REFORMERS REPUDIATE HIM

.... Indorsement of Democrats For Con gress Too Much For Independent Republicans to Stand.

[Special Correspondence.]

Philadelphia, Sept. 13. Everything everywhere in the political situation in Pennsylvania presages a phenomenal Republican vic-tory in November. Not only are the Republicans united, harmonious and aggressive, but their old time opponents, the Demo-crats, are hopelessly divided and de-

The nomination of John Kinley Tener by the Republican convention for the governorship, by a unanimous vote and with every unsuccessful can-didate promptly and sincerely pledging fealty to the nominee, has been followed by evidence of a practical and indubitable character of earnest and enthuiastic support of the ticket from the great body of the Republi-can voters of the commonwealth. Fresh from an atmosphere of neigh-borly good will, Mr. Tener came east and quickly found that while he is not personally as well known here, the story of his career, of his manly qualities and his sturdy character, had already impressed the voters and guaranteed him a cordial welcome. Following a flattering reception at a big meeting of farmers of Bucks and Montgomery counties, Mr. Tener was the central figure at an immense pop-ular picnic given on the outskirts of this city under the auspices of the active Republicans of northeastern Philadelphia. Nearly fifty thousand persons, men, women and children, participated in this wonderful outing.

And the same reports come from practically all of the interior counties.

A Divided Democracy.

What a spectacle is presented by the Grim Democrats and Berry Democrats are at each others' throats every

While present indications give Grim an advantage in that he has the regu lar Democratic organization in vir-tually every county in his favor, and that with two or three exceptions the Democratic newspapers of the state are supporting him, the Bryanite faction is keeping up a sharp fire of de-nunciation, not only of Grim, but the leaders responsible for his nominaover the many setbacks his candidacy has received. He is irritable and fret ful and has made an exhibition of himself upon several occasions during the last week.

The most sensational break he has made was his violent and unwarranted attack upon the newspapers of Pennsylvania in a speech at a farmers' picnic at Chestnut Hill.

Manifestly without preparation, and with a display of anger that startled and astonished his audience. Berry launched a tirade of abuse upon the reporters, whom he dubbed "newspa-per snipes," and declared that they should "be burned at the stake." In the same outburst of temper Berry ar raigned the Democratic leaders who refused to favor his nomination.

"That bunch at Allentown," he shouted, "thought I would lie down. shouted, "thought I would lie down.
But I am just beginnig and I want step until I have them behind the bars."

"I always feel," she said, "that I ought to attend the obloquies of a friend, but I just couldn't go."—Chicago Tribune.

BULLETIN

Berry's attack upon the newspapers he admitted was b cause of the publication of the fact that he borrowed $15,000 from Guffey, the Democratic boss, upon a note, for the payment of which Berry is now being sued.

Not only has he not paid the debt, but he admits that there was not a penny of interest paid, and the collateral which was put up to insure payment of the principal when sold at public sale brought only $700.

The simple recital of the facts of the case is what Berry took offense at and called forth his silly, venemous and vindictive statements.

The disastrous effect upon the Berry campaign of this crazy talk of the candidate was at once apparent to everybody identified with the bolter's

The endorsement by the Keystone Party of many Democrats for congress has lost Berry thousands of votes.

None of the substantial men who have figured as leaders in reform movements in Philadelphia have al-lowed their names to be connected with the Berry candidacy, and while there are many reasons why intelligent Republicans should not vote the Berry ticket, admitedly the most po-tent cause for hostility to this combination is found in the alliance with Democratic aspirants for seats in co

The unsuspecting clerk sent the wine, with which the guests were so pleased that they asked where it came from. Sheridan, turning toward Challe, said, "I am indebted to my friend here for all the wine you have tasted and am always proud to recommend him.' It was not until the following morning that Chalie realized the doubl meaning in Sheridan's words. The debt was canceled.

The Old Lady Meant Well, but She

She awoke at her usual time, 4 o'clock, and the house seemed strangely quiet. "Town folks do get lazy," she thought, "and they probably don't get up till 5." She dressed and went downstairs and watched the clock un-til 5. Not a sound. HAWAII'S BIG VOLCANO.

Curious Relics of Lava It Has Left In the Forests. Hawaii possesses one of the greatest natural wonders of the present day world—a live volcano as high as Vesu-vius and twice its diameter.

Kilauea, on the island of Hawaii, stands thirty miles from the sea in a mountain range in which are three dead volcances and one partially alive. This last, called Mauna Loa, from time to time sends streams of lava down its slopes. In 1881 three streams burst forth from the sides of this mountain, and one of them came within threequarters of a mile of Hilo, the chief city of the island. There have been several outbreaks of Kilauea in the last hundred years. In 1840 there was a brilliant eruption of lava, the light of which, it was said, could be seen a hundred miles away, while at the distance of forty miles one could read print at midnight.

Where the lava flowed through the forest it has left curious relics in lava arches, bridges and great vases. These vases were formed by the lava piling itself about some lofty tree trunk, burning away the wood within and tilling the upper part of the tree. In the course of time seeds were deposit-ed in the open top, filled with decaying bark, until now there is a gigantic lava vase, holding ferns and flowers and vines.—Exchange.

