SECOND VOLUME.

Wednesday we commence the second volume of the DAILY DEMOCRAT. Though a year and over a month have elapsed since the first sissue, it has been printed only twelve months, owing to an interregnum of over thirty days occasioned by the ever memorable flood of May 31st. We need hardly say that the work of starting a daily and putting it upon a running basis, is attended with hard work, embarrass ments and some grievous disappointments. We had learned enough of the troubles incident to publishing a weekly to know hat the work of establishing a live and successful daily would require money, patience and diligence. But with our years of experience in a printing office, and with the facilities we then had to run a daily, we felt that where others had succeeded our chances of success were sufficient to encourage us to embark in the enterprise.

Up to the time of the flood our most sanguine expectations were more than met; but that terrible catrastrophe came so near wiping both the Weekly and Daily out of existence, that for weeks it was a question as to whether either could ever be resuscitated. The loss sustained by the destruction of so much office material, one of the presses being ufterly destroyed and all else injured to an extent as to be almost worthless-it requied some courage to think of resuming. Patience and perse verance, however, have enabled the Daily to surmount all obstacles, and with a passably fair appearance, and pretty well filled with advertising matter, and freighted with an abundance of general and local news, it finds its way every morning to an encouraging list of sub scribers.

Its past succes and present status enable us to say that the DAILY DEMOCRAT is a permanent fact. Though its publica-tion since the flood in a new and somewhat temporary building, and on presses shattered, and by a wheezy old engine, has been a heavy draft on both our money and our patience, we congratulate ourself on the fact that it has made its regular daily visits to its many patrons in town and surrounding points.

PRESIDENT HARRISON'S THRILLING EXPERIENCE

Here is the way the particulars were wired to Washington, New York and other eastern papers, under date of Deer Park, Md., September 24: "President Harrison and Senator Henry G. Davis caught in a storm. They returned to Deer Park at 8:30 to-night, after one of the most stormy trips that any President of the United States has taken in the last quarter of a century. It rained con-After reading thus far we were stantly. prepared to read that they had been caught in a fearful, howling, destructive storm while out in the moutains on foot, or horseback, or at least in a wagon; but on further reading, we found they had been riding in a private Pullman dining car, on the West Virginia Central Railroad, and did not even have to levve the car for dinner, but dined sumptuously in the car. Such is the account given by a special correspondent, and published under a big head-line, "Caught in a Storm." A perilous time, truly! What next in the line of flunkeyism, we won-

THERE is fear and trembling in the house of the Republicans. Their leaders note the growing popularity of the Democratic County ticket and are apprehensive of the result. The Democrats are united and pulling together and the Republicans know what this means.

THE Wyoming constitutional convention has declared itself in favor of woman suffrage by a three-fourths vote, and has incorporated a woman's suffrage clause in the constitution. Women have been voting in Wyoming for the last twenty years, and the men seem to like it.

Queer Case.

Mr. Emanuel Custer, erected a new house in Moxham, expecting to pay for the same with profits accruing from a first class boarding house. It was no sooner opened, when eight stalwart boarders were procured. Mrs. Custer being somewhat prepossessing, and an excellent cook, soon won the hearts of Mr. Custer says, not only claims his wife. but also all his property real and personal. Mr. Caster is an aged man, and his wife insists he is no more her husband, as she married Jamie several days ago, and in tends to live with him as such, even he cannot hold the property.

exceptionally romantic character will come before the tribunal of Ragusa this About twenty years ago a peasant of the neighborhood of Ragusa, being no longer able to support his wife, emigranted to the United States, leaving his better half in charge of the village priest. From the first luck smiled on him, and he was able to send the priest 50 florins a month for his wife. As his position improved he increased the amount of his monthly remittances. But the rascally reverendo only handed 5 florins the woman. This went a month to on for fifteen years, when the worthy clerical gentleman forged certificate of the husband's death, and placed it in the hands of the wife, whose death he likewise certified in a forged document and sent to the husband in America. Shortly afterward he piously betook himself to Corfu, where he hoped to spend the remainder of his days in peace, rejoicing in the remembrance of his good works. Fate had decided otherwise. The unfortunate woman, his victim, was forced to get her living by begging from the passengers of the Lloyd steamers that touched at Ragusa, and her husband sought consolation in remarriage with a rich American lady, by whom he had two children. After twenty years' absence he resolved to make a tour in Europe with his family. He visited Paris, Vienna, Triest, and finally Ragusa. On landing at that harbor a beggar woman accosted him and asked for alms. They recognized each other simultaneously. The beggar wo-man was his wife, whom he believed to have been dead for several years. The priest has been arrested, and will be tried, when, in all probability, the second marriage will be annulled.

