FRIDAY, JULY 26, 1889.

Miss Belle Lampkin has been elected fiscal clerk of the Washington Territory Constitutional Convention at Olympia.

The superstition that a peculiar unwholesome character attaches to Friday is as old as the hills, and prevails to a greater extent even among quite intelligent people on both sides of the ocean.

THE TRUE AND FALSE.

A famous preacher remarks that manliness means perfect manhood, as womanliness implies perfect womanhood, and nothing can be truer.

There are no tyrant barons now, but the spirit of tyranny and cruelty is still to be found. The good knight-to-day is he who provides help for the blind, the deaf, and dumb.

The true knights-to-day are those who organize and carry on the societies to prevent cruelty, and to enforce the laws bearing upon those who for a little gain make men drunkards.

Courage is an element of manliness. It is more than readiness to encounter danger and death, for we are not often called to meet such perils.

above ourselves, our strength goes out of us. Our power comes from a boundless faith and hope; from a conviction that amid these changes of time there is something unchangeable and eternal.

By manly qualities the world is carried forward. The manly spirit shows itself in enterprise, the love of meeting difficulties and overcoming them; the resolution which will not yield, which holds on and perseveres, and does not admit the possibility of defeat.

It is generous, giving itself to a good cause not its own; it is public spirited, devoting itself to the general good with no expectations of reward.

SEQUEL TO A JOHNSTOWN DEATH. One of James Murray's Papers Recovered After Being Mysteriously Lost.

Joseph H. Murrow, the Western salesman of Hayes, Murray & Co., Philadelphia, who, immediately after the Johnstown flood, went to the devastated town to look for the remains of James Murray, a member of the firm, who lost his life there, recovered one of Mr. Murray's papers on Thursday last, while on his way east.

After a week's trip west, selling goods, Mr. Murrow stopped at a Sunbury hotel, on his way east, and casually entered into conversation with a stranger.

Place the Money in Proper Hands. To the Editor of the Johnstown Democrat: I regret to learn that the sufferers of Johnstown are still suffering, and that great dissatisfaction exists.

The money so generously and lavishly given should not be given to officials. G. NELSON SMITH.

Old Fashioned Institutions. The Philadelphia News has the following on Methodist camp meetings: "Methodist camp meetings are one of the old fashioned institutions which the mercenary, utilitarian modern spirit has not affected, and apparently cannot affect."

Johnstown Sufferers Speak. Asbury Park Daily Spray. Several of the residents of ill-fated Johnstown, who are stopping in Ocean Grove, were present at the First Methodist Church last evening and Mrs. Dean Canan, an elderly lady, and the Misses Maggie Davis and Letelia Canan related their experiences on that terrible afternoon when the Conemaugh Valley was swept by the flood.

A FOUNTAIN OF BEAUTY.

"Will you enter my son's service?" asked the king. "Very willingly," replied the princess. The prince at once began to give her the strangest orders.

"Do not weep, my child," said the woman. "I know how gentle, modest and patient you have been. Some day you will have your reward."

"What am I to do with this?" she asked. "Keep it. Some day it will be useful to you." Solina put it in her pocket and continued her journey.

"What am I to do with this?" asked the princess. "Keep it preciously. Some day it will be useful to you." Solina put it in her pocket.

"What are you doing there," asked the princess. "Unfortunately I fell into this ditch and I have broken my leg." The king Solina drew it out of the ditch and bound up the broken leg with her handkerchief.

"I have an idea which may make our fortune. It is this. We have a daughter as beautiful as the sunlight. We will present her to the king as his own daughter transformed by a fairy, and shut up here this ugly girl, the sight of whom he cannot endure."

"I have no further task to impose upon you. I will gladly marry you. Only you must ask the consent of the king, my father." The prince sent ambassadors to the king, but presently they returned in a great rage.

German Medicaments in Paris.

The Paris medical authorities are at present conducting a crusade against the antiquated nomenclature of certain chemical concoctions and medicaments which come from Germany.

Imperial Progress. It has been understood for some time past that the mightiest sovereigns were beginning to grumble at the expense of their imperial and royal progresses.

A Soda Locomotive. Four locomotives to be run by soda, which takes the place of coal in the boiler, have been built in Philadelphia.

A Courageous Young Woman. A daring act has just been performed at Monticou by a young woman of 19—Mademoiselle Jobard, who is the daughter of a cafe keeper.

Sanitary Ceilings and Walls. This subject was brought before the last meeting of the sanitary convention at Hastings, Mich., by a Mr. Church, who recommended the use of a coating of gypsum or alabaster which had been calcined by subjecting it to a great heat in retorts.

Custom House and Photography. Attention has been drawn to the practice of custom house officers opening packages of undeveloped photographic plates, and thus spoiling the labor of a trip to the seashore.

THE CRY OF THE DREAMER.

I am tired of planning and toiling In the crowded halls of man; Heart weary of building and sparring And spilling and building again.

I feel no pride, but pity We find the burden the rich endure There is nothing sweet in the city But the patient lives of the poor.

Even a Head With a Crown May Be Long to a Loving Person. Even in the court gossip of newspapers published in different European countries we find the pathetic hints of human love and suffering which prove all men to be of but one blood.

Queen Christina, of Spain, we are told, at the time of her marriage was an angular, hard-faced, repellent woman, whose manners offended those who approached her.

The queen of Sweden has long been an invalid from some obscure disease. She is extremely fond of music, and her happiest hours are those when her sons sing to her.

Shooting the Ibez. The Ibez is a wild goat, once distinctive feature of which is the knotted horns of large size. This fine animal was supposed by Buffon to be the original parent of the common European goat.

The Lake Shore Drive. "A plan is on foot," says a correspondent of a New York paper, "to make an addition to Chicago's Lake Shore drive, which, if carried out, will give this city one of the finest and most extensive systems of boulevards and drives in the world."

A Story of Herman Oelrichs. One of the three young swells who were dining with Oelrichs in the New York Athletic club determined to put his most far-famed marine darning to a severe test.

Miraculous Berry. At a recent meeting of the Linnean society in England a most extraordinary fruit was exhibited, the so-called "miraculous berry" of West Africa, bringing to the sapoteaceae. Covered externally with a soft, sweet pulp, it imparts to the palate a sensation which renders it possible to partake of sour substances, and even tartaric acid, lime juice and vinegar, and to give them a flavor of absolute sweetness.—Exchange.

"YOU HAVE DONE WELL." The prince, who had fully recovered his strength and who was very courageous, accepted these conditions. He departed and went in search of the golden cock, through forests filled with wild beasts.
