 A Phonetic Purchase.

 A Phonetic Purchase.

 The late Henry Miller, who was guide, philosopher and friend to many book lovers within a thousand miles of New York, was a most successful salesman. One day he called on Collis P. Huntington and showed him a rare copy of a book.

 4042 70
 "There are two volumes of this," said Mr. Miller. "The other volume is in perfect order, as you see this one is. You cannot possibly let them escape you, for you know you have nothing like this in your library."

 00
 "Seven hundred dollars," said the bookman.

Books of Reference.

Newspaper editors like to answer questions addressed to them by their readers—if they are not too hard and they deem themselves as arbitres rather than as accessories to a mis-demeanor when they are appealed to for information "to decide a bet." But they wonder sometimes why certain questions are put to them for arbitra-ment when the answers are to be found in one of three very accessible found in one of three very necessible books—an almanac, a grammar and a small dictionary. These are books of reference that ought to be in every home library, however small. We guess that they are, but that they are sometimes dusty with misua or out of easy reach on a with misuse or out of easy reach on a top shelf. It is well to have an al-manac, a dictionary or an atlas handy when you are reading your newspaper. By consulting them frequently the reader will find his daily paper relates his early historical studies to present events and makes his touch with the world closer and more significant. A Sporting Parson. The inhibition of a hunting rector by his bishop reminds a correspondent that the Rev. Jack Russell, the famous west country sporting parson, was once cited to appear before the bishop of Exeter to answer charges of bishop of Exceter to answer charges of neglecting his spiritual and parochial duties, and he was also remonstrated with for keeping and following a pack of hounds. The charges were proved unfounded, and Russell refused to give up the sport, which he continued to pursue almost to the day of his death in 1883, at the age of eighty-eight. Besides being an insatiable hunter, he was, as his biographer bunter, he was, as his biographer pithily remarks, "a stanch supporter of Devonshire wrestlers, an admirable sparrer and an enthusiastic upholder of the virtues of Devonshire cider and cream." And in the pulpit he tried to reform conduct rather than to ex-pound doctrine and was a stern de-

Akeley, the Field museum taxidermist, who lifted taxidermy from the plane of the trades and put it upon that of the arts. Mr. Heller has knowledge of the raininals of that section of Africa into which the party will go which is second perhaps to that of no man in the country. With the knowledge of pre-servative methods which all the members of the party have, the Washing-ton scientists believe that the speci-mens which are secured will be brought to the United States in the best possible condition

It is the known wish of the president that the expedition into Africa shall be made with the privacy that marks or should mark any other expedition. Mr. Roosevelt wants an outing and a hance to do a moderate amount of shooting, with a first view to getting results that will be of benefit to

Sarcasm In the Commons

Sarcasm in the Commons. The reluctance of the house of com-mons to adjourn over Derby day re-calls a story related of one of the Ro-man Catholle peers who took their seats some four or five years before the passage of the first reform bill aft-or an exclusion of a contury and a er an exclusion of a century and a half. He gave notice that on a certain day he would make a certain motion, whereupon there arose from his noble colleagues a general cry of "Derby!" The astonished novice named another day, only to be greeted with an equal-ly unanimous expostulation of "Oaks!" At this he explained that he would have to ask the forgiveness of their lordships; but, having been educated abroad, he was forced to acknowledge that he was not familiar with the list of saints' days in the Anglican calen-

His Glasses.

His Glasses. He came home in the small hours of the morning, and his loving spouse confronted him with wrath in her eye and a telegram in her hand, saying, "Here is news that has been waiting for you since supper time." He blinked, looked wise and, braced up against the hatrack, felt through his pockets, murmuring, "I left my glasses down town." "Yes," she replied, with scathing irony, "but you brought the contents with you."
