GETTING READY FOR GETTYSBURG CAMP

Preliminary work on the laying of water mains and excavations for the National Guard camp at Gettysburg next month, have been started and next week a detachment of the first engineer company will be sent from Scranton to make surveys of the roads surrounding the battlefield so that brigade and regimental commanders may be furnished with blue prints of the territory for use in marches and mock skirmish work. It is intended to make the manoeuvres this year one of the greatest features of the encampment.

ODD FELLOWS' MEMORIAL SERVICE

A large number of Odd Fellows, embracing members of Montour lodge No. 109 and Myrtle lodge No. 858, together with the widows and sons and daughters of deceased members, attended memorial service at the First Baptist church Sunday eve, where a very appropriate and impressive sermon was delivered by the pastor, the Rev. John Sherman.

The memorial service, in honor of the memory of deceased members, is held annually pursuant to an order from the sovereign grand lodge of Odd Fellows. The services last night embraced all the deaths that have occurred in the two local lodges during the year past. The deceased members are six in number.

In honor of the occasion the church was appropriately decorated. At the rear of the pulpit was a large American flag, wound with crape and forming large festoons. Below the flag three links containing the letters "F. L. and T." hung suspended. A profusion of flowers consisting of fern, blooming laurel, roses, peonies, &c., were arranged about the pulpit.

The sermon by the Rev. John Sherman was very impressive and abounded in thoughts that stirred the memory and reminded the living of their duties to the dead.

"We have come to the house of God, on this occasion," the speaker said, "not to complain against providence. We would not call the deceased members back.

"We have come to honor them, because they were our brothers. They took the same obligation that we did; they were entrusted with the same secrets; they were thrilled with the grandeur of the same charges. We honor them because as Odd Fellows they stood for friendship, love and truth. We honor them because they practiced these principles taught by our order; because they bore the burden of the lodge in a day when the maintenance of a lodge meant more of a struggle than at present."

The above is only an outline of the discourse. Under the various heads the speaker enlarged very beautifully bringing in many touching allusions to the lives of the deceased members, in their various relations.

ESTHER V. GEDDIS TRAINED NURSE

Miss Esther V. Geddis, of Bloomsburg has been employed by the State as a trained nurse for the tuberculosis dispensary at this place. She entered upon her duties Tuesday.

Miss Geddis is no stranger to the physicians of town, who consider her thoroughly capable. She will be in Danville each day of the week when the dispensary is open and as frequently in the interim as her services may be needed.

Her duties will be to inspect the homes of tuberculosis patients, and to give advice as to proper sanitation, &c., to the end that further spread of the disease may be prevented. She will assist in arranging the homes so that the best results in sanitation may be attained.

Now that a trained nurse has been added to the dispensary with Dr. Stock in charge the crusade against tuberculosis in Montour county is well organized. The best of results will no doubt be yielded.

FLOATING BATH HOUSE ABOUT COMPLETED

The floating bath house being built by the young men of town was practically completed yesterday and is about ready to go into commission.

The flat boat was purchased in Sunbury. The superstructure, which is just about finished, is 8x16 feet and is built of poplar boards. William Price has the contract for the work. The flat boat with superstructure lies at the water's edge at the foot of Chestnut street.

The young men who have the project in hand have not been very successful in raising money for the bath, house and quite a sum is yet needed to pay for the float boat, the lumber and the carpenter work. But a very small contribution would be required from each one who is in the habit of bathing in the river and desires to avail himself of the convenience of the bath-house if all would make some contribution.

At the northern end of town money will be received by M. J. Riley and at the southern end by General Secretary Manley and Physical Director J. C. Ainsworth.

Employed at Bloom.
Miss Ida Sweisfort, an operator in the local office of the Bell telephone company, left yesterday for Bloomsburg where she will fill a temporary vacancy in the exchange force.

W. R. MILLER CLAIMED BY DEATH

It becomes our painful duty to chronicle the death of W. R. Miller, the general manager of the Danville and Bloomsburg Street Railway, which occurred at 4:20 o'clock Sunday afternoon following a siege of typhoid fever. Death was wholly unexpected and came as a great shock.

Mr. Miller was taken ill about three weeks ago. He seemed to suffer considerably, but he was not considered critically ill until a short time before his demise. He suffered intensely Saturday night and Sunday afternoon he was seized with a hemorrhage, which resulted in death.

