Dust, too, produces the glorious sunset effects in the evening sky, thus causing the faint obscurity we call the horizon. The reflector is an upper layer of dust. Were the air perfectly dustless there would be no twilight. Darkness would immediately follow the sunset.-Exchange.

War Stops at a Tollgate.

In Sir Henry Drummond Wolff's "Random Recollections" there is a quaint tale of the Belgian revolution, when fighting was going on in the park at Brussels. The Belgians found themselves short of powder, and ortook an unconscionable time in appearing. "At length some of the leading men determined on going round themselves with a party in case an attack had been made by the Dutch. On their arrival, however, they found the convoy delayed by one man with a cortege consisted of ten sleighs.

Some Mexican women are afraid even of the mule cars, while they look upon the rapidly spinning trolley with such trembling of knees they cannot be persuaded to put foot upon it. Unable to pay coach hire, they employ the human carrier at a few cents for each trip.—

The queerest mode of travel I saw in all Mexico was that adopted by a woman who was on her way to the doctor, seated complacently in a chair borne on the back of a man.

She would have the antique all through her house, sir, nothing but the antique for her house decoration. CONTRIBUTION FROM THE SCHOOLS

Friday was the date selected when the pupils of the public schools might respond to the appeal for groceries provisions, etc., to aid in supplying the poor by bringing their contributions in such form and quantity as suited circumstances, to the public school buildings, whence later they would be removed to a vacant store room on Mill street, from which point they might be distributed as needed.

The response by the pupils far ex-eeded expectations. The store of goods accumulated through the pupils' generosity will go a great way toward tiding people over the period of depression, until a general revival of business, which is now in sight, brings employment for all. More than this the unexpected result shows that the true spirit of benevolence is inherent in the American heart and that even the children are taught to feel for others. It is due the youthful benefactors, therefore, that they be fully in formed as to the combined result of all their giving to the end that they may understand the good they have a cted by the Chief Burgess, and by the plished and reap the full value of the
