The New Year's parade this year will not move until about 2:30 o'clock, after the arrival of the 2:11 D. L. &. W. and the 2:24 Pennsylvania trains, east, both of which are expected to bring large contingents.

The parade this year will start from North Mill street, which is also an innovation. Praviously the pageant formed in the southern part of town.

All the prizes this year will be in cash and will be gold.

The expenses-arising from the em ployment of four bands, in addition to what will be required for prizes and for incidentals-will be considerably neavier than on any previous year The committee on finances this week will resume soliciting and is hoping for a generous response from the pub-