W. R. Miller was a man whom all were glad to honor. As general manager of the Danville and Bloomsburg Street Railway or in any other relation of life his conduct was marked with fair dealing and a kind consideration for the rights and feelings of others. His character was clean and above reproach.

As an electrician he was most proficient. As a general manager he had the interest of his company always at heart and planned wisely and well to serve the public and to popularize the road. The good care taken of the rolling stock and the excellent system employed have been frequently remarked upon.

Mr. Miller came to Danville about three years ago. He at once became popular with our citizens. He was a vocalist of fine talent and there was scarcely a Sunday in which he did not add to the pleasure of worship in one or other of our churches by singing a selection.

Mr. Miller was thirty-nine years of age. He was a native of Pottsville, where his father and mother and three sisters reside. He is survived by his wife and one son, Robert.

PRISONER TAKES OWN LIFE IN CELL

HARRISBURG, June 10.
On his knees, dangling from his cell door, where he had fastened his leather belt around his neck and tied the one end to the steel bars, one of the runners at the Dauphin county prison this morning at 7:15 o'clock found the lifeless body of Stephen Oberhaus, of Williamstown, who had been committed to jail pending trial at court on a charge of assault and battery.

Oberhaus was brought to jail on Monday, and it is believed that the incarceration and dread of standing trial at court preyed upon his nerves until in a fit of desperation he ended his life. He was about thirty years of age.

DANVILLE GETS 1909 CONVENTION

HAZLETON, June 10. (Special to The Montour American) By the overwhelming majority of 115 to 24 Danville won out over Shenandoah for the 1909 convention of the Six County Firemen's association at the annual business meeting held here today.

From the time they landed here on Tuesday evening, the Danville contingent has been taking Hazleton by storm and are favorites with the people of the convention city and the visitors. By far the best showing made by any of the delegations in attendance at the convention has been made by the laddies from Danville and their fine band and drum corps.

At the business meeting of the association held today the delegates from the Danville companies were much in evidence and took a leading part in the proceedings. It fell to the lot of Thomas G. Vincent to make the speech nominating Danville for the convention in 1909, and his winning oratory and pleasing personality won many doubtful delegates to Danville's cause. Shenandoah put up a hard and consistent fight.

MR. VINCENT'S SPEECH.

Following is given Mr. Vincent's speech:

"Mr. President, Delegates and Fellow Firemen, I came here today at the instance of 400 firemen, to nominate the City of Danville as your next meeting place. Not only do the firemen of our city extend to you a most hearty and cordial invitation, but the entire population says, 'come to us in June next year, and we will show you the best time you have ever had.'"

"Let me assure you, gentlemen, that nothing shall be left undone for your entertainment. The City of Danville is noted for its hospitality, so come to us and let us show you what we can do. The city that I speak of is situated on the right bank of the north branch of the Susquehanna River. It is surrounded by the most charming and picturesque scenery and is nestled in a narrow valley between Blue Hill and Montour Ridge. The beauty of its scenery cannot be surpassed.

"Our city has a population of 10,000 and has 35 hotels, so we are amply able to entertain you. Three railroads run through the city, viz the Pennsylvania, Reading and D. L. & W., so you can come and go at almost any time. And two trolley lines, the D. & B. and D. & S.

"So come to Danville and you will never regret it. Cast your vote that way and we will do the rest."

John G. Waite introduced a motion according to John Spahr, of Hazleton, the endorsement of the Six County association for the State presidency at the Shamokin convention next fall. The motion carried with a rush.

A spirited fight developed when the meeting proceeded to the election of officers. The balloting resulted in the choice of J. E. Herrold, of Shamokin, as president; B. E. Youngman, treasurer; George C. Kerschner, treasurer and J. W. Caesar, delegate to the State convention.

There are six vice presidents elected, one from each county, and Theodore Baker, of this city, was the choice of Montour county for that honor.

PURE SPRING WATER FOR DANVILLE

Fred R. Colley of Wilkes-Barre and Orville B. Savidge, owner of what was formerly the Baker farm, are associated in a venture to furnish pure spring water to the citizens of Danville.

On the Baker farm, which lies a mile above town, are two famous springs, one of them, with a steady flow that would fill an eight-inch pipe. The spring that will be used, at the mouth of an abandoned ore mine, is so located, as to preclude all suspicion of impurity. Besides the water is being analyzed and the public will be made fully acquainted with the result of the test.

