

NEWS ITEMS FROM 'ROUND THE STATE

Three hundred employes of the American State company at Bangor, Northampton county, who had been on strike, resumed work on Monday at the old scale of prices.

Mrs. Margaret Bressler, of Harrisburg, on Monday gave her 8-days-old daughter a powder intended for herself, causing the babe's death. The mother is almost heartbroken over her mistake.

Mrs. Susan Witherow, a widow, residing three miles from California, Washington county, was held up by foreigners near her home, on Monday, and robbed of $1,485, all her savings acquired by years of toil.

Jacob F. Ran, aged 52 years, fell dead while seated at the dinner table at York, on Monday at noon. Death, it is thought, was caused by heart trouble, aggravated by hard work that morning digging garden.

Martin Schater disappeared from Tunkhannock three months ago, and on Monday his body was found in the Susquehanna river, near Nanticoke. It is believed he fell from a railroad bridge, near Tunkhannock.

Mrs. Janet Hoagland, of Upper Wakesfield township, Bucks county, was seriously wounded on Monday by the accidental discharge of a revolver in the hands of her son, Harry, aged 18 years, who was preparing to clean the weapon.

Jacob Rice, of Franklin, aged 56 years, died on Monday from blood poisoning, resulting from a pimple which appeared behind his right ear three days before, and which he rubbed open with his hand while at work in an oil refinery.

Harry Wolfe, of York, was hurled from a forty-foot pole to the sidewalk on Monday by receiving an electric shock of 2,200 volts, having grabbed the charged wire by mistake. He was badly burned and sustained internal injuries and bruises that may prove fatal.

Mrs. Lydia A. White, one of the three surviving daughters of Revolutionary war soldiers, on Monday celebrated her 80th birthday anniversary at her home in Lancaster. Her father served directly under General Washington. Mrs. White still enjoys excellent health.

Emma Stoltzfus, a 10-year-old daughter of J. M. Stoltzfus, a farmer residing near Leola, Lancaster county was shot in the side on Monday afternoon by a youth named John Beller, employed on the farm, who was shooting at a target with another boy. The ball pierced a kidney and she is in a critical condition.

Wheat is the favorite speculation for "plungers" for the moment, the factors being favorable to speculative activity. The late season, unfavorable conditions, and prospective short age abroad make for uncertainty. The New York Journal of Commerce says there is a probability that our wheat harvest of the present year will fall considerably below that of last year, and it may be under the average of recent years. The increase in north western Canada which was naturally to be expected will probably not be fully realized, and it is fairly certain that the Russian and Roumanian supply will be short. There was sufficient ground for an advance in prices in the actual wheat market, and more especially in options for future delivery, but the moment the speculative spirit was aroused this was sure to be exaggerated. The eager desire to make money quickly by taking risks on margins was awakened and buying orders were lured to the exchanges from every quarter, with the effect of whirling prices upward. The plungers with their millions were quick to seize the opportunity and they will keep up the excitement until the breaking point is reached. Some of them may get hurt, but they can stand it, or if they cannot it will not matter. In the net result it will be the "professionals" who rake in the winnings and "the public" who supply them.

A birthday surprise party was tendered to Mrs. Pierce Brill at her home on East Market street, Monday evening, in honor of her 30th birthday. The evening was spent with music and games and refreshments were served. Mrs. Brill was the recipient of a handsome parlor lamp. On leaving the guests wished the hostess many happy returns of the day.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Madison Temple, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Flannigan, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Winters, Mr. and Mrs. Lafayette Welliver, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Winters, Mr. and Mrs. Tell Heim and son James, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Golick, Madames Whisgold, Archie Earp, Earnest Poehl, Misses Sarah Winters, Katie Wertman, Mary J. Winters, Emma Flickinger, of Hanover; Clyde Swank, William Heim, George, Fogel, Samuel Welliver, William Fogel, James Lewis, Harry Vanhorn, Frank Kramer, Jacob Winters, Jr.

Great Value of Honey. "Honey, one of the most nutritious and delicate of foods, should be eaten more than it is," writes a cooking expert. "Bought in the comb, it is bound to be unadulterated and will keep one free from sore throat and bronchial troubles. I know a number of ladies who use honey as a cosmetic. They apply it to the skin, rub it in well, then wash it off with hot water. The result is a finer complexion, a glowing color, a young, fresh look."—Birmingham Post.

Relaying Crossings.

The D. L. & W. railroad company is repairing crossings or laying new ones where their track is intersected by the various streets of town. Already portions of the crossings at Ferry, Church and Railroad streets have been relaid.

Bank Statements.

The excellent condition of Danville's two national banks may be seen from the statements of condition at the close of business on May 20th, which appear on the second page of this issue.

LOST BOTH LEGS ON RAIL

Chas. Lyons, aged 17 years, of Sunbury, fell beneath a freight train about the middle of the Reading bridge across the Susquehanna at that place, at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon and both legs were cut off.

