An Effective Ally.

Fred C. Kirkendall, the Democratic mayor-elect of Wilkesbarre, attributes his victory at the polls on Tuesday last to advertising. Following in the footsteps of Governor Douglas, of Massachusetts, he used newspaper space liberally during the campaign, as pealing to the voters of all parties through both Democratic and Republican journals, with the result that he received 2,300 plurality, while the only other successful Democrat on the ticket had a margin of but 80. Advertising is an effective ally in any undertaking, whether political, religious or commercial.
