I am determined that the appalling harvest that typhoid is reaping in Pennsylvanja shall be cut down. It can be done-it must be done. If, beginning today, the nurse or attendant in charge of a typhoid fever case will see to it that the discharges from the patient are thoroughly disinfected before they are carried out of the room in which the typhoid victim is confined we can almost wipe out typhoid in a year's time. I realize that this is a big "if," yet it is one of the simplest ways in the world to blot out a disease that is appallingly epidemic throughout the whole state, if only each and every person to whom this message is directed will hear it and

DRANK TO SAVE A CITY.

Legend of the Quaint Old Town of Rothenburg. Much is made of the legends and history of the quaint mediaeval town of Rothenburg, as is natural where they lay so much stress on their past glories, says the Metropolitan Magazine. The shop windows are full of big glass cups with painted figures of the emperor, the seven electors and other worthies (souvenirs for the unwary tourist), and in some of the decorations of inns and wine rooms a man is pictured drinking out of such a cup, accompanied by verses alluding to a Georg Nusch and to a Meister-Trunk. We wondered about it till we found a local guide book with the explanation. It seems this Nusch by his fa-nous drink saved the town several centuries ago. He was a senator and a son of the innkeeper of the Rother Hahn (Red Cock), which is still standing a little way down the street here. Many of the inns are hundreds of years old and are run under the same names they have always borne. Well, during the wars of the reformation this was a Protestant town and was besieged and taken by Tilly after a spirited the patient before they leave the sick resistance. At this all the people stood and starcup held three quarts) until Nusch, thinking that would at least be the pleasanter death and probably used to drinking a great deal, said he would try it. Everybody was breathless with suspense, fearing he would give out before emptying the cup, but on and on he went till the last drop was drained. He had only strength enough left Clyde Biddle. to hand the cup to Tilly and say, "Thy promise," when he fell fainting to the ground. He recovered in a few days, however, and lived to be eighty. And Tilly kept his word.

The First Submarine Boats. In 1644 Van Drebbel, a Dutchman, built in London a submarine boat which could contain twelve rowers as well as some passengers, and on one occasion James I. descended beneath the Thames in the vessel. The inventor is said to have discovered a liquid possessing the important property of rendering the air in the confined space under hatches suitable for repeated inhalation and thus to prolong the time which could be spent under water. The first submarine boat used in warfare, Connecticut. It was managed by one man, who could remain thirty minutes under water. Fulton, a New Yorker, made one to hold eight men, who could under water.

At exactly the right time place and in just the right direction a bump comes forth to be the foundation of the brow tine. In a few more days the bez tine is projected by the invisible architect. In a month the structure is nearly a foot high and all enveloped in a turgid mass of feverish, throbbing blood vessels-the scaffolding and workmen of this surprising structure. Night and day the work is pushed with astounding speed, and in four months this skyscraper is finished, a wonderful structure indeed, for a score of nature's forces have toiled, a myrlad of invisible workmen have done their part, and an edifice that, according to ordinary rules, should have taken a lifetime is here rushed through in a summer and all in absolute silence. August sees the building done, but it is still cluttered with scaffolding. The supplies of blood at the base are reduced and finally discontinued. The antler is no longer in vital touch with the animal. It begins to die. The sensitiveness leaves each part, the velvet covering soon dies, cracks and peels, and the stag assists the process of clearing off the skin by scraping his the courage to speak the truth, the horns on the brushwood. The Alaskan is a richly colored black gray and brown giant, not only the largest deer alive today, but believed to be the largest that ever did exist, since no fossil has been found to equal it in bulk. Its antiers differ chiefly in size from those of the Canadian moose, but Madison Grant claims that they are also more complex and have in the brow antiers a second palmation which s set at right angles to that of the main palmation. In these peculiarities e finds "a startling resemblance is shown to the extinct cervalces, a moose-like deer of pleistocene times, probably ancestral to the genus alces. The greater part of the courage that s needed in the world is not of a herole kind. Courage may be displayed in everyday life as well as in historic fields of action. There needs, for example, the common courage to be honest, the courage to resist temptation, courage to be what we really are and not to pretend to be what we are not. the courage to live honestly within our own means and not dishonestly upon the means of others.-Smiles.

But the feud between herself and Mrs. O'Shaunessy still continued. Mrs. O'Shaunessy used to strut up the aisle "for all the wurruld like an owld hen" with her numerous progeny trailing behind her, and she would shoot a glance over her shoulder at Mrs. Mc-Ginnis. Were not large families just as stylish as pink satin waists?

One evening Mrs. McGinnis came home with a larger bundle than usual. "Shure, it's a whole new wardrobe we'll be having," she said breathlessly. "I'm that excited I can hardly cut the strings! Here's waistcoats for ye, Pat, and some neckties and a foine silk hat. Faix, you'll look loike the mayor himself in it! And here's a dress for me. Silk lined it is too!
