

SPEAKS HIGHLY OF COMING PASTOR

The Daily Herald, of Litchfield, Illinois, in which city Rev. J. H. Musselman, who has just accepted a call to the Pine Street Lutheran church, of Danville, has been located for the past four years, speaks in the following glowing terms of the man who is soon to come here:

"The religious circles of the city were greatly surprised this morning when it became known that Rev. J. H. Musselman yesterday tendered his resignation as pastor of the English Lutheran church, the same to take effect October 24, that being the day he is to give his farewell sermon.

"The announcement comes as a shock to the congregation, it being known that their pastor had received five different calls during his four years here and that he had refused to accept any of them.

"The resignation has not been accepted and the congregation will hold a business meeting after the regular church service next Sunday morning at which time it is said that the wishes of the pastor will be granted. The resignation was tendered during the morning service yesterday and was the cause of pathetic scenes. Those in attendance at the service were unprepared for the announcement and the members became visibly affected.

"Mr. Musselman says that he has accepted a call to the Lutheran church at Danville, Penn., and that he begins his new work on November 1.

"Litchfieldians will be sorry to lose Rev. and Mrs. Musselman. They came to Litchfield January 1, 1905, and have been identified with every forward movement of the city. Mr. Musselman sprang into popularity almost immediately and is now probably the most popular Protestant minister in the city. For the past three years he has acted as platform manager of the Litchfield-Hillsboro chautauqua, a position he has filled with much credit. He has also been identified in local Masonic circles. As a minister, speaker, toastmaster and general ardent dispenser of good fellowship Mr. Musselman had but few equals in this community and he will be greatly missed."

The Art of Saving.

I believe that if somebody could invent unique ways of saving money the public would have an assured future. Men, women and children would regard saving as a game and play it with all their heart. There are penny savings banks where newsboys and bootblacks carry their tiny savings, but other children regard their penny bank at home with unfriendly eyes. There are working girls who put away their five cent pieces and fatten their small bank accounts by walking instead of riding and making other petty sacrifices. But the majority of working girls spend as fast as they can earn and declare that they cannot help it.

One reads of a man who began his career by getting every dollar as a worker and regarding all the profit he could. With that measure, and he was rich without realizing that it was a struggle. I know of more than one woman who receives each night from her husband every dime he has received in change through the day, for he is careful to avoid spending such a piece of money. These, with her own savings in the same direction, make a respectable weekly showing.—Kansas City Journal.

Leftover Material.

Barbara, aged four, had always been allowed to make small cakes out of the scraps of dough left from the morning's baking, so one morning after being sent to gather the eggs she came running in with a very tiny one and exclaimed: "Oh, mamma, see this little egg! It must be that's all the dough the hen had left!"—Delinctor.

BURGLAR'S COOL-HEADED AGT

A bold and nearly successful attempt to rob Fallon's establishment, Mill street, was made Tuesday morning, the burglar, who had already entered the store, being surprised by Night Watchman Byerly while in the act of taking the cash register apart.

The night watchman was making his round when he detected some one in the store. It was about 3 o'clock in the morning and although the hour was very early Mr. Byerly's impression was that it was Mr. Fallon himself preparing for the day's business. Trying the front door he found it open and he stepped inside, remarking that it was an early hour to begin business.

At his juncture the man who was working at the cash register in the center of the store, dropped to a stooping posture and very effectually concealed by the counters made a dash for the rear end of the store. The night watchman at once took in the situation and ran after the fellow. The burglar on reaching the rear end of the store and finding that he was pursued quickly turned and dashed out of the front door with the watchman in pursuit. The burglar, however, got the start of the night watchman and succeeded in making his escape.

The proprietor of the store was notified. An investigation showed that the burglar had forced an entrance through a window on the side of the building next to the D. L. & W. track, opening into the apartment at the rear of the store. A wire screen that protected the building on the outside was partially removed and the lower sash was forced up about three-fourths of its height. The window was also protected by horizontal iron bars securely fastened to the window frame. These were bent showing where the burglar, who must have been a person of small girth, had crawled through.

The National cash register used at Fallon's defied the ingenuity of the burglar. Baffled in an attempt to master the combination he began to take the cash register apart and had succeeded in removing some eight or ten screws when he was surprised by the night watchman. Had he succeeded he would have made a very good haul as the entire proceeds of Monday's business was in the register.

The burglar was working in a dim light thrown from an electric light bulb overhead. Mr. Byerly has a very fair idea of the man's appearance and describes him as a person of small stature wearing a derby hat. This description tallies with the appearance of one of two men, strangers, who were observed by Mr. Fallon loitering about the D. L. & W. crossing on Monday.

HERO OF BOXER UPRISING.

How the Late A. F. Chamot Distinguished Himself in the Pekin Siege. Auguste F. Chamot, who recently died at Larkspur, Cal., was the hero of the Boxer uprising in China. His life was romantic and adventurous. He went to Pekin in 1883, before he was sixteen years old, with only 40 cents in his pocket. Missionaries to whom he appealed for aid supplied him with funds, and he built a small hotel. It gradually grew into the Hotel de Pekin, an establishment of 400 rooms.

