and returned. He was sailing backwards and forwards just below the bridge when he was struck by the force of the wind with the result that the canoe capsized and he was thrown into the swirling waters. He was some 30 yards out and the accident was witnessed by several persons on shore.
As the boat went over he clutched one side of it. He sank out of sight, however, but the next moment reappeared and endeavored to right the boat. From that moment on the struggling man literally clung to straws to save his life.
When the canoe capsized Arthur Myerly and Edward Hammer jumped into a boat and rowed out to rescue the struggling man. He was swept along so fast that despite the most rapid rowing the two men were unable to overtake him until they were fully a quarter of a mile below where the canoe capsized.
Meanwhile the scene was thrilling in the extreme. While the two men in pursuit bent to the oars straining every nerve, the drowning man time and again sank below the rapid waters. Each time he was given up for lost, but reappeared. Once he succeeded in getting into the canoe but the little craft went over again and he was lost in the wide current. Rising a bit in the best he could do was to clutch the boat and endeavor to hang on until overtaken by the rescuers. But every time he seized the boat it overturned and it was more than once upside down with the struggling man underneath.
When near the ripples the rescuing boat came along side and Orth at the point of exhaustion was pulled on board and brought to shore.
The undersigned are abutting owners of property on the line of Mill street, a thoroughfare in the Borough of Danville and for the interest of themselves and the benefit of said Borough and its inhabitants are desirous of having the said thoroughfare of Mill street paved with vitrified brick in accordance with the provisions of said Act of Assembly.
"If, therefore, the requisite number and extent of property owners abutting on said thoroughfare or parts thereof appear upon the petition your body is respectfully asked to pass an ordinance with the provisions of the said Act of Assembly ordaining that the said thoroughfare or parts thereof as may be determined upon shall be paved as aforesaid."

Will Rebuild Election Booths.

The election booths throughout the county are generally in bad condition and it is deemed advisable to have them overhauled. The work will probably begin during the present week.
There are few, if any, of the booths which will not have to be practically rebuilt. The corrugated iron of which they are constructed has at many places been badly eaten by the rust so that neither roofs nor sides are any longer impervious to the weather.
The booths all need new roofs and fronts; not a few will have to have new sides also. In re-roofing galvanized iron will take the place of corrugated iron as more durable. For the fronts brick tin or some other kind of building metal will be employed. In rebuilding paper will be used on the inside to render the booths warmer in winter. The repairs, which will involve painting, will constitute a pretty big job and entail considerable expense.

Fine Weather Invites Truancy.

The fine autumnal weather of the last few days has proven very alluring to the school boys and unless their scruples are especially strong they are apt to yield to the temptation to play truant.
There were four of these delinquents at large yesterday, representing the Second and Third Wards. Truant officer Young, however, was in hot pursuit and although the boys led him a long and devious chase he rounded them up in the end and took them all back to school.
There was but little truancy during September; October, it seems, has brought a different state of affairs and the truant officer has had to be pretty vigilant to keep the boys in school.

Fell From an Apple Tree.

Oscar Eborly of Riverside met with a painful accident last evening, which will no doubt incapacitate him for work for some time.
He climbed upon a tall apple tree for the purpose of picking some choice apples. While at work near the top one of the branches broke and he fell to the ground. In his fall he struck one of the lower limbs with his side sustaining a painful injury. The probability is that one or more of his ribs are fractured even if he has escaped more serious injury. Dr. Smith was called.

Sawinski-Oliver.

Miss Ella Oliver of this city and Joseph Sawinski of Berwick, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony yesterday. The ceremony was performed in St. Joseph's Catholic Church at 7 a. m. by Rev. Father M. J. O'Reilly. Miss Catherine Rittel was bridesmaid and William Lovett, best man.
After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride, Mill street. Last evening the happy couple left for Berwick where they will reside.

