A BREAK-UP SEEMS IMMINENT

The rain yesterday precipitated conditions bordering on a breakup. Unless colder weather follows immediately there is great danger that the ice may leave the river during the next twenty-four hours.

Due to the falling rain and the melting snow water has accumulated very rapidly. The smaller streams were affected during the afternoon yesterday, and by last evening the ice on the river was beginning to rise in a body under the swelling current. Should the same weather conditions prevail today, the water will continue to rise with the result that the ice, weakened by the several days' moderate weather, will be unable to resist the pressure and will move off. It is rather early for a breakup, but undoubtedly one is imminent.

The rain of last week did not affect the water sources, which implies that it did not sink into the ground to any extent.

Residents in the vicinity of Riverside heights are suffering all the inconveniences of a drought. A gentleman from East Danville yesterday stated that the same conditions prevail there. As a rule the wells are dry, as many as ten families procuring water at one well, which happens to be in the never-failing class. Whether the present rain may affect the water sources or not remains to be seen.

Conditions could not well have been more disagreeable than they were yesterday. The leaden sky, the falling rain and the soggy streets and sidewalks all conspired to depress the feelings and make one long for almost any change, whether deep snow or a return of zero weather with all that is implied by either.

Last evening the weather forecast predicted cooler weather today.

A Simple Safeguard For Mothers.

Mrs. D. Gilson, 325 Ingles Ave., Youngstown, Ohio, gained wisdom by experience. "My little girl had a severe cold and coughed almost continuously. My sister recommended Foley's Honey and Tar. The first dose I gave her relieved the inflammation in her throat and after using only one bottle her throat and lungs were entirely free from inflammation. Since then I always keep a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar in the house. Accept no substitutes. For sale by Pauls & Co., Pharmacy.

What the Boys Thought.

A prominent educator, talking to a class in an elementary school he had visited, decided to illustrate a point he was making by a problem in long division, the intricacies of which the class had just mastered. He put down the necessary figures and then said:

"Now, let us see how many times this number will go into the other. Let us try six." He tried six, and, as he intended, six wouldn't do. "Well, let's try five, then," he said. Five was all right, and he went ahead with his talk. On his way home that evening he overtook two small boys with book bags under their arms and heard this conversation:

"Say, Bill, did a long whiskered, baldheaded old feller come into your class today?"

"Yep," replied Bill.

"And did he talk to you?"

"Yep," said Bill.

"Well, so he did to us, but the funniest thing, by golly, was that the old chump stumped himself on an example in long division."—Philadelphia Times.

Most Beautiful Water in World.

Little restaurants are scattered along the cliff overlooking the bay of Capri, and here by the water's edge you can sit and sip and gaze at Vesuvius away off in the distance or perhaps at the water in the bay below.

The most beautiful water in the world! The blue water of the grotto is more mystical, perhaps, but the water of the bay of Capri is more exquisite. It is a wonderful pale green, with a greener, darker color streaked through it. There is no other water like it in all the world.

And here in the little restaurant you sit and sit, gazing at the water below, although you know in your heart you ought to be seeing the rest of the place. But the water is so green and beautiful that when the warning whistle of the Naples steamer blows you awake with a start and realize you have seen nothing of Capri at all—nothing but the emerald water, so enticing and beautiful.—Mary Sutley in Pittsburg Dispatch.

Unhappiness.

They who have never known poverty can hardly be said to be unhappy. It is from the remembrance of what we have lost that the arrows of affliction are pointed.—Emile Zola.

Will never rain roses. If we want roses we must plant more trees.

AROUND THE STATE

WILL BE NO FLOOD

Attorneys at the Northumberland county bar yesterday completed compiling applications for liquor licenses for clients. License court will be held next month and the already abnormal list for Northumberland county will be larger than ever. In the coal region end of the county a number of new applications were presented, and between Kulpmont and Mr. Carmel it is certain at least a half dozen new stands will result. The terms of Judges C. R. Savidge and Voris Auten expire next year, and as both will be candidates for re-election some of the people asking for licenses think they will not have any trouble procuring the necessary papers; but the judges say they will use the greatest care in dealing out licenses and that there will not be a flooding of the county with new ones.

MAY TAX COAL

At the coming session of the legislature another effort will be made to place a small tax on anthracite coal, the money to be used to help the families of miners who may be killed or maimed in the discharge of their duties. Several members of the House from the hard coal counties have exchanged views on the subject, and although the coal companies oppose the scheme legislators who favor such a law will do their best to effect its passage. In past legislatures ex-Governor Pennypacker and ex-Speaker McClain favored such a tax, but some of the best lawyers hold that the law would be unconstitutional.

CALL THE CORONER

Floyd Rapp, aged 28, ended his Christmas celebration shortly before midnight by drinking carbolic acid and dying as he was being admitted to a hospital. Rapp was wending his way home with a party of friends and had reached Tenth and Bantonwood streets, Reading, when he suddenly exclaimed: "Boys, here is where I stop. You may telephone for the coroner." The next instant he had swallowed a quantity of the poison, which took immediate effect. Within five minutes he was in an ambulance, but death came before the hospital physicians could act on the case.