Among the coins lions of five franc pieces, and he deterfolded to a tiny size, was inclosed a note signed by Napoleon and promising the sum of 5,000,000 francs to the finder of that particular coin. Naturally everybody who changed a large coins in exchange and, as a rule, probed and dug and sounded the metal in eager search for the hidden note. But the years went on, and yet the note nation, and today the government stands ready to pay the debt, which, with interest, is now worth many millions.-London Answers.

A Grand Rout.

It is not always the largest foe who can make the greatest disturbance and cause the most confusion. In his "Hunting Grounds of the Great West" Richard Irving Dodge tells of a little incident of the Mexican war which proves that it is quality, not quantity, which is most effective.

While General Taylor's little army was marching from Corpus Christi to Matamoras a soldier of the flank of the column fired at a bull. The animal charged, and the soldier, taking to his heels, ran into the column. The bull, undaunted by the number of the enemy, followed him headlong, scattering several regiments like chaff, and finally escaped unhurt, having demoralized and put to flight an army which a few after covered itself with glory by victoriously encountering five times deal out just when needed. As he paced around the circle he got an ovation that equalled the one of the inning before.

In the seventh Danville added another tally. Mackert was passed for a start off. Ainsworth bunted and got a life on Karl's boot. Umlauf also bunted but Mackert was caught at third. Brennan got first of Doudican's overthrow. Captain Nipple then lammed safely to left tallying Umlauf, but Brennan was caught at the plate.

Bloomsburg made use of the eighth inning to tally one expiring score, when Carr and Crossin sandwiched hits between three strike outs.

A better understanding of Danville's close playing can be gleaned when it is shown that there were Bloomsburg runners left on the paths in every innings except two. In the first, fifth and seventh doubles' were executed with neatness and dispatch to the great enjoyment and edification of the fans. Several times Bloomsburg threatened to rally, but each time they were prevented from doing damage. As late as the ninth the visitors refused to accept defeat as their portion and Mitchell opened with a two bagger to center and advanced to third on Evans fly to right but he was compelled to remain on the corner while Hine went down on a fly to Nipple and Karl.

THE STICK CAME BACK.

Celeridge Was In the Habit of Losing and Recovering It. Of walking sticks there is no end.

Of walking sticks there is no end. For interesting sticks, however, the one which Coleridge was in the habit of losing during his tramping daymust take first place. The philosopher was never happy till he had got it back. He sent the crier round. Here is the cry, as noted by Mr. Lucas in one of his essays: "Missing, a curious walking stick. On one side it displays the head of an eagle, the eyes of which the head of an eagle, the eyes of which represent rising suns and the ears Turkish crescents. On the other side is the portrait of the owner in woodwork. Around the neck is a Queen Elizabeth's ruff in tin. All down it waves the line of beauty in very ugly carving."

And then came the appeal and warning note: "If any gentleman (or lady) has fallen in love with the above de-scribed stick and secretly carried off the same he (or she) is hereby earnestly admonished to conquer a passion the continuance of which must prove fatal to his (or her) honesty. And if the said stick has slipped into such a gentleman's (or lady's) hand through inadvertence he (or she) is requested to rectify the mistake with all conventient speed. God save the king!" The stick came back!—London Chronicle.

The Early Circus

Leaving out of count the great cir-cuses of Rome and Antioch and com-ing down to something of modern times, the first circus in England was on a footpath known as Halfpenny Hatch, in the Waterloo road, London There, in 1770, Astley's first performance was given, with the aid of a drum, two fifes and one clown. A charge of sixpence was made for the front standing places. There was no building and not even a tent, but merely a ring of ropes and stakes. Primi-tive as were the arrangements, Astley soon attracted good audiences and was able to add to his program conjuring, transparencies, vaulting and tumbling with displays of fireworks. In course of time he was able to hire an inclosed ground and erected seats under a sub stantial roof. He called the place Ast ley's amphitheater riding house.

DANCING STARS.

The Twinklers Seem to Jump When Viewed Through a Telescope.

One of the most interesting things appearing in the telescope when that instrument is pointing heavenward is the appearance of jumping stars. Of course we can see stars twinkle without a telescope, but with a telescope they may be seen to jump and actual-ly to dance. The cause is the same— mixing currents of light and heavy air causing refraction or bending of the rays of light coming from the star. We can see the same phenomenon by looking at a small object in a room through the air directly over a hot radiator. The object seems to jump and dance as if playing hide and seek with itself.

This jumping in the telescope or twinkling to the naked eye has also seen explained by what is called interference. If two sources of light are placed close to each other, then on a screen placed properly we can catch an alternate band of white and dark lines. Of course if the eye be placed at a dark line it can see neither source of light. The production of these dark lines is accomplished by different light waves reaching the screen in op posite phases so as to blot out or cancel the effect due to each. In like manner it can be shown that if the star has polychromatic light it can and has actually been observed to change color from this effect alone.

The best time to observe this effect of star dancing is on a cold, crisp night. The telescope should be point-ed to a twinkling star as near the horizon as can be found, as to see a star on the horizon we have to look through much more atmosphere than to see one in the zenith, and there is consequently more chance for varied currents,-St. Louis Republic,