Mr. Chamot distinguished himself in the siege of Pekin during the Boxer uprising in June and July, 1900. Prior to the siege he had the foresight to lay in a large store of rice and other food-stuffs, which are said to have saved the foreigners in the legation quarter from starvation.

"In less than twenty-four hours," one reads in "The Siege of the Legations" by Captain D'Arcy, "Mr. Chamot has been able to find enough food to supply 4,200 persons during seventy-eight days. As miller, baker, engineer, builder of barricades, chief of coolies, etc., he has been everything and done everything through that memorable siege without the aid of any one."

Mr. Chamot and his wife between them killed 700 Boxers during the siege. One day he himself killed fifty-four, while she killed seventeen in a single day. They were both wounded themselves.

He was in Pekin eighteen years, but came to the United States in 1901.

Very Controversial.

They were very controversial in those days. First—Bowles wrote a book about Pope.

Second—Campbell abused Bowles' book on Pope.

Third—Bowles replied to Campbell's abuse of Bowles on Pope.

Fourth—Byron wrote an answer to Bowles' answer to Campbell's abuse of Bowles' book on Pope.

Fifth—John Bull wrote a letter to Byron about Byron's answer to Bowles' answer to Campbell's abuse of Bowles' book on Pope.

Sixth—Dr. Garnet has a theory of the authorship of John Bull's letter to Byron about Byron's comments on Bowles' answer to it is like "The House That Jack Built"—Andrew Lang.

Bare Poles.

Purse—Don't go on deck, madam. It is stormy, and we are running her with bare poles.

Aunt Polly—Well, I suppose that, coming from such a cold country as Poland, that can stand running round naked, but I think it's downright scandalous to let 'em—

COMMISSIONERS ACT PROMPTLY

The petition from the borough council to the county commissioners ordered Friday night relating to the reconstruction of the East Market street extension under the act of May 1, 1905, has been followed by prompt action on the part of the commissioners and unless unexpected delay occurs it is now believed that the road can be macadamized before winter.

Upon receiving the petition Saturday morning the county commissioners at once petitioned the State highway department to undertake the improvement of the road, specified in the petition from the borough, namely, a stretch one thousand feet in length lying between Foust street and the market and the macadam on the East Market street extension built by the State.

If the petition is accepted and approved, as the next step an engineer will be sent here by the State Highway Department to make the necessary survey. Advertisements for the reconstruction and improvement of the road under the provisions of the act must be given by the State Highway Commissioner not less than twenty days before the contract may be awarded, by public notice in at least two newspapers of general circulation.

It is believed that the State Highway Department can be induced to act promptly in the matter, taking the successive steps without any unnecessary loss of time, which will make it possible to award the contract and go on with the reconstruction of the road during November.

CHAMPIONS WIN FROM ALL STARS

It was only a matter of time until one of the brown suited warriors should cross the plate.

In the tenth Thomas reached first on Splain's error of a bad bounce, but was caught stealing second. Mackert struck out and Dooley's pretty hit between left and center was wasted when Metzler's foul fly was nailed by Patterson.

In the eleventh Hess drew a pass, and circled to third on Lvengood's sacrifice, but was caught stealing home while Unlauf was striking out.

The twelfth, which passed with two strike outs and a fly to center, produced nothing that made a noise like a score; the crowd was getting a case of the nerves and the foot ball players were wondering if they could play their game by moonlight. But everybody knew that things would have to break soon—it was a survival of the fittest and Danville was coming down the home stretch a little stronger than the All Stars.

In the thirteenth Mackert got first when his grounder went through Ash's legs. The Danville left fielder then stole second and reached third on a passed ball, but was caught stealing home, while Dooley struck out and Metzler filed out to Gerringor.

The fourteenth opened badly when Hess struck out, but took on a more interesting look when Lvengood singled to right. He was caught a minute later on Unlauf's fielders' choice. Then while Beas was getting a present of a base on balls Unlauf stole second and third and when Coveleskie's drive was juggled for a second by Ash, "Buck" sunk his spikes into the pan with the winning run, and the crowd surged down on the field to shake hands with the players.

The All Stars proved their right to their complimentary name. They played remarkably well together, and showed up to their best advantage when they were in the greatest danger. They were picked to include the league's heaviest hitters. They gave Danville the hardest tussle of the season and played a game that will be remembered in Danville when the ones who played it have gone to the big leagues.

DOWRIES FOR UNIONISTS.

National Women's Trade Union League to Help Its Members.

No longer need young women be deterred from joining trades unions by the excuse that they are "about to be married." The adoption of a system of granting "marriage dowries" to members of women's unions has been decided upon by the biennial convention of the National Women's Trade Union league, held in Chicago.

The plan, which was adopted to induce women to join unions of their craft, provides that when any member of the organization marries she shall be presented with a dowry, the amount to be conditional on the number of years she has been a member.

For the benefit of spinsters and those who for reasons of their own may choose to remain single an amendment was added to the plan providing for the payment of "vacation dowries" to them in lieu of the "marriage dowries" they would have received in the event they had entered the state of conjugal bliss.
