THINGS CHANGED

With the induction into office this week of Robert K. Young, of Tioga, as auditor general, and Henry Houck, of Lebanon, as secretary of internal affairs, the transformation on capitol hill is complete, and, with the excep-tion of Robert McAfee, of Allegheny, and Insurance Commissioner David Martin, of Philadelphia, none of the conspicuous figures in the political arena of recent years will remain.

It used to be that all the prominent State offices were regularly filled by men who took the lead in the management of the Republican organization, and at least were actively engaged in party work and known to the people chiefly as politicians. Today the governor is not a politician, in the ordin-ary acceptance of the term; the State treasurer is a Democrat who was never heard of in State politics until nominated for the office; the incoming aud-itor general has participated in public affairs only as an "insurgent" mem-ber of the legislature, and the new secretary of internal affairs has been deputy superintendent of public in struction, far from the whirl of political strife, for nigh forty years.

Other instances are equally striking. Samuel B. Rambo, recently appointed superintendent of public grounds and buildings, never did anything in politics but vote. He was put into the place because, as superintendent of construction for George F. Payne & Schoch of Pine Street Lutheran church Co., the capitol contractors, he was yesterday left for Milton to attend the thoroughly familiar with the physical session of the Lutheran Synod, which conditions of the building and capable of giving the State the full benefit of Synod will continue in session five his practical knowledge of the construction and care of a great property such as this. things, for, as General Grant once pointed out, it is much easier to finance a national surplus than a deficit. While it must be gratifying to those in control of the government that the year will close with such a creditable showing, it is equally pleasing for the 90, 000,000 of citizens to know that their trade with the rest of the world is growing at a handsome rate. In the first three quarters of the current fiscal year the exports amounted to $1,432,-000,000, a gain of $107,000,000 over the like period of 1906. During the same nine months imports rose $152,000,000. reaching the sum of $1,065,000,000. This expansion of 8 per cent. in exports and 6 per cent. in imports means that for the full year the nation's foreign commerce will greatly exceed the three billion dollar mark which it touched for the first time in 1906. There is no basis for the assertion that the last congress appropriated more money than the government's resources will amount to this year. In the sums so appropriated was a single item of $212,000,000 for post offices nearly every dollar of which will, of course, go back into the treasury.

Chief Mincemover heard the noise from city hall and hurrying down found Lewis on the east side of the street. In his indignation the man flung his money down upon the pavement (but picked it up again); then, with the lofty air of a tragedian, he flung his toil-stained handcherchief upon the sidewalk and in language that was anything but choice and modest de-clared, in effect, that he could van-quish the chief of police of Danville. The latter, still resisting more or less, was landed in the lock-up, whence, at 7:30, he was taken to the office of Justice Orlesby, where he was arraign-ed for "acting in a loud, disorderly and indecent manner." He protested against the arrest and said he couldn't see any use in paying a princely salary to a chief-of-police who would refuse to make an arrest when he was told to do so. The swear-ing out of a warrant was a piece of formality that he chose to regard as unimportant and he waved it aside. The justice acquainted him with the penalty, a fue of five dollars for ditional. Lewis demurred at first, but when he learned that it was either fine and costs or five days in the lockup he inuded over the coin.
