BILL INTRODUCED TO STOP TREATING

HARRISBURG, Jan. 23. A bill to stop treating in any place where vinous, malt or spirituous liquors are sold was introduced in the house this morning by Mr. Thomas of Bucks. It provides that the proprietor of any place of this kind who allows treating shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be subject to a fine of $100 and imprisonment of sixty days. The act defines "treating" thus: "To be the practice of inviting one or more persons to drink any malt, vinous or spirituous liquors as a compliment or as a civility, often in return for the like favor shown."

The old scheme to erect a new county in the upper part of the State and make Hazleton the seat thereof—it was once designed to do this and name the new county Quay county—came up again this morning Mr. Boyle, of Luzerne, presented a bill providing for the erection and organization of new counties out of parts of two adjoining counties.

Mr. Flack, of Bucks, introduced a bill to provide that townships which have abolished the work tax shall get more money from the State. Under an act of April 13, 1905, townships, by a majority vote of the electors, can abolish the work tax; any which do so are to receive annually from the State a sum equivalent to fifteen per cent. of the amount of road tax collected in such townships. The bill read by Mr. Flack this morning amends the second section of that act so that such townships shall receive fifty per cent. of the total collection.

The house today passed finally these two bills, the first of the session:

Enlarging the powers of county commissioners to erect county bridges and empowering them to construct new bridges when existing ones are not sufficient to accommodate traffic.

Amending the act of March 26, 1903, empowering cities to condemn land for certain purposes so that land may be condemned for workhouses, poorhouses and garbage disposal plants.

Promotions in Guard.

Promotions in the national guard will move a little more rapidly for a few years, and there will be a great change in the list of general officers of the State troops if a bill introduced Tuesday night by Senator Godcharles, of Northumberland, is passed. The measure provides that after a man has served forty years in the guard he may apply for retirement, and that when an officer reaches the age of sixty-four years he shall be retired without further ado. Officers so retired are to be advanced to the next higher grade, and at the expiration of the commission held at the time of retirement they may apply for new commissions at the higher grade, which they will hold as retired officers during good behavior, which virtually means for life. Officers on the retired list may be recalled for any duty, except commanding troops. "It is my idea to introduce a bill which shall be for the good of the guard as a whole," said Senator Godcharles in speaking of the measure. Senator Godcharles is conversant with guard matters and needs, having served as inspector of rifle practice in the twelfth regiment until less than a year ago.

A YEAR TOO SOON.

After all the glorious time the people of Hazleton had at their "Old Home Week" it does seem too soon that a borough official should have discovered that they had it just a year too soon. This discovery was in the shape of a seal which very clearly shows that 1867 was the year of the organization of the borough. The Hazleton Standard says that now is the time for anybody to come forward who wants to engineer another reunion next summer.

Laying Pipe at Hospital.

Up to the present the winter has not been sufficiently severe to hold up outdoor work on the hospital grounds. One of the most important pieces of work ever carried through during winter is approaching completion at present. This is the laying of pipe to conduct water from the pumping station to the gate house, a distance of fifteen hundred feet. The work has been in progress for some weeks past and although rendered unpleasant and at times difficult by the damp and wet weather it has suffered but few interruptions. Three-inch pipe is being laid.

Rails For Kulp's Road.

The Shamokin Trolley Extension Company on Friday let a contract with the Pennsylvania Steel company, of Steelton, for 2,340 tons of rails, which will be laid as soon as possible over an eighteen-mile stretch between Shamokin and Sunbury.

Overproduction of Coal.

There has been an overproduction of coal in the anthracite fields owing largely to the mild weather prevailing and storage room is so much taken up that some collieries have already closed temporarily and others will likely follow next week.

Want to Change Name.

A movement is now being made to change the name of the "United American Mechanics" to "National Order of Americans" and this question is now being voted on in the various councils of the order all over the country.

So many carp got into a sluice in a mill race at the Britton mill, at Thornburg, near Philadelphia, that the flow of water was checked and the mill stopped. After drawing them out with a rake the mill was started again.

MAKING WAMPUM.

A Process That Requires Both Patience and Skill.

With certain tribes wampum is still highly prized and necklaces are worn by men, women and children when they are the fortunate possessors of them. To make wampum various kinds of shells are used, white and those having a lavender hue being most prized.

The thin shells are broken into little pieces and by aid of nippers are made nearly round as possible. When each piece is drilled in the center, the old time fire kindling style of drill being used, the shells are then strung and rolled with the hand on a flat stone, which grinds them until they are smooth and even.

Comparatively few Indians among those who prize wampum beads most highly have the skill or patience to make them, even though they had the materials. The fact is there are many who would like to make them, and it often happens that long pilgrimages must be made to secure the necessities for really fine beads, and, as with the white man's trinkets, that which is "far fetched and dear bought" is most sought after for ornamentation.

Around some of the ancient ruins in the country the little disks of wampum are often found in the sand, and it is probable that they were deposited in the graves in very early times and washed out or exposed by the wind's action. These ruins are in the best state of preservation of any in the country. Absolutely nothing is known of their builders, and the origin of these ruins was as much a mystery when Coronado first saw them in 1540, when he made his famous invasion, as it is to the people of the present day.—Indian's Friend.

