PASSENGERS ARE BADLY SHAKEN UP

Passengers on the Pennsylvania passenger train that leaves South Danville at 12:10 Tuesday afternoon received a shaking up, which gives them a pretty fair idea of what a railroad wreck is like.

Nothing occurred until the train reached Sunbury. It had slowed down and the passengers every moment were expecting that it would stop.

All of a sudden there was a violent jar as though caused by a collision. Then occurred the very thing that is bound to happen when a body in motion comes in contact with another body at rest.

Among the passengers the worst injured of all, probably, was the Rev. A. J. Irey, pastor of the First Baptist church of this city, who had a tooth knocked loose and was very painfully cut about the month.

The accident, it appears, was caused by a failure of the air brake to operate properly. The engineer was unable to stop the train and it ran against the "bumpers" erected at the end of the track near the station where the train stops.

SYMPTOMS OF TUBERCULOSIS

The fine herd of blooded cattle at the hospital for the insane last week was subjected to the regular semi-annual inspection.

The inspection was conducted by Veterinarian J. O. Reed, the tuberculin test being applied. The infected cattle will be shipped to Scranton today where they will be disposed of by the federal inspector.

The result shows how essential it is that cattle be regularly inspected at short intervals, if the public is to be properly safeguarded.

To illustrate how prone cattle are to become infected with tuberculosis it might be stated that among the twelve head condemned were two which stood the test four months ago.

OVER $30,000 WAS PAID OUT

Industrially, affairs in Danville may be said to have reached flood mark. Our industries are all in operation and are working practically on full time.

The above estimate, which represents two weeks' labor at the larger industries and one week's at the smaller, is considered conservative by those who are perfectly familiar with the pay rolls at the different plants.

While the total sum paid out may not seem large to some people the fact must be borne in mind that no company store methods prevail and that the money disbursed by the industries falls directly into the channels of legitimate trade, yielding profits to none but those who are entitled to them.

That the people of town had money to spend, and were spending it Saturday night, was evident to the casual observer. Mill street was thronged with people for hours and the stores, stocked up and rendered attractive for the Easter season, did a rushing business.

Our country is evidently on the eve of a period of prosperity. Regardless of conditions elsewhere in Danville things are running smoothly and harmoniously and whatever harvest the future has in store industrially our town shall undoubtedly reap its full share.

USING HARWOOD ELECTRICITY

The Columbia Light, Power and Railways company is now supplied with electricity from Harwood. The high voltage current came into Danville for the first time at 6 o'clock Sunday eve and during the night was employed by the company in furnishing light to its customers.

The Columbia Light, Power and Railways company did not expect to utilize the Harwood current until Wednesday, but owing to a breakdown on the system it was necessary to change its plans.

One of the coils in the generator of the Columbia and Montour power house burned out Saturday, which threw that entire division out of service. With difficulty the schedule between Danville and Bloomsburg was maintained, by utilizing the current generated at the Standard Electric Light plant to take the cars all the way to Bloomsburg instead of only as far as Grovania as was formerly done.

It was impracticable to think of repairing the generator within several days; meanwhile no cars could be operated between Bloomsburg and Berwick and the Danville plant would be seriously overtaxed. It was to meet the unforeseen exigency that the Columbia Light, Power and Railways company decided to bring the high tension current over from Harwood forthwith.

A preliminary experiment was made about 12 o'clock Saturday night. It was not until 9 o'clock Sunday morning that the high voltage current was brought over and harnessed to the Columbia and Montour division. All day Sunday and Sunday night the cars between Bloomsburg and Berwick were operated by the Harwood current. To be explicit it should be said that the Harwood current operates a motor, which in turn operates the generator that furnishes current for the railway.

The same thing will take place at Danville, although for a short time, the generators furnishing current to the Danville and Bloomsburg line and Danville and Sunbury Transit company will be operated by steam the same as in the past and the Harwood current will be utilized at night only to supply commercial light.

George M. West, superintendent of the Standard Electric Light plant, Sunday stated that it would probably be a month before steam would be displaced at this end of the line and the high tension or Harwood current employed exclusively. In a week the power house at Grovania will be dismantled and some of the machinery will be brought to Danville and installed in the Standard Electric Light plant.

Probably few people were aware of what had occurred when the Harwood current of 23,000 volts flashed over the long line into Danville Sunday eve. The high voltage adds an element of danger about the plant and conspicuous notices are posted, warning people to "keep hands off."