ABOUT BEES

The bee industry in Pennsylvania has reached such proportions that Dr. H. A. Surface, State Economic Zoologist, has decided to ask the coming Legislature to take cognizance of it. Prof. Surface has prepared a bill providing for inspection and supervision of the beekeeping industry, similar to the official attention now being paid to fruit growing. The bill places this work under the care of the State Department of Agriculture.

GIVES ARM TO SAVE LIFE

Behard Carr, of Duncott, sacrificed his right arm in order to save his life at the Oak Hill colliery near Pottsville. He fell under a trip of loaded mine cars in such a position that his head or arm would have been crushed. Carr quickly took his choice of the arm, and since the amputation was performed promptly at the Pottsville hospital, it is believed he will recover.

BIG SAVING FOR STATE

The Secretary of the Commonwealth, Robert McAfee, is paid by salary now, but if the fee system that used to be in force had obtained during the last two years Mr. McAfee would have pulled off about $30,000 a year, or $60,000 in all. He now gets $8,000 annual salary, which means that the new law has benefited the state to the extent of $44,000 in the past two years.

Where Cannots Swarm.

One of the most remarkable sights in the world is Bird Island, in South Africa, for the reason that during some months of the year it is literally covered with gannets. Not a foot of ground is to be seen anywhere. Day after day thousands of gannets strut around, and they are so close to each other that the whole island seems actually alive. Those who have seen this sight say that it is one which can never be forgotten.

A Pleasant Farewell.

A local minister had had a serious time in fighting the saloon element in his own town and had not been backed up in his efforts by the members of his own church. This, with other troubles, had led to his resignation, and in announcing his departure at his farewell sermon he said: "I am going to do something the devil has never done. I am going to leave C."—Argonaut.

Raising Chickens.

The suburban man was all sympathy. "What's the trouble, my dear?" he asked as he came home and found his wife in tears.

"Trouble enough," sobbed his young wife. "You k-know that five d-dollar incubator the man sold me? Well, it exploded today and blew all the chickens through the roof."

"Oh, well, cheer up, Martha. The man said it would raise chickens, and you see it did."—Chicago News.

The class of 1907, Danville High School, held its first reunion and banquet at Heidens House on Monday evening.

Take Care!

Remember that when your kidneys are affected, your life is in danger. M. Mayer, Rochester, N. Y., says: "My trouble started with a sharp shooting pain over my back which grew worse daily. I felt sluggish and tired, my kidneys action was irregular and infrequent. I started using Foley Kidney Pills. Each dose seemed to put new life and strength into me, and now I am completely cured, and feel better and stronger than for years." For sale by Pauls & Co., Pharmacy.

There Was No Applause.

Just before the operation began the operating surgeon said to the students, "Now, gentlemen, no applause, if you please."

When he was convalescing the patient declared that that warning remained his most vivid impression of the ordeal.

"I wondered then how any human being could have the heart to applaud an act that had brought another face to face with death, but later I understood. On account of heart trouble they did not dare administer an anesthetic, so I was conscious of everything, and in spite of the pain I realized that the surgeon was doing a mighty skillful piece of work. No wonder the students wanted to applaud. They were justified in it."

"Some years ago they would have clapped the hinges down after an exhibition of that kind," an old hospital attendant told me, "but nowadays doctors discourage any such demonstration."—New York Sun.

Forgery in Exelsis.

The most remarkable literary forgery on record was perpetrated in 1870 on Michael Charles, a French scientist of European reputation. Charles, who was in his dotage, purchased within a few years from one Vrain-Lucas no fewer than 27,000 autographs. A. M. Bradley tells the story in his "Chats on Autographs." Beginning with a supposed correspondence between the youthful Newton and Pascal, Vrain-Lucas proceeded to fabricate letters of Rabelais, Montesquieu and La Bruyere. Before he had finished M. Charles became the possessor of letters in French, and written on paper made in France, of Julius Caesar, Cleopatra, Mary Magdalene and even of Lazarus after his resurrection. Vrain-Lucas was sentenced to two years' imprisonment, and among other forged manuscripts from his pen there were produced in court letters from Alexander the Great, Herod, Pompey, Judas Iscariot, Sappho, Pontius Pilate and Joan of Arc!

Stories on Doctors.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle told several good stories of old fashioned practitioners he knew. There was one man, he said, who never used to wash out the half emptied bottles returned to him, but emptied them into one huge jar, from which he dispensed this mixture of medicines to his more obscure patients. "It is like grapeshot," he said; "one of them is sure to hit." There was another man who used to say, "When my patients are alive I don't know what is the matter with them and when they die I don't know whether they are dead." That was like the medical man who said to a lady whose husband he had been attending, "Madam, I have a very strong belief that your husband is dead, but if it is your wish I have no objection to a consultation."

Cute Little Girl.

One day while Katherine's mother was ill a cup of beef tea was prepared for her, but Katherine fancied it and drank almost all of it. Her father was about to scold her when her mother said:

"Never mind; it does me just as much good to see her drink it."