Oxygen and Mushrooms.

A singular way of removing oxygen from the air by the aid of a plant is as follows: Inside a glass bell jar, suspended over water, is placed a mushroom, and sunlight is allowed to fall upon the plant. The mushroom absorbs the oxygen from the air in the jar, and the carbonic acid formed during the process is absorbed by the water, which gradually rises in the jar to one-fifth of its original level. The mushroom is only suspended, as may be proved by introducing beside it a green plant, when it will recommence to vegetate, being nourished by the oxygen exhaled from the fresh plant.

Hope.

"Mr. Merchant," said the new clerk, preparing to ask for more money, "I think you understand the business pretty well now, don't you?"

"Yes," interrupted his employer. "Well, keep at it four or five years. Perhaps you'll understand it then as well as you think you do now."—Philadelphia Press.

How He Remembered.

Professor Huxley had a funny way of remembering certain anatomical details of the human heart. On the left side of the heart there is a valve with two flaps resembling a bishop's mitre and known as the mitral valve. The corresponding valve on the right side has three flaps. The professor, who could not remember the respective positions, said Huxley, with his skeptic's humor, was by the reflection that a bishop could never be in the right.

From Frying Pan to Fire.

"Life is full of contradictions and non-payments of alimony," complained the woman as she took her seat reluctantly at her desk on the morning after the dance. "When I was married and had more leisure than anything else the days were long and deadly, but now that I am free and life might be one endless dream of gayety I have to work."—New York Press.

The Story of a Medicine.

Its name—"Golden Medical Discovery" was suggested by one of its most important and valuable ingredients—Golden Seal root.

Nearly forty years ago, Dr. Pierce discovered that he could, by the use of pure, triple-refined glycerine, add to a certain degree of constantly maintained heat and with the aid of apparatus and appliances designed for that purpose, extract from our most valuable native medicinal roots their curative properties much better than by the use of alcohol so generally employed. So the now world-famed "Golden Medical Discovery," for the cure of weak stomach, indigestion, or irregular liver, or constipation, or headache, or neuralgia, or rheumatism, or kindred derangements was first made, as it ever has been, without a particle of alcohol in its composition.

A glance at the full list of its ingredients, printed on every bottle wrapper, will show that it is made from the most valuable medicinal roots found growing in our American forests. All these ingredients are of the highest quality, and are secured from the leading medical botanists of the United States.

"Golden Medical Discovery" is advised by all the best medical authorities, and has been compiled by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., and will be mailed free to any one asking same by postal card, or letter addressed to the Doctor as above. From these endorsements, copied from standard medical books of all the different countries which practice it, it will be seen that the ingredients composing the "Golden Medical Discovery" are advised not only for the cure of the above mentioned diseases, but also for the cure of all catarrhal, bronchial and throat affections, accompanied with chronic discharges, hoarseness, sore throat, lingering, or hang-over coughs, and all those wasting affections which, if not promptly and properly treated are liable to terminate in consumption. Take Dr. Pierce's Discovery in time and it will perform miracles. It will not cure consumption in its advanced stages. No medicine will. It will cure the affection, but lead up to consumption, if taken in time.

YOUR OWN FACE.

"How curious it is," said the philosopher, "that the person for whom you care most on earth, the one you see of most and who receives your most constant attention, is the one whose countenance is least familiar to you."

"Who is that?" asked the visitor.

"Yourself," said the philosopher. "It is a fact that if people could be duplicated and could meet themselves in the street very few would recognize themselves. We look at ourselves many times during the 243 days of the year. We say our eyes are blue or brown or whatever other color they may be, our hair black, our chin peaked, our forehead high. We know every lineament of our face from constant study and attention, yet when we turn away from the mirror we cannot conjure up a picture of ourselves.

"We know just how our friends and even acquaintances look. We can fancy we can see them sitting so or standing so, and their varying expressions under different circumstances are clear to us even though we may not have seen them for years, but when it comes to ourselves we cannot fill in even the outlines of the picture. We may laugh, we may cry, we may frown, but we do not know how we look while we are doing it. Photographs do not help us. We have never seen ourselves in the flesh. Mirrors and pictures are poor aids when we sit down and try to see ourselves with the mind's eye.

"That is why people are so deeply interested in anybody who is said to resemble them. Just say to a man, 'I know somebody who is the dead image of you,' and he will never rest till he sees that person. Then if the likeness really is true he will own that up to that time he had had no conception of how he really looked."

The visitor smiled wily.

"I wish you wouldn't talk like that," she said. "It makes me feel positively uncanny."—New York Press.

LAWS IN CHINA.

They Take No Account of the Intentions of the Accused.

The incompatibility of laws based on diverse civilizations is nowhere more marked than in China, says Hosea B. Morse in the Atlantic. There no bankruptcy law is possible. If a debtor's own estate will not suffice to pay his debts the creditor must be made good for by his father, brothers or uncles; if a debtor absconds his immediate family are promptly imprisoned; if the debtor returns he is put in prison and kept there indefinitely, so long as he can find money for his daily food until released by payment in full or by death. This is the law.