THE PERILS OF GUNNING.

A Sportsman Points Out Why There Are s Many Accidents.

A well-known sportsman, speaking of the many accidents that occur to gunners at this season, says: "Now that it is the game season for a great many birds, certain points that have recently been raised by a well-informed English sports-man are deserving of attention. He says that since the introduction of the breech loading fowling pieces, cases of accidental shooting have become painfully numerous, and the relative number seems to be increasing in proportion as the gen eration which began its experience with muzzle-loading guns disappears from the scene. The reason given is that the use of a muzzle-loading gun involves so much delay in re-charging that the sportsman was unconsciously more careful than he is at the present day, when cartridges can be slipped in the barrel with hardly any delay. The old gunner would reserve his fire through fear that by shooting too soon he might lose an opportunity to take advantage of chances that would occur a moment or two later. But under existing conditions there is no need of taking such considerations into account, and this has begotten a carelessness which, with young sports men, particulary when several young men shooting together, verges upon dangerous. Wild game shooting is an amusement which is incidentally so health-giving that it deserves to receive encouragement; but, like many other outof-door sports, it is attended with certain risks, though the one which we have pointed out might, it seems to us, be materially lessened if the fact that they were handling dangerous weapons rested at all times prominently in the minds of the sportsmen.

THE FIRE DEPARTMENT.

The Service not Efficient Because of the Poor Equipment.

The firemen claim to be able to demonstrate.

strate that they can get up steam in a few minutes, even when the fire is banked, and the outside of the engine seemingly cold. They say that they keep their engines in such shape so that they will have no trouble at any time to get up steam, while the hose is being stretched. greatest trouble with the whole business is that the engines are worn out and are mighty little good. They are also poorly equipped, there being scarcely five hun dred feet of hose all told, and most of that is too rotten to stand the pressure.

Some one seems to be culpable in not properly supplying the department with ose, as no matter how well the apparatus is managed, little effective service can be done with the present equipment. hose must be had and it should have been bought long ago. New engines would have cost no more either, two months ago than now.

The State Work.

About three hundred men will be put to work to-day in the Stonycreek and Conemaugh, but the probabilities are that they will not be kept at work over a

The Weather.

Indications for to-day is fair, warmer weather.

"THE best husbands I ever met," says the author of "John Halifax," " came out of a family where the mother, a most heroic and self-denying woman, laid down the absolute law, 'Girls First;' not in any authority, but first to be thought porter of this paper was going up Bedford all, especially of one Jamie, whom of in protection and tenderness. Consequently the chivalrous care which those brutal and disgraceful fights that ever lads were taught to show their sisters naturally extended itself to all women. They grew up true gentlemen-gentlemen generous, unexacting, courteous of speech, and kind of heart."

THE LAST SAD RITES.

Funeral of Rev. Father Davin Thousand People Present-Solemn Service at St. Columba's Caurch. A trial involving circumstances of an

The remains of the late Rev. Thomas Davin, arrived from Denver, Colorado, Monday morning on Atlantic Express. They were removed by Undertaker Howe to Cambria. There was a large concourse of people, more than the church could contain in attendance, The solemn and impressive services were commenced at 10 o'clock, consisting of the reading of the "office," a high mass of requiem and a eulogium. The funeral procession was formed and started for the Lower Yoder Cemetery, where the remains of the great and good man were laid to rest.

The church was draped in deep mourn ing, and the members of the Emerald Beneficial Society were in attendance, and stood guard while the remains were viewed by that vast concourse of people Mass was begun at precisely 10:30. Rev. Father Ryan was the celebrant. Deacon. Rev. Philip Brady; Sub-Deacon, Rev. Martin Meagher, of the Diocese of Erie; Master of Ceremonies, Rev. James Donnelly, of Gallitzin.