Shortly after this a dose of castor oil was prepared for Katherine, and she poured it into her doll's mouth.

"Why Katherine," said her astonished mother, "what did you do that for?"

"That's all right," Katherine replied, "it will do me just as much good if she drinks it."—Boston Herald.

Sons of Butchers.

Three of the stained glass windows in the mill of the Butcher Guild, London, contain the portraits of Cardinal Wolsey, William Shakespeare and Daniel Defoe in recognition of their connection with the meat trade.

The cardinal was the son of a "respectable" butcher at Ipswich, in Suffolk, and "the immortal bard" assisted while a youngster a butcher in his native town of Stratford-on-Avon.

Defoe, nowadays known as the author of "Robinson Crusoe," but in his day an adventurer and secret agent of his government, was the son of a butcher in Fore street and a member of the guild.—National Provisioner.

WOOD MAUSOLEUM FOR KING

Oriental Forests Searched to Honor Late Chinese Ruler.

The richest commercial prize of recent years has been won by a Manila lumber company, which has been asked to supply the wood to be used for a magnificent mausoleum to be built to the late Chinese emperor, Kwang Hsu.

The forests of the orient were searched for the best and most durable wood, and it was found in the Philippines.

THE MARSHAL

Large posters advertising the mums' parade were put up about town Saturday and will be sent out to neighboring places where the people other years have shown an interest in Danville's New Year's demonstration and from which large crowds have come to swell the throngs on our streets. From Northumberland especially, home of Calhoun's band, which will be in the parade, a large contingent is expected.

Major C. P. Gearhart has been appointed chief marshal of the parade, with power to appoint his own aides.

The line of march is as follows: Forming at the second ward engine house the parade will move east on Market street to Honeymoon street— to Grand street— to Nassau street— to Market street— to Mill street— to Bloom street— to Ferry street— to Stem lock street— to Mill street— to Hoam Grist Mill and counter-march to river bridge, where the parade will again reverse the direction of march proceeding to Bloom street, where it will disband.

The mums' association has purchased two loving cups as prizes for the athletic event, one costing ten dollars and the other five dollars.

These are the days for actual hustling, and those who entertain a thought of entering the parade make a great mistake, if they postpone preparations a day longer. The committee has well performed its part. It has kept its promise and has raised all the money that is needed, procuring three musical organizations, including one of the finest bands in this section, and retaining a balance for prizes and other expenses. It now devolves upon our citizens as a body to get up the features of the parade, bestirring themselves to arrive at new and stunning conceptions that will give the demonstration an individuality and bring it up to a point of excellence that will cause it to equal or surpass any of the efforts of the past.

THE ONLY WAY

Many Danville Citizens Have Discovered It.

Just what to do when the kidneys are affected, is a question that concerns both young and old. Weak kidneys neglected in childhood lead to lifelong suffering. People of advanced years, with less vitality, suffer doubly. In youth or age, languor, backache, urinary irregularity, dizziness and nervousness make life a burden.

There is one remedy that acts directly on the kidneys and cures these troubles. Doan's Kidney Pills owe their worldwide fame to the fact that they cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Remember the example of this Danville citizen and you will be convinced that this is so.

Mrs. Leo Metzger, 264 W. Mahoning Street, Danville, Pa., says: "I used Doan's Kidney Pills about three years ago when suffering from backache and other symptoms of kidney trouble. A few doses of this remedy relieved me and I was thus induced to continue its use until cured. Doan's Kidney Pills have my hearty endorsement."

Last Night's Performance.

NEW SEA MEASUREMENTS.

Pacific Could Fill Tank Mile Square For 400 Years.

An officer of a liner once remarked that most men seemed to be as ignorant about the size of the sea as they are of the distance between the heavenly planets. Here are a few facts:

The Pacific covers 68,000,000 miles, the Atlantic 30,000,000 and the Indian ocean, Arctic and Antarctic 42,000,000. To stow away the contents of the Pacific it would be necessary to fill a tank one mile long, one mile wide and one mile deep every day for 410 years. Put in figures, the Pacific holds in weight 918,000,000,000,000,000,000 tons.

The Atlantic averages a depth of not quite three miles. Its waters weigh 325,000,000,000,000,000 tons, and a tank to contain it would have each of its sides 430 miles long. The figures of the other oceans are in the same startling proportions.

It would take all the sea water in the world 2,000,000 years to flow over Niagara.

His Luxurious Pillow.

"When sleeping cars first came in," said a railroad man, "the bedclothes in the berths were very scanty. On one of these early cars one night after everybody had turned in and the lights were low a loud voice called from an upper berth:

"Porter, get a corkscrew?"

"The porter came hurrying down the aisle.

"Boss," he said in a scandalized tone, "we don't allow no drinkin' in the berths. It's against the rules."

"Oh, it ain't that, porter," the voice answered. "I just want to dig out a pillow that's sort of worked its way into my ear."

WIFE WITNESSES HUSBAND'S FAULT

The worst aeroplane accident in history of French aviation occurred today at Issy near Marquis M.
