

Consolation

By KEITH GORDON

Through the stained glass above the pinnacles and roses of the midday sun...

"Opposite him and just behind the bride the maid of honor stood. For the moment she, too, had forgotten the guests...

There was a stir about her like the rust of the wind. For a second she was too lost in thought to understand...

"He's Ethel's husband now—Ethel's husband," she said sternly to herself...

"You are very rude!" she said lightly, but at his grave, sincere "Believe me, I have not meant to offend you..."

"Seems rather like the end of things, doesn't it?" he observed as they turned into the doorway...

"From our standpoint, yes," was the listless answer. Then she caught her lip between her teeth and darted a quick, inquiring glance at him...

"My poor little girl," murmured the best man softly. "Weddings are always sad, don't you think?" she gasped out, dabbing at her eyes...

"I think I never saw Rymer so utterly crushed as he was when his first poem appeared in print."

"Save Him Money." "Why do you always agree with your wife in everything?" she said. "I find it cheaper to do than buy diamonds to square myself."

On the Journey

By CICELY ALLEN

"I am very sorry it cannot be arranged," said the young man, with a dejected wave of his hand...

"He looked at her blankly, then flung himself down the sleeper to the smoking compartment. 'Well, I do think she's a bit harsh'..."

"The young man spoke sharply. 'I am a physician. Porter, bring me that long, narrow black bag from my berth.'"

"It is certain that the thin, green field would stretch away in the distance until lost over some little elevation. At one place the road was cut through a hill..."

"My wife suddenly widened. 'Mr. Carter, why didn't you?' 'I was afraid of my having to put Mr. Carter out of my berth with you, but I couldn't get him another lower in the car, and he stubbornly refused to buy up a drawing room.'"

"'Yes, I know,'" said McKean. "I saw your name on your luggage. But now you're going to sleep, and if you don't mind I shall sit here beside you and see you are not rocked off when we make a fast run.'"

"'You are very rude!'" she said lightly, but at his grave, sincere "Believe me, I have not meant to offend you..."

As if a sharp, red-hot iron had been thrust into her back...

"'I am very sorry it cannot be arranged,'" said the young man, with a dejected wave of his hand...

ROAD 5,000 YEARS OLD.

Some of the most ancient highways in the world. The road from Homs to Hamun runs almost due north, a straight white line cutting across the green fields...

"The carriage road is French, too, and a very good road it is. Some men were repairing it with a most ingenious roller. It was a great round stone, drawn by two oxen and having its axle prolonged by a twenty foot pole...

"All along the ride we were reminded of the past. It is a fertile soil, but the very wheatfields are different from ours. Only a few yards in width, they are often of tremendous length. It is the rubbish of the house, built up and piled up as the Roman times...

"Every now and then we passed a tall, or great hemispherical mound, built of the rubbish of a dozen ruined towns, for even as late as Roman times there was a well cultivated and populous country...

FAMOUS ENGLISH WELLS.

Some of whose waters are charged with Magnesium and Calcium. Though there are hundreds of wells supposed to possess medicinal power scattered all over England...

THE COMMON SPARROW.

It is not always the selfish vagabond He is painted. The house sparrow has been called a misanthrope, a street gamin, a vagabond, a thief, and in her opinion she called bird lovers, yet, in my opinion, he is one of our most interesting birds...

One day, as I was walking up street past a large pile of refuse, a few sparrows were collected. I saw something which has much increased my esteem for the so called little street gamin. It was in nesting time, and young birds hardly able to fly were quite common. As I walked on my attention was attracted by one of these in the middle of the road alone. He was sitting on a twig of a small tree, giving out a little disconsolate chirp...

RUSSIAN WOMEN.

The Many Restrictions to Which They Are Now Subjected. It is difficult for an American to understand that freedom as we know it does not exist in Russia. There the legal position of woman is far from satisfactory. She hardly ever belongs to herself, but is always under the tutelage of some one.

"'You are very rude!'" she said lightly, but at his grave, sincere "Believe me, I have not meant to offend you..."

ONE CAUSE OF ILLNESS.

Ridiculous Fads That Spring From a Wanting of Knowledge. A famous physician upon being asked recently what is the chief cause of ill health replied: "Thinking and talking about it all the time. This ceaseless introspection in which so many of the rising generation of nervous folk indulge is certainly wearing them out. When they are not worrying as to whether they sleep too much or too little they are fretting over the amount of food they take or the quantity of exercise necessary for them. In a short time they never give themselves a moment's peace. Our grandfathers did not concern themselves with these questions. They ate, drank, slept, as nature prompted them. Undoubtedly they were healthier in mind and body for their sublime indifference, and if we asked ourselves fewer questions we should have less time to analyze or imagine ailments."