PETITION BEING CIRCULATED

The committee appointed by the Board of Trade began the circulation of a petition last night asking that an ordinance be enacted requiring Mill street to be paved. The committee as far as they went were very successfully received and signers were procured without any difficulty. The petition reads as follows:
To the Chief Burgess and Town Council of the Borough of Danville.
The petition of the undersigned respectfully represents that
Whereas, The Legislature of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania passed an Act on the 23rd day of April, 1889 providing that from and after the passage of this act the Council of any incorporated borough shall have the power to require by ordinance and cause to be paved, curbed or macadamized any public street or thoroughfare or parts thereof, which is now or may hereafter be laid out and opened in any of said boroughs and collect in the manner hereinafter provided, two-thirds of the cost and expenses of the same from the owners of the real estate bounding or abutting thereon by an equal assessment to be estimated by the Street Commissioner or person in charge of said work or other competent authority designated by the Council of said borough.
Provided that the council of any such borough shall not require or cause to be paved any street or thoroughfare except upon the petition of two-thirds of the owners of property representing not less than two-thirds of the number of feet of the properties fronting or abutting on said street or thoroughfare, or the part thereof proposed to be paved and providing further as to the means of enforcing and collecting such assessments, &c.
After this follows the petition proper.

Twenty-Fifth Wedding Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Stonge of Groviana were tendered a pleasant surprise party Tuesday evening in honor of the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding.
Dancing was the principal form of amusement indulged in. A fine supper was a feature of the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Stonge were the recipients of many handsome presents.
Among those present were the following: Mr. and Mrs. John S. Mensch, Mr. and Mrs. William Mensch, J. H. Mensch, L. H. Boddy, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Biecher, Mr. and Mrs. William Form, H. D. Wolcott, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Dietz, Messrs. Huller and Pascoe, Mr. and Mrs. George Somers, Roy Fern, Walter McHenry, James Riehel, Charles Mullen, Mrs. A. H. Fisher, Misses Maggie Johns and Florence Tanner.

Destroyed by Fire.

The barn on the farm owned by John Kase and tenanted by George Crawford, Mayberry township, was destroyed by fire Tuesday night.
The farm is one of a hundred acres or more and the barn was large in proportion. The fire was discovered about 8:30 o'clock. All the upper portion of the barn was then in flames, but the stables below were comparatively free from fire. All the live stock were saved, but the season's crops along with a lot of valuable machinery, including a self-binder and farm wagons belonging to the tenant fell a prey to the flames.
The origin of the fire is enshrouded in mystery. Mr. Kase carried a small insurance on the barn, but the tenant had no insurance. The total loss is estimated at nearly $3000.
The light of the fire was distinctly visible from this city.

The New Parch.

The carpenters, Levi Seehler and Joseph Y. Seehler, completed their work on the new parch at the Montour House yesterday and it is now ready for the painters. The parch is a very neat piece of work and when embellished with paint will no doubt add much to the appearance of the fine old hostelry.

New Roof on Tubing Works.

Work yesterday was begun on the new roof at the Structural Tubing Works. A large portion of the plant will have to be placed under a new covering. The corrugated iron placed on the roof 10 years ago owing to the action of sulphur is eaten through at many places.
The asbestos roofing used on a portion of the plant proves more serviceable than iron, but in re-roofing the company has decided to use a patent roofing known as rubberoid. It is not considered fireproof, but it has very durable qualities which have been satisfactorily demonstrated by repeated trials.

Fair is on, Greatest Ever.

