Duport thereupon showed how the instrument was held, but every time his imperial master extended his hand to attempt to do it himself Duport threw himself back in alarm till final-of his royal master. He made a most clumsy attempt to salute with his free hand, while his anxiety to prevent the beer spilling amused his majesty.

"Look here," said the latter, "you didn't do that right. Let me show you how it ought to be done." Telling the man to fancy that he was the emperor, who was to be saluted, the kai-ser took the mug and retreated a few paces. Then, coming forward again stepping opposite to the sailor, he held the mug to his lips, drained it, put it down on the deck and gave the salute with military precision. "That's the way to do it," he remarked to the astonished seaman. "Now go down-stairs and tell them to fill the mug up again and give you one for yourself Say it was I who drank it.'

Grape Fruit Salad.—There are several different ways of preparing a grape fruit salad. For a sweet fruit salad, cut in halves, remove the seeds and with a pointed pair of scissors saip the membranes that hold the center core in place and the pulp to the walls, then remove all together. Fill the cavity in the center with powdered sugar, moistened with maraschinollquor, sherry or grape juice. Let 15867.44 98.00

ed sugar, moistened with maraschino liquor, sherry or grape juice. Let stand in a cold place for several hours before serving. When ready to serve, put a maraschina cherry in the center of each fruit. Serve a half fruit teach guest. White grapes cut up and seeded are aften added to the pulp, which is nearly always served in the grape fruit shell. When possible fresh sour cherries are often substituted for the maraschino. Another grape fruit salad is made by removing the pulp from halved grape fruit, discarding all the pith. This done, return the pulp to the skin, put a tablespoonful of manyangus dressing on each half can. the pith. "Where did you get your military title?" was asked of Colonel Johnson. title?" was asked of Colonel Johnson.

"Charlic Culberson made me take it when he was governor of Texas," replied the Houston editor. "I told him I might have to wear a title, but I'd be hanged if I'd wear a uniform. One day I met the governor on the street, and he said, 'Hello, Bill.'

"Hello, Charlie,' I replied.
"Is that the proper manner to address your commanding officer?' he demanded sternly. "Stand up straight, salute and say "Governor." Where's your uniform?

"Make this man a coloners uniform and send the bill to me,' he said.
"I couldn't stand for that, so I said, 'I give you to understand, sir, if I've got to be a colonel I can buy my own uniform and put on as much gold lace as any man in Texas.'

When Waking Up. Here is a bit of information it will pay you to keep ready for reference, though you will perhaps turn up your nose at it at the first reading: "How to wake up and wake up fully and quickly. Most people prefer not to wake up in the morning—that is, they think of the pleasure there would be in just five minutes' more of sleep if only that alarm clock had not sound-ed its warning. Of course you have to get up, and if there is really anything that will make the job easier and more pleasant you will want to know about it. Doctors have long ago agreed that dullness on first awakening in the morning is due to sluggish circu-lation of the blood in the brain. This can be quickly overcome by massaging the neck in the neighborhood of the jugular vein, thus stirring the blood to life and action. Rub your neck well on both sides and drowsiness will leave you. Try it."—New York Times.

The old Duke of Norfolk, who was a very shabby dresser, met a privileged friend in Bond street, London. Said the privileged friend, a military man of the premier duke's own age: "Why, duke, what's come to your clothes? You look as if you had raked over your rag bag to find them!" The duke replied, with a shrug: "What does it matter what I wear here? No one knows me!" A few months later the same friend, himself always a well dressed man, met the duke again, pot-tering about in the neighborhood of Arundel, the delightful Sussex village under a hill crowned by the castle from whose name the eldest son of a Duke of Norfolk always takes his "courtesy" title—Earl of Arundel. "Why, duke," said his friend again, what's the matter with your clothes?"
The duke shrugged his shoulders again. "What does it matter what I wear here? Every one knows me!

In an article on the lotteries the Ber liner Tageblatt says there are three ways by which wealth is acquired—by work, which is long and tedlous; by dishonesty, which is a precarious proceeding, and by gambling. The num-ber of persons who prefer the last named method, says the writer, is large in the German realm, for there the great lotteries thrive best. There are seven of these under the manage ment of the government, and they dis tribute $160,000,000 in prizes. The anxlety to secure a part of this amount has destroyed the happiness of thou-sands of households and has diverted thousands of good men from honest industry and thrift to idleness and poverty. In the seven lotteries there are about 22,000 winners a year, but of these only about 650 receive prizes of more than 1,000 marks each

*About the most resourceful young person I've encountered in the real estate line," said a Pittsburg man, "came from Ohio. He secured a place with a real estate firm. The second evening he was in town one of his co-workers introduced him to an evening gather ing at the house of a well known merchant. The company learning that the newcomer possessed a voice, invit-ed him to sing. He responded with 'Home, Sweet Home.'

"Everybody was surprised at his se-lection, but as it was well done he was heartily applauded. Then he surprised them some more

"Stepping forward to the center of the room, he said:
"'I'm glad you liked the song. There is nothing like "Home, Sweet Home," and let me say that our firm is selling them on terms to suit and within twelve miles of the city. If you don't care to live there the fact yet remains that it's the chance of your life for an investment."—Kansas City Independ-
