Harry M'Graw, laborer. It was one of that class of accidents which cannot be rightfully or correctly explained, for the officials were positive in their declaration, that the cable was examined daily and not the slightest sign of a defect could be found in any part of it. They regretted the accident as much as anyone and worked hard and diligently to locate the bodies and succeeded after hours of strenuous efforts.

The bodies of the unfortunate men were horribly mangled. Some did not have a sound bone. The flesh in certain parts was torn into ribbons. Blood poured from the wounds. It was said, it was pitiful and sorrowful to observe the procession of the bodies from the head of the shaft to the ambulance wagons. It was a scene where there were no smiles, but a horrified expression on every face.

For how could it be otherwise, as the miners left their home, and their loved ones without the slightest premonition of trouble or the doom that awaited them. They reported at the clerks at the office and then made their way to the head of the shaft. Two carriage loads descended to the bottom. Ten men got on the third. They laughed and joked with each other, as miners usually do and there were no sad faces when the ten men left the tom, a distance of four hundred feet.

The ride of these unfortunate men can be better imagined than described. It did not take the carriage long to get headway and with terriffic speed it rushed to the bottom, carrying its load of human beings to eternity.

A Feature.

A feature of Lyman H. Howe's Moving Pictures which will be in Danville on Saturday evening, April 29th, is that every picture is vivid with life, and authentic. Every picture, too, is accompanied with admirable and ingenious sounds in instant unison with every action of the scene which makes the spectator imagine he is seeing actual life itself-life of world-wide travel and world-wide interest in all its lights and shades; a studious blend- Press. ing of the humorous with the pathetic the educational with the amusing, and all with a rapidity and precision that creates its own demand for regular return visits.

If you have never seen moving pictures that thoroughly pleased you, go and see Mr. Howe's masterful production; if you have seen what you censidered pleasing, go anyway and see those that are infinitely better-perfect and steady, regardless of where or when you saw others; for the Lyman H. Howe moving pictures are today, as ever, the only edition deluxe of moving pictures in America.

THE EGG DANCE.

France-A Royal Romance. In very ancient times a most curiou usual hour, gave their number to the Easter custom prevailed in France Wooing lads and lasses would come forward as applicants for the "egg and matrimonial dance." A hundred eggs were arranged on a level sward spread with sand, and all the young tenantry selected their partners to dance on the green among the eggs.

The story is told by an old chronicler surface and descended into the mine. | that Philibert, duke of Savoy, was out | ties makes it difficult for a Frenchman her. All the tenantry were dancing on the green, the eggs were laid, and the lovers were treading a measure of the national dance amid them. Few there were who managed to dance through without breaking some of the obstructions. If they succeeded not even the "nay" of the parents prevailed to break up the match. It was an evidence of the intentions of Providence to smile > on the union. While many had tried and been unsuccessful, the duke besought the princess to try the dance with him. Though it was the first time they had met, she agreed, and they executed the national dance without breaking an egg. They were greeted with enthusiastic cheers, and, as it was a sure sign that the were affianced by divine will and their wedded life would be one of great bliss, they bowed to the fates that ordained it so, and in the sentiment of the romance they were "married and lived happily ever after."-Philadelphia