There never was a day so fair, But some dissenters would be there. Yet one would have a hunt more difficult than for the proverbial needle in the haystack to find a man so utterly devoid of Fair spirit as to be classed with the dissenters. Better weather never greeted the opening days of an Annual Fair of the Columbia County Agricultural, Horticultural and Mechanical Association than that which now holds out every prospect for a record-breaking week. Not a cloud could be seen in the heavens yesterday, a happy augury for everybody and everything connected with the greatest social affair of the year in this section of the State. For it is a social affair, where friends meet and renew old acquaintances. The old folks meet with glad comments on the Fairs of years ago and recall with great pleasure the scenes of course. But it is a good old time for all and all are happy. No one goes to the Fair unhappy, at least as far as appearances go, but if any are not happy they soon get into the spirit. No room at the Fair for any who are afraid to drop a little into the pockets of the gentlemen who must make up here for the strong weeks of preceding fairs. The fair is a jolly good fellow who wants nothing but money and he is there in all his glory.
All kinds of eating places as usual, the exhibition building filled with displays of extraordinary attractiveness. The races will be of decided interest, a number of good horses being entered. The live stock exhibit is of unusual merit and everything else shows that this is the best beginning ever made by the Bloomsburg Fair. A continuance of fair weather will mean the greatest crowd today the fair has ever known.
On the inside of the enclosure the first attractions are the poultry exhibitions. These are attracting considerable attention as all kinds of poultry are to be seen.
In going through the stables where the cows, sheep, hogs, horses, and a lone goat are to be seen, as in other years, this is about the same. The exhibition building is the main attraction, and never before has it been as tastefully decorated or have so many exhibitions occupied booths as this year.
When one comes to the curio display we see one of the best parts of the Fair, for here are exhibited curiosities that are well worth the time to examine—war relics, ancient candle sticks, spinning wheels, Indian relics, old portraits, clocks, Chinaware and hundreds of other articles. In this class there is a can of peaches that was on exhibition at the first Columbia County Fair, and it still bears the tag of that Fair.
In classes No. 24, 25, 26, there are lace, quilts, fancy aprons and hemstitched work, which readily catches the eye of the women, while the display of big pumpkins, corn, wheat, rye, oats, etc., brings crowds of the tillers of the soil miles to see.
Taking all in all, the exhibits are the best that have been on the grounds for years, and are the kind that make the Columbia County Fair famous.
But this is not all you'll see, for, as usual, the ground is full of tents, where the fakir with his "little game" is plying his trade, the showmen with their strong men and trained dogs are doing a rushing business, while the candy man, with gum drops and peanuts takes the babies' pennies. But, for all, everybody that can will see the Fair today with all its attractions.

Welcomed by Many Friends.

Dr. J. J. Kline of Allentown, was welcomed by many of his old friends in this city yesterday. Dr. Kline will remain in Danville for several days. He is a guest at Hotel Baldy.

DEATH OF GOMER THOMAS

Gomer Thomas, the well-known composer and musical director of this city, died suddenly Monday eve. He was 62 years of age. He was a native of Danville and was educated in this city. He was a member of the Lutheran and Reformed congregations which worship in the church and embraced the two dates, 1803 and 1903.
The church was beautifully decorated with flowers ferns and leaves in addition to the colors of each denomination. There was a large attendance, morning and evening and much interest was shown in the services. The program was carried out with special credit to the participants.
The first half of the morning service was in the English language, conducted by the Rev. C. D. Lorch, pastor of the Reformed congregation; the last half was in German, conducted by the Rev. W. E. Wenner, pastor of the Lutheran congregation.
Special music was rendered by a union choir with five voices. The choir of St. John's Lutheran church, this city, was present and rendered several choice selections, which were highly appreciated, especially by the older members who are more conversant with the German language.
The German address was delivered in the morning, by Rev. Wenner. It abounded in many excellent thoughts having reference to "Christ, the Corner Stone of the Church."
The English address was delivered by Rev. Lorch. It was also a very fine discourse appropriate to the occasion, which had as its theme, "The Simplicity of Best Beginnings."
At evening each pastor delivered an address in English, setting forth "The Perplexities of Early Church Work" and "The Necessity of maintaining the Ancient Landmarks of Christian Labor."
Letters of greeting from Revs. William C. Schaeffer, Ph. D., Chambersburg, and F. H. Fisher of Philadelphia, both former pastors of the Reformed side were read and listened to with a high degree of interest. The letters abounded in noble words of encouragement to remain faithful until the end and accomplish still greater things for the blessed Master.
The occasion was one which will be long remembered by the two congregations of St. James church at Ridgeville.
New Law Affecting Borough Assessors.
By the provisions of a law passed by the last legislature borough ward assessors will be required to make the adjustment of all assessments. The statute was drafted by Hon. H. O. Haug, of Schuylkill county, with a view of obliterating the complaints and difficulties in the matter of assessments that were made under the act of May 8, 1889.
Under the Haag law it is provided that in making the valuation of property the assessors of all wards shall act as a board of assessors and such board of assessors shall make the assessments of all the subjects of taxation in the borough for borough, school, district and county purposes and return thereof shall be made to the county commissioners, as now provided by law, subject to revision by the county commissioners.
Heretofore each ward assessor fixed the valuation of property in his own ward, without consultation with the assessors of the other wards. The result was that some assessors placed a much higher valuation on property than others did on real estate of like value, causing the county commissioners much annoyance and work in adjusting the assessments. The Haag law will reduce these difficulties to a minimum.

