

TO OPEN CHANNEL
ON THE RIFFLES

During evenings for many years past it has been customary for a number of friendly spirits to drop in at the water works for a chat with the employes and with each other.

It occurred to somebody that an artificial channel might be opened where the water is shallow, which would enable the coal barges, along with other craft, to ply backwards and forwards between Danville and the deeper water down stream.

Those familiar with the spot demonstrated how easily a channel could be opened, if all those interested would unite in the effort.

Once over the riffles there would be clear sailing. The coal dredges could resume their work of digging coal and fishermen in their boats could pass backwards and forwards to and from the deep water where bass and salmon abound.

FISH WARDEN VISITS THIS CITY

Charles Holland, the fish warden representing this section of the State was in Danville Tuesday in an official capacity.

Some one had informed Mr. Holland that the canal here is full of fish and that many of them are dying.

It is news to most people here to learn that there is any considerable number of fish in the canal. Last year a good many catfish were found in the old ditch above Beaver street.

The fish warden Tuesday called on a number of our local fishermen and assured them that if at any time they desired to seine the polluted canal and remove the fish to the river they would have full permission to do so; also that the fish warden would be on hand to render them all the assistance in his power.

FORMER WORKERS ARE NOW DRONES

WASHINGTON, July 21. The recent business depression had a demoralizing effect on certain classes of laborers, according to C. L. Green, inspector in charge of the New York City branch of the Division of Information of the Department of Commerce and Labor, who today submitted his report for the six months ending June 30 last to T. V. Powderly, chief of the division.

"Enforced idleness during this period caused them to resort to every known device to live without employment," the inspector declares, referring to a type of the erstwhile workman. "Finding it possible to exist, idleness seems to have become a habit and now that the parks are pleasant and the fields hot they prefer to enjoy the former, living as best they can."

The report states that, as compared with previous periods, the demand for farm laborers has been abnormal, as has also the demand for common laborers, and the wages received showed considerable improvement during the last six months.

SOUTH SIDE HAS 35 STUDENTS

Now that it is settled that the south side is to have a high school there is curiosity to know how the withdrawal of so many pupils from the Danville high school will affect that institution.

Of the fifty-five non-resident pupils who attended the Danville high school last year thirty-five came from South Danville and Riverside. An impression is abroad that the employment of the additional or fifth teacher last year was made necessary by the large number of non-resident pupils.

In the senior class last year were four students from South Danville and two from Riverside. These graduated with the class. Remaining in the high school from South Danville were eighteen students, five juniors, eight sophomores and five freshmen.

Borough Superintendent D. N. Dieffenbacher was interviewed Monday. He asserted quite emphatically that the withdrawal of the south side pupils would not work any detriment to the high school as organized.

DANVILLE WON IN PRETTY GAME

Danville broke into Atlantic League circles Tuesday for an hour and fifty-five minutes, and wrested as pretty a victory from Mt. Carmel as has been seen on the local diamond this year.

The coal region boys put up a good, strong game, but Danville was a little bit better, nipping their running getting in the bud at several times when it took the cleverest kind of work to stave off impending disaster.

"Honey" McCloud pitched the entire game for Danville, and his heady work in the box won the unstinted plaudits of the fans. The Mt. Carmel aggregation is noted for its heavy hitting, but they could find McCloud for but four singles and these were scattered. McCloud's best work was put forth in the first three innings when he pulled the team out of several of the tightest kinds of holes.

In the second innings the emotions were loaded with but one man out and Mt. Carmel had to be satisfied with two puny infield drives and a goose egg.

Danville got her first rally in the fourth. Umlauf, first up, drove a pretty single into right. Thomas fanned. Metzler singled through second base. Hess scored on Covelkies's fielder's choice.

Danville again tallied in the eighth. With one down Hess drove one over the left fielder's head for two bags and scored on Umlauf's two bagger in the same place, the latter scoring on a passed ball.
