WHAT VACCINATION DID WHEN TESTED

The following letter from John T. Hyatt, of Jersey Shore, former Vice-Consul at Santiago, to Commissioner of Health Samuel G. Dixon, telling of his personal experience in fighting smallpox with vaccine virus in Cuba; is of particular interest at this time when the citizens of different sections of the State are expressing in strong terms their approval or disapproval of the compulsory vaccination law.

RELATING TO NOMINATIONS

February 2nd is the last day for filing certificates of nomination of Boroughs and townships. February 5th is the last day for filing nomination papers for boroughs and townships.

The two weeks or so intervening between the present and the above dates will be occupied with considering the matter of candidates and making nominations. The Republicans have selected January 26th as the time for holding their primaries in the Borough and District. The Democrats, realizing that the time is narrowing down, are beginning to bestir themselves, but as a general thing have not arranged any dates.

One hears very little on the subject of candidates, although a couple of very important offices are to be filled. For the office of Chief Burgess in either party it does not seem that any one is seriously considered as a candidate. It is doubtful also whether there will be much of a fight for the office of Tax Receiver for the Borough.

WILL MEET IN COURT HOUSE

The fourth annual meeting of the Montom County School Directors' Association will be held in the Court House on Tuesday, January 30th.

Each director attending this meeting is entitled to a per diem of two ($2.00) dollars and mileage at the rate of 3 cents a mile, paid by the district in which he serves.

The annual meeting of the Directors' Association takes the place of "Directors' Day" which formerly was a day of the County Institute. It is quite an improvement over the old order and by one or two practical addresses and the reading of papers and a general discussion by the members, the directors of each district will have an opportunity to learn what is new and advanced in methods of instruction in school management and how the directors of other districts have overcome difficulties and vexed problems that confront the public schools.

Local grave diggers, especially those at Old Fellows' and Fairview cemeteries where hard digging at a certain depth is a factor will be very glad to learn that the State Department of Health has prescribed new regulations for the burying of human bodies in the cemeteries of Pennsylvania to meet the objections, which have been raised to the original regulations adopted recently by Commissioner Dixon.

The new regulation prescribed provides that except by special permission from the department no interment of any human body shall be made in any public or private burial ground unless the distance from the top of the box containing the coffin or casket be at least five feet from the natural surface of the ground, except where solid rock or water may be encountered.

Hon. Alexander Billmeyer of Washingtonville was in this city yesterday. He states that the animals in his game preserve are having a fine time and are thriving nicely during the mild winter. A severe winter sets hard on wild animals and this holds good with the deer and other animals in a game preserve as well as with the wild animals in the forest.

FIREMEN'S RELIEF IN DANVILLE

At the Friendship Engine House, Saturday evening, was held the annual election of officers of the Danville branch of the Firemen's Relief Association, of Pennsylvania.

The object of the Association is to pay a benefit to a fireman who is injured in the performance of duty. The funds of the organization accrue from a tax of 2 per centum levied on the premiums of all fire insurance companies outside the State that write in Pennsylvania.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Gotschall entertained a number of friends at an evening supper at their home in Frosty Valley on Saturday evening.

The services were conducted by Rev. N. E. Cleaver, pastor of Trinity M. E. church, of which the deceased for many years was a member. The pall bearers were: A. L. Voris, David Roderick, John Patton, Walter Langner, Howard Klingner and Benjamin Harris.

The horse is the one used by Mr. Evans on his route, and was bolted and given hay Tuesday evening as usual in the barn of his father-in-law, Richard Unstead on East Third street, Bloomsburg. Yesterday morning when Mr. Unstead went to the barn he found that the horse had eaten none of the hay, and a further examination disclosed a large quantity of oats mixed with parsnip green in the trough.

ELECTRIC RAILWAYS FREIGHT CARRIERS

The sentiment in favor of electric railways carrying freight is steadily growing. This is a matter of the utmost importance to a large proportion of the citizens of the state who will be greatly benefited by a large reduction in the local freight rates, which they are now forced to pay.

The freight consigned over electric railways would also be delivered at its destination and not at central freight depots from whence it would have to be carried to its ultimate destination. The storekeepers in the smaller towns, and even cities of considerable size, would be greatly benefited by direct freight communication by electric railway from their store front with the store front of the wholesaler from whom they make their purchases.

BOTTLING MACHINERY STARTED UP

The bottling department of the Hanover Brewing Company's plant started up on Saturday as an experiment. It was visited by a number of people during the afternoon, who were much interested in the equipment of the plant, which embraces all the modern devices known and is a marvel as showing the advancement made in a few years in the single branch of bottling.

The bottling will be carried on in a new brick building situated southwest of the main building, recently completed. The facilities could not be well improved on, while the beer used is a special brew made for that purpose.

VERY SUCCESSFUL SKIN GRAFTING

Howard Geiger, the 16-year-old son of Levi Geiger, Limestone township, who was so shockingly injured by being dragged under a cultivator last summer, has now practically recovered after a long siege of over five months of suffering. It is one of the most remarkable cases of skin grafting on record.

The accident will be easily recalled by Morning News readers. On June 10th last Howard Geiger was riding a cultivator on his father's farm. One of the horses becoming restive struck the tongue, which caused it to break. As the result of this the front part of the cultivator dropped, which caused Howard to fall from the seat striking the ground right in front of the teeth; at the same moment the horses sprang forward and ran away dragging the boy along under the cultivator. It was a most shocking accident. Dragging Howard along the horses ran fully one-fourth of a mile the boy being released as the cultivator crossed a deep ditch, which permitted his body to drop below the range of the teeth.

As might be imagined his body was one mass of cuts and bruises, while his left arm was injured to such an extent as to make the possibility of recovery very remote, indeed. Every vestige of skin was stripped from the arm from near the shoulder to the wrist. The skin was stripped in one mass by the action of the harrow teeth just as a stocking is pulled downward off a human limb. A surgeon's knife could not have made a neater job of it. In addition to this on the under side of the arm above the elbow the muscle itself was torn away and the bone was exposed.

Such was the case that our townsman, Dr. R. S. Patten, then of Washingtonville, was called to graze with. That he at once reassured the family and set about to grow a new skin on the flayed arm and at the same time to restore the use of that member attests alike to the grip that the physician had upon his profession and his confidence in modern methods of surgery. That he has succeeded under the circumstances is a splendid testimonial alike to his skill, close application and devotion to the welfare of his patient.

The injured arm from its contact with the plough field was in a dreadful condition and it was fully three weeks before the physician could get the arm clean and ready for the process of skin grafting. It was necessary to administer anesthetics to the patient each day for a week while dressing the injury.

It was nearly a month after the accident before the first skin could be grafted and then the surface to be covered was of such dimensions as to nearly discourage hope of success. There seemed to be but practically one source from which to obtain the skin for the process of grafting and that was from the boy himself. All the rest of the family were needed to conduct the affairs of the farm and to have placed them under the surgeon's knife in this way would have incapacitated them for work.