As to Street Paving.

During an interview Saturday Amos Vastine, President of Council, stated that so far as he knew no petition as yet has been put in circulation by the property owners interested asking that Mill and Bloom streets be paved as advocated by some of our progressive citizens. Such a petition from the majority of property owners along the two streets named is essential before anything can be done and Council is patiently waiting.
Mr. Vastine says Council desires to be progressive and has taken the initiative, showing that the Borough is willing to shoulder its share of the cost of street paving and that it is now up to the property owners to reveal their attitude toward the improvement.
As soon as a petition is received signed by the majority of property owners along the streets to be paved Council will proceed to enact a paving ordinance and to invite bids for brick.
A good deal of valuable time has already been lost; if there is much more delay street paving will be out of the question this fall.

Magnificent Antlers.

Harry Billmeyer, of Washingtonville, presented Proprietor Irvin Snyder, of the Exchange Hotel, with a beautiful pair of elk's antlers that measure ninety inches from tip to tip. This is a very valuable present and is valued at fully fifty dollars. Mr. Snyder is naturally quite proud of his present and says that he would not take three times the value of the antlers for them.—Bloomsburg Daily.

THE CENTENNIAL AT RIDGEVILLE

The centennial anniversary at the Ridgeville church on Sunday proved to be a well-attended and successful affair. The event was the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the Lutheran and Reformed congregations which worship in the church and embraced the two dates, 1803 and 1903.
The church was beautifully decorated with flowers ferns and leaves in addition to the colors of each denomination. There was a large attendance, morning and evening and much interest was shown in the services. The program was carried out with special credit to the participants.

RETURNED TO DANVILLE

Richard Butler, a pioneer iron worker who left this city thirty-seven years ago, is revisiting Danville. Mr. Butler's case forms a touching illustration of how unstable, fleeting and little to be relied upon the things of this life are.
Previous to the war Mr. Butler was employed at the blast furnaces owned by Grove Bros., later the property of Waterman and Beaver. His residence here covered many years during which he enjoyed the acquaintance and friendship of the leading men of Danville and vicinity. When about 43 years of age he removed with his family to Jasper County, Indiana. Here he went to farming and prospered. As years advanced, however, death began to play sad havoc with his hopes. A son and daughter died. Seven years ago his son, John, the only surviving child, left for the Klondike and never returned. He was long ago given up as lost. The final stroke fell on the old man last January when the wife of his youth who went west with him was removed by death. This left Mr. Butler alone on the verge of 80 years so far as wife and children were concerned entirely alone in the world.
His home in the west had no longer any charm. His mind reverted to his old home in the East and he found consolation in the thought that there were friends remaining there whose companionship would cheer the few remaining years of life. He accordingly sold his farm and arranged his affairs for a long absence.
Mr. Butler was seen at James Dailley's by a representative of the Morning News yesterday and he was in a very dejected mood. He had traveled nearly a thousand miles only to find himself quite as much alone in the town where he started in life as in the west where his later years were spent. He said he had expected to find many of his old friends and fellow-workmen remaining, but Daniel Morgan, superintendent, John Tooley, engineer, Frederick Carolsky, James Maguire and Patrick Doyle, "keepers" of the furnaces, all are gone. In fact, of our entire population the only ones surviving with whom he had any acquaintance are James Welsh, James Connelly, Sr., John Tooley, and Samuel and Michael Powers, the latter probably the oldest resident in Danville being 95 years of age.
The old man declared that he felt like a stranger in Danville and that he had no heart to remain. He did not know where he would go next.
The Pennsylvania & W. station have now completed their work. Not only has the outside been very nicely finished, but the interior, walls and ceiling, has been tastefully painted in soft and harmonious colors.
None of the railroads passing through town can be charged with lack of enterprise nor with failing to do their part to keep our town abreast with the most progressive places.
The D. L. & W. railroad company, whose buildings were only recently painted, in the near future will lay a pavement of Belgian blocks about the station, while the Pennsylvania in a few days will have cellar heat installed in addition to electric light and its vitrified brick pavement just completed.