When in 1850 Admiral Ting found himself forced to surrender Weihaiwei and his fleet, he committed suicide. By this courageous step, technically dying before surrender, he saved his immediate family—father, mother, sons and daughters—from decapitation and their property from confiscation, the penalty when a commander surrenders an imperial fortress. This is the law.

When in the old days an English gunner caused the death of a Chinese by firing a salute from a cannon from which by oversight the ball had not been removed, he was seized, tried and executed. And in 1839, when in the course of a disturbance with English and American sailors at Canton a Chinese was killed, the authorities demanded that if the guilty person could not be detected and executed the whole party should be handed over for execution. This is the law.

Intention is never taken into account. A dollar for a dollar, an eye for an eye, a life for a life, and all for the emperor and his representatives—this is the law of China.

The Nickname.

The public man in America who has never been tagged with a nickname may be just as efficient and worthy of praise as his brethren who are known as "Bill" and "Joe," but he has not achieved an equal measure of popularity. Nicknames are often inspired by affection than by aversion. "The men of the people," so called, are invariably nicknamed. Venerable citizens still refer to "Abe" Lincoln, dwelling with reminiscence upon the abbreviation. Nicknames both good and bad are as old as history. In this country the people have a way of abbreviating the names of the men they really like and assigning their full titles to the men who prefer dignity to popularity.—Pittsburg Gazette.

Has anybody ever stopped to think how many male and female ancestors it took to bring us into the world? First, of course, it was necessary to have a father and mother, and our father and mother must have had a father and mother, and so on back to the time of Christ. A careful calculation of all these ancestors shows that there must have been 139,235,017,489,534,976 births to bring one of us into the world. And this is only from the time of Christ and not from the beginning of the world. According to one authority, if from a single couple for 5,000 years each husband and wife had married at the age of twenty-one and there had been no deaths the population of the earth would be 2,199,515, followed by 144 ciphers. To hold such a population it would take several worlds the size of ours.

Lord Rosebery's Definition.

It is to Lord Rosebery that we are indebted for the most modern definition of memory. "What is memory?" said a friend one day to him. "Memory," replied his lordship, "is the feeling that steals over us when we listen to our friends' original stories."—London Bystander.

THOS. G. VINCENT, Clerk of Q. S. Danville, Pa., Jan. 1st, 1907.

Mathematical Love.

"Do you love me as much as I love you?" The Barnard college girl smiled. "Do you wish me to prove it?" she said. For answer he bent forward, expecting to receive the usual blinding of the Promises.

"I mean mathematically," she continued, drawing her face back. "Now, don't be cross. Listen! We belong to a certain circle. We are the radii of that circle. Two radii of a circle are equal to a third radius of the same circle."

He wasn't good at mathematics, but he conceded the point.

"Things which are equal to the same thing are equal to one another. Well, supposing that you and I are equal to X, an unknown quantity."

"I was perfectly willing to suppose anything."

"X is our love for each other. We are equal to X. Things which are equal to the same thing are equal to one another. Therefore I must love you in the same ratio that you love me."

He didn't wait for any more mathematics. The "X" became "Xmas."

Friendship.

Friendship, this beautiful relation of life to life, soul to soul, is of most serious import. It sometimes makes our warmest friend in reality our worst enemy. Bad qualities in a friend are false lights in the love eye. Many of us are constituted so that it is easy for us to form friendships. Let us be careful of those thus brought under our influence and power. Let us keep them unsoiled. Let us feel that grave responsibilities lie in our friendships and that they also enshrine glorious opportunities.

It was the first performance of one of those over-advertised shows from New York.

"You don't think much of it," said the manager in surprise. "Why, the whole house is sold."

The critic smiled knowingly.

"I don't doubt it," he replied as he jotted down another note. "I heard several people in the audience say the same thing by the way."

He didn't wait for any more mathematics. The "X" became "Xmas."

COWS MILKED ON CAPITOL HILL

HARRISBURG, Jan. 23.

At the meeting of the State board of agriculture and the Pennsylvania Dairy union in the old executive building there was a test of a milking machine in the basement of the building this morning. This was the first time cows have ever been milked in a State building. At 9:30 o'clock this morning four fine cows were driven into the basement of the building, and in the presence of a large number of people, including J. J. Hill, master of the State graze, secretary of Agriculture Critchfield, "Farmer" William T. Creasy, and Prof. H. E. Van Norman, president of the Pennsylvania Dairy union, the milking machine was applied and started by an operator, and it did the work.

"This milking machine," said President Van Norman, "acts on the principle of suction and pulsation. It milks the cow just as a calf would in feeding from the mother cow."

She Is Single.

Good luck has befallen Miss Mabel Sprague, of Minersville, a rich uncle dying in London, England, leaving her a fortune estimated at $25,000. Miss Sprague is an attractive young lady and it will be interesting to many young men to know that she is single.