With three other boys he was riding towards the west side of the river. The others performed in safety the dangerous feat of leaping from the moving train to the short extension of the ties beyond the tracks, but he slipped beneath the wheels. The train went on and none of the crew were aware of what had happened. The boys ran back for assistance. A hand truck was procured, and with Dr. Shindel on board quickly resuscitated the injured boy. Meanwhile the ambulance had been sent for and Lyons was rushed to the Mary M. Packer hospital, where his legs were amputated. One was cut off at the knee and the other at the ankle.

Lyons is the son of Mrs. Susan Lyons, widow of the late John Lyons, of Church street, Sunbury. He has been employed at the table works, and is well known and has many friends there who regret to learn of his misfortune.

Reports from the hospital state that Lyon's condition is most critical.

Why Tears Flow. All human emotions, however slight they may be, either decrease or increase the circulation of the blood. Those emotions that bring tears cause the blood vessels around the eyes to expand, thus flooding the lachrymal or tear glands with blood. The tear glands always secrete a little to keep the eyes cool and moist and carry off specks of dust through the nasal passages, but the extra supply of blood increases this secretion to such an extent that it cannot go off in the usual way, so overflows.

TRAINED BY CRUELTY

Animals, as a Rule, Taught Tricks Through Torture.

KINDNESS IS NOT A FACTOR.

The Result of the Methods Employed, Says an English Writer, Is the Triumph of a Brute Over a Brute by Patient and Persistent Cruelty.

"I have an old fashioned belief that one should never make a damning statement unless he is prepared to prove it up to the hilt. And so I am confronted at the outset with an almost insurmountable difficulty—to the layman who would accurately inform himself of the methods of animal training there is opposed a bulwark of concealment grim and silent as the great wall of China," writes W. Bainton Clarke in the Manchester Chronicle.

"The ill assurance that it is all done by kindness has become a by-word. No true lover of an animal believes it, nor could any reasoning creature, lacking that particular affection, if he will carefully examine such facts as are obvious.

"Granted there are animals of extreme intelligence and ductibility. Granted there are men and women of extraordinary influence over birds and beasts. The best these twin can achieve in combination does not produce an effective stage show, nor can one-hundredth part of the 'entertainment' provided by the trainer be ascribed to his abnormal ability or to the especially acute intelligence of his pupil. It is more probably the triumph of a brute over a brute by patient and persistent cruelty.

"The public judges by what it sees on the stage and remarks in admiration and approval that there was 'no sign of a whip.' An animal exhibitor who was avowedly cruel would be pretty low down in the ranks of showmen. I own a particularly ferocious looking bulldog who goes crazy with delight at the sight of a whip. It has been his pet toy for years and means the beginning of a romp. On the other hand, a movement of the trainer's finger almost imperceptible to the audience may suggest to the powerful imagination of the animal hideous tortures. It may recall the hot irons, the agonizing filtration of a nerve.

"Such appeals to the memory are, in truth, the stock in trade of the animal trainer. What the wretched creature daily goes through during months of preparation can never be known, for the work is carried out in secrecy and sedition. There is rarely a second person present, and the brute cannot speak. That is the most hideous factor of the case.

"There is no concealment of the fact that the training is apt to be hard and painful, and a blow is not uncommon from the most humane and patient trainer, angered, it may be, by stupidity and insubordination. If it is so with the boy, what must it be with the brute?

"There is no possession so hideous as that of the triumph, even momentarily, of cruelty. Touch a child, a horse or a dog with a whip and there is a hideous sense of satisfaction, even when the cause is righteous. The joy of inflicting pain is possible to the best of us and grows by what it feeds on.

"Imagine the situation between a coarse vulgarian and a helpless brute and you get the process of animal training.

"I have never known a disinterested member of the circus community pretend that the education of any animal was pleasant to the animal, and I have known them to speak with horror of the methods of some trainers.

"It is not very long since an athlete snatched the whip from a well known dog trainer on the stage of a London variety theater and soundly thrashed him amid the plaudits of the company.

"Another distinguished professor is blacklisted by one of the largest syndicates for undignified cruelty (off the stage) to his large and various family. Two of our best known managers absolutely refuse to deal with animal 'trains' and make no concealment of their reasons. And the editor, now deceased, of an important professional paper, for years refused to attend any kind of entertainment where dogs or birds, or indeed any dumb creature save conventional circus horses, appeared.

"All these men knew what they were about. Most of the other performers in a music hall might keep shy of the animal trainers. The stage hands speak with horror of what they see.

"The mortality among performing animals is perfectly awful. Ever so many are hopelessly injured in the process of education, and ever so many succumb to the dreadful life of nightly performances.

"Whenever a case of cruelty by a performer comes before the courts one is amazed by the ineptitude and futility of the evidence.

"The public is of course the main culprit. It wants the shows, and managers provide them, though they must be conscious of the truth of all I have written. They even assist in the unkindness, for the stalling and menagerie accommodations of some of our largest establishments are insanitary and inadequate in the extreme.

"I finish as I begin. The cruelty of animal training is almost impossible of proof. Much of it should be obvious, and so much of my indictment as is not to be proved by the obvious is not, I solemnly affirm, based on a desire to be sensational or on idle gossip, but on the dependable assurances of men and women who dare not submit to public censure."