The firm proposes to deliver the water in bottles at five cents per gallon. The two gentlemen will begin a canvass of the town today to see how many customers they can secure.

Pleasantly Entertained.

Misses Emma and Margaret Phile, entertained a few of their friends at their home in Valley township, Saturday evening.

A pleasant evening was spent in music and games. Refreshments were served. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. D. Crossley, Alice Appelman, Bertha Moeer, Winnie Beyer, Margaret Nephew, Eva Nephew, Ella Fausnaught, Mary Phile, Messrs. Tom Rogers, Warren Fenstermacher, Horace Appelman, Augustus Anner, John Fruit, Ralph Cromis, Samuel Ustead, John Fenstermacher, John Hileman, Archie Hileman, John Phile, William Phile.

FALLS HEIR TO $30,000 FORTUNE

That the tide of fortune may suddenly and unexpectedly turn, altering all the circumstances of life and raising or lowering individuals from one social plane to another is well illustrated in the life of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burnell of this city. For a year or more past the husband and wife have had hard lines. The husband is broken down physically, but the faithful and plucky wife, who was not afraid of hard work, did whatever she could find to do and did it well. Now comes the news that she has fallen heir to a fortune of thirty thousand dollars.

Charles Burnell and his wife came here one year ago last March. They were show people and opened up a place in the Sweetek building. It was not a success. Mr. Burnell made other ventures, but they all ended disastrously.

To make the matter worse the man's health failed him. He had done acrobatic work in shows for sixteen years and his infirmity seemed to be super-induced by the exacting feats performed. In a very short time Mr. and Mrs. Burnell found themselves without home or means in a strange place.

While Mr. Burnell was able to work at times, and actually did work whenever he could secure an odd job, yet it was the heroism and devotion of the wife that piloted the couple over the dark days. The woman turning her back on her profession, which offered no inducements at that season and especially in a town like Danville went out to seek employment. She took such work as she could find. She labored hard and incessantly winning golden opinions from those who employed her. For a year thus she toiled and, along with her husband, seemed to make the best of her hard lot.

The couple, while in the theatrical business were known as Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dailey. This, however, was only a stage name and was assumed because it was Mrs. Burnell's maiden name.

Notwithstanding the name no one seemed to suspect that Mrs. Burnell was a sister of Peter Dailey, the noted comedian, until the death of the latter occurred in Chicago on May 23rd last. It transpires that the comedian is survived by one brother and one sister, Mrs. Burnell and Robert Dailey, the latter also an actor of note.

Peter Dailey leaves a fortune of sixty thousand dollars, which is divided equally between Mrs. Burnell and her brother, Robert. Thus almost in a day the couple whose lot has been so hard for a year past have been raised to a position of comfort and independence with a competency for life assured.

Mrs. Burnell has been in New York for some time but yesterday, was expected home. During an interview the husband stated that they had not planned for the future to any extent, but that it was settled that they would not leave Danville, as they had been kindly treated here and had learned to like the people. He was emphatic in the assertion that they "are through with the show business."

ED F. REYNOLDS CONVALESCENT

Our former townsman, Edward F. Reynolds, whose disappearance from the U. S. S. Nebraska was noted in these columns some months ago, has returned to his ship. The whole affair is enshrouded in mystery, but the element of foul play, it is said, enters into it.

Mr. Reynolds is convalescent at present and is able to resume his duties on shipboard. Should he recover sufficiently in a short time he will undertake his second voyage around the world.

Mr. Reynolds has had a hard experience and that he is living today is said to be due to his robust constitution and the determined efforts of two of the most skillful physicians of the Northwest.

Mr. Reynolds is chief machinist of the U. S. S. Nebraska. That he is back on the ship and is being restored to health will prove very gratifying news to this many friends in Danville.

CONSIGNMENT OF BLACK BASS RECEIVED

A consignment of black bass consisting of one can was received by J. B. Cleaver yesterday morning. Along with some others he made application several months ago; thus far Mr. Cleaver's application is the only one heard from. The fish were from the State hatchery at Pleasant Mountain. They are very small in size.

Mr. Cleaver placed the fish in the river near the mouth of Kipps run.

There was one death from sunstroke besides a number of heat prostrations, in Pittsburg on Monday.
