plant may be put in operation this fall. Nevertheless as time is so short it is unsafe to predict and it is quite within the rauge of probability that the starting up may be postponed until next spring.

The company, he said, has options on several water rights, among others those involving the famous Muncy dam. Matters of title, &c., cause much delay in negotiating for water rights, be said, and it has been decided in starting up the plant to depend upon steam. In this way the business can be developed while negotiations for water rights are still in progress. Besides, as an auxiliary to assist during low water or other emergencies, a steam plant will have to be installed anyhow.

This steam plant, Mr. Kloss said, will be installed, either in Danville or it is nused to come any fare.