ADDITIONAL JURORS FOR MAY

Beauty of Modern Syria as Seen by a Woman Writer. Here is a vivid description of the Biblical plain of Esdrælon, taken from Mrs. A. C. Inchbold's "Under the Syrian Sun." "Instantly our gaze and with it our hearts went out to the strange beauty of the plain of Esdrælon, spread out just beyond the rolling ranges of the Galleian hills. It was like some beautiful sea with its softly green billows sweeping inland in broad gracious curves between the boundaries of its northern and southern hills. And upon this limpid, seemingly liquid surface rested big cloud shadows of deep veiled purple. The billows were the cultivated stretches of the plain, and the cloud shadows indicated the broken, tiled soil. When in reality the shadows of clouds moved across the billowed richness of the great meadow—as the natives called Esdrælon—the effect was sublime beyond description.

It will be to learn that the leading medical writers and teachers of all the several schools of "practical medicine," in the strongest terms possible, each and every ingredient entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the cure of weak stomach, dyspepsia, catarrh of stomach, "liver complaint," torpid liver, or biliousness, chronic constipation, and all catarrhal diseases of whatever region, name or nature. It is also a specific remedy for all such chronic or long standing cases of catarrhal affections, and their results, as bronchitis, cough and lung disease (except consumption) accompanied with severe coughs. It is not so good for acute colds and coughs, but for lingering, or chronic cases it is especially efficacious in producing perfect cures. It contains Black Cherry bark, Golden Seal root, Bloodroot, Stone root, Mandrake root and Queen's root—all of which are highly praised as remedies for all the above mentioned affections by such eminent medical writers and teachers as Prof. Bartholow, of Jefferson Med. A LAND OF MYSTIC CHARM.

Beauty of Modern Syria as Seen by a Woman Writer. Here is a vivid description of the Biblical plain of Esdrælon, taken from Mrs. A. C. Inchbold's "Under the Syrian Sun." "Instantly our gaze and with it our hearts went out to the strange beauty of the plain of Esdrælon, spread out just beyond the rolling ranges of the Galleian hills. When in reality the shadows of clouds moved across the billowed richness of the great meadow—as the natives called Esdrælon—the effect was sublime beyond description.

"Of Baalbek the same author says: "So overpowering was the first impression of loneliness and awe created by the sudden sight of the giant pillars towering in the mystic blue light that instinct bade one creep behind the nearest giant stone wall and hide—like from the guardians, the genii, who seemed to be lurking in the dark depths between the fallen pillars, to be immovable as sentinels in the penumbra of the vast colonnade. But there description fails. The wonders of that whole magic area through which we wandered as under a spell outstrip expression.

"The veil of the supernatural lay lightly alike on the untouched surface as on the totally buried relics, now laid bare by the persistent burrowing of the searchers after truth. Ghosts of the long ago hovered near. In the light which transfigures all things earthly with an atmosphere that is supermundane they whispered strange tales of the phantom world, which at the moment seemed vivid and real, but in the brightness of the morrow vanished as a dream which memory yearns in vain to retain."

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

People will treat you all right until they become familiar. Whipping a little man does your reputation as a fighter no good. You can't please everybody. A cheerful person is a pessimist's idea of a fool. The man who realizes the cowardice of people can always put up a great bluff. You can live way off on a lonely farm, but trouble will come to you out there. When some men put a quarrier in the collection basket it gives them a feeling of being real sporty. The man who is really in love pays very little attention to the ability of his sweetheart as a bread maker. Don't feel bad if people do not agree with you. You may not agree with yourself if you stop to think it over.—Aitchison Globe.

When the Earth Quakes.

Some idea of the stupendous power of the subterranean forces exerted by earthquakes is shown by the changes effected by them in geography. Mountains have been obliterated or new ones formed, islands have been made or destroyed, and whole stretches of coast line wiped out. For instance, in September, 1750, on the lofty tableland about 150 miles southwest of the City of Mexico, a piece of land four square miles in area was suddenly raised 550 feet, and numerous cones appeared, one of them, the volcano of Jerullo, being nearly 1,700 feet high. Java in 1772 suffered in the opposite way, for a tract of country fifteen miles long by six miles broad was swallowed up entirely, a mountain of 9,000 feet being reduced to 5,000 feet only in the process.

The Balloon Plant.

One of the curious devices of nature for scattering seeds is seen in the balloon plant of California. The fruit is yellow and is a little larger than an egg. It has the appearance of an empty bag, but it contains a watery substance which evaporates or dries up when the fruit matures, a sort of gas taking its place. This gas is lighter than air, and the fruit flips back and forth in the wind until it finally breaks loose from its slender stem, rises into the air to a height of from seventy-five to a hundred feet and sails away to fall in some distant spot and thus extend the growth of its kind.

Poetry.

"Why are poets so little appreciated?" asked the young man with long hair. "Well," answered Mr. Cumrox, "it's this way with a piece of poetry: If you can't understand it you don't care to read it, and if you can understand it you haven't any respect for it."—Washington Star.
