INTERESTED IN GOOD ROADS

For some time past the officials of the Pennsylvania Railroad company have been carrying on a campaign of their own in behalf of good roads and as means thereto have been advocating the use of the spilt log drag as the most thorough and economical means of bringing dirt roads up to something like a standard of excellence. Road-making in the rural districts became a feature of interest with the Pennsylvania and other railroads owing to the fact that the farmers and other rural patrons are frequently debarred from getting to freight stations by bad This affects the traffic of the roads. railroads which derive no small percentage of their incomes from the farmers' bushel of wheat and bag of potatoes, his bale of hay and so on.

In addition to freight traffic, farmers furnish a large amount of passenger traffic to all the railroads of this country. All the means the railroads propose to use to aid the farmers in bringing the roads over which they reach the stations to a better state of efficiency is not disclosed so far, but it has become evident that the good roads campaign has arrested the attention of the Pennsylvania officials.

The late A. J. Cassatt was a most persistent fighter for good roads, and both during and before his presidency of the Pennsylvania, held office or road supervisor in one of the townships of Montgomery county, where he maintained a legal residence. Other Pennsylvania officials also have taken a deep interest in the roads in the suburban districts of Philadelphia where many of them reside. This interest has spread to practically every part of the system.

Mr. Carson, general superitnendent the Erie division of the Pennsylvania known as the open impeller centrifugrailroad, like Mr. Myers, his predecessor, is a notable good roads man. Mr. Lincoln, the official head of the Williamsport division is an enthusiast on have a capacity of 417 gallons per min-the question of good roads. Mr. Lin-ute. Verdi and Bismarck on Titles

The composer Verdi was offered at title of nobility by King Victor Emmanuel. It was intended that he should be created Marquis or Comte de Bus-seto, after the estate upon which he lived. The composer refused the offer energetically. He considered that Verdi was somebody and that the Marquis de Busseto would be nobody. Even Bismarek was unable to parry a blow of this character. When the young emperor broke with him he conferred upon him the title of Duke of Lauenbourg. Bismarck received the parchment with this exclamation: "A pretty name! It will be handy

Bismarck, to whom it was delivered, being then at table, arose and, offering the letter to his wife, remarked iron-

Englishmen recently touring in Scot-land found that Sabbatarianism occa-sionally extends to the middle of the week. They were forced by the weather to take refuge in a small country hotel and after lunch adjourned to the billiard room to kill time until the rain stopped. The game had hardly started when the landlord entered in a very drunken condition, upbraided his vis-itors for their unseemly conduct and insisted on their leaving the billiard room. They received profuse apolo-gies from the landlady. Her husband always got drunk on Sundays, she explained, but, mistaking the day, he and from force of habit, believing it was Sunday, had been shocked at the click of the billiard balls.

In Mourning.

A peer, who was the master of a The hunting pack, died, and his widow refused to let the hounds go out. Whereupon a friend asked a former chief justice of England, who was himself a huntsman, whether any harm would be done if the hounds were allowed to run with pieces of crape round their necks. "I can hardly think that even crape is necessary," was the reply. "It would be sufficient was the reply. "It would be sufficient if the hounds were in full cry."-London News.
