KING GEORGE CREATES A ROW

King George's opposition to the anti-Catholic expressions in the oath that he must take on opening his first parliament is likely to involve him in his first serious row. Anti-Catholies, who form an overwhelming part of the population, and Orangemen are already objecting to the slightest change in the oath, and will bitterly oppose the suggested parliamentary change in the words which characterize the Catholic mass and the adortion of the Virgin Mary as "superstitions and idola trous" to "are contrary to my belief, as is proposed.

SHOWS MIND OF HIS OWN.

This action shows that the new king has a mind of his own and proves the courage as well as the impulsiveness with which he is credited. It may easily lead to the gravest possible kind of agitation if the ultra-Protestants suspect that he is actuated by any tenderness for the Catholic church King George has taken the matter in-to his own hands and yesterday the attorney general, at his instance, consulted several Catholic members of parliament respecting the proposed amendment to the accession oath. By a curious turn of fate, one of the men so consulted was Col. Arthur Lynch, the Irish member of the house who was once sentenced to death for high

Grave fears are expressed here to day that the new king has overtaxed his strength. He has worked prodigi-ously since his father's death, averaging only four hours sleep a day. He is busy with the affairs of state, and also insists on arranging most of the de-tails for the funeral.

The Empress Dowager of Russia, the queen mother's sister, and Grand Duke Michael have arrived for the funeral.

The Solid Hoofed Hog.
There are some solid hoofed hogs in the world, but they are few and far setween. Darwin has a great deal to say about such pigs in his "Origin of Species," as there were only three in England at the time he wrote this book. The solid hoofed hog is not a freak of nature, as many suppose, but a genuine case of reversion to a primitive or ancestral type. It seems that, unlike the prehistoric ancestor of the modern horse, which has four toes or hoofs, the old clotherium, from which animal all members of the swine family are descended, had a solid hoof, W. G. Ford, Joseph Hilkert, Bart samma an members of the swine family are descended, had a solid hoof, and in the course of ages, as the old parent form died out and the modern wild boar, domestic hog, peccary, etc., were evolved this solid hoof became through what Darwin calls "adaptation" and "natural selection" divided up into two parts, so that all modern. up into two parts, so that all modern hogs are cloven hoofed.
