It was an interesting sight. The object first of all was to clear the track. One by one the loaded cars were seized and dragged out of the mix-up. As they rolled over the soft coal was dumped on the road bed, but this proved a slight obstacle and was soon shoveled aside, while another gang rebuilt the track as fast as the wreck was cleared away. It was not until the middle of the afternoon that the wreck was removed and the track was repaired. Meanwhile the freight trains were sent around by Shamokin and the passenger trains transferred at the wreck.