Rev. P. J. Quitter, of Sugar Creek, preached a very eloquent and touching sermon during the mass, paying a splendid tribute to the life and character of the dead priest. The services were concluded at 12:30, when the cortege started for the cemetery. The pall-bearers were Patrick Boyle, Patrick Connelly, James Burns, John McDermott, John C. Ryan, and John Dowling.

There were several beautiful floral tributes and on the hearse an elegant design, "The Gates Ajar," bearing the inscription, "Our Spiritual Advisor," the offering of the Emerald Society. At the head of the procession were carriages con taining Bishop Phelan and the priests. Followed by St. Columba's Band and the Societies St. George's Uniform Rank, St. Columba's Temperance, Young Ladies Sodality, Temperance Cadets, Emerald Beneficial, Ancient Order of Hibernians, and the congregation. The cortege en tered the cemetery at the west side where the priests alighted from the carriages. The priests chanted a requiem as the casket was borne to the vault, prepared for the remains. It is estimated that fully four thousand people were in attendance.

The following are the names of the priests who were in attendance : Coadjutor-Bishop Phelan, of Pittsburgh; Very Rev. Father Wall, Vicar General, and Fathers F. McCourt, F. Devlin, J. Sheehan, M. Lambing, T. Keane, J. P. Tahaney, Constantine, C. P., William Kittell, Alto, O. S. B., Louis Camp, C. H R., Dohovan, H. McHugh, James nelly, Martin Ryan, Simon, C. P., E. W Trautwine, M. H. Great Men and Prize-Fighting

According to the Cincinnati Enquire it is no reflection on a man's character to be fond of prize-fighting. It contends that some of the greatest men that America has known have been good patrons of the prize ring. Charles Reade, so it stated, witnessed the Heenan-Sayers fight and wrote the best description of it that had appeared in print. Bulwer made it a point to see all the great ring contests of his time, and Roscoe Conkling loved a prize-fight and did not like to miss one. He was a skillful pugilist him-When Garfield was President the self. officers came very near catching him among the spectators at a mill between

What does this all show? Simply the truth of Robert Louis Stevenson's asser tion that beneath the most polished gentleman one can always find the savage if one seeks deep enough. The fact cannot be denied. Human nature is of many phases, the brute included.

To Pass Through Our City.

The Democrat contained a full account of the meeting of the International American Congress yesterday morning and their proposed tour through United States. The party will arrive in Altoona on November 9th, and visit the machine shops, and then the party will proceed on their way and pass through our city on the 11th, and as they propo stopping at Altoona they ought not to for-Johnstown, for it will be a grand sight for those that know not what destruction is here.

Brick Thieves.

Now comes one more complaint to the authorities of our city to the effect that the bricks that the residents have bought and paid for, are being stolen by nonresidents of the town, and sold very reasonable so as to "accomodate the sufferers," as the theives classify it. But now that the officers have of late been keeping diligent watch over the bricks and that two arrests have been made we and that two a. think it will stop.

street, he witnessed one of the most could occur between two 'drunks." did not last long, but while the fray was going on they bit each other like dogs, and was finally separated by some men who were passing by.

Leprosy and Pork Eaters.

In 1428 the master and governor of the lepen hospital sued the sworn butchers of Troyes for default of their annual gilt of twenty-live beacon pigs, and they were ordered, instead of the contribution in kind, to pay to the hospital in every future year the sum of twelve silver marks in the shape of a dozen cups of fine silver, stamped with the Paris hall mark, gilt and hammered in the best fashion. This was again, later on commuted for a payment of 200 livres in coin, which were still paid by the corporation of butchers to the general hospital of the town as late as 1760.

This butchers' pork tribute bears some further comment. Louis IX found a leprous monk feeding on pork, and the Turks of the Levant to this day say that the Greeks contract leprosy from eating the intolerably bad salt pork of the country. There is no doubt that the disease of pigs which we know as measles was called leprosy, that is, ladrerie, in the middle agos, and it would seem that there was a belief that it was the same as the human disease, and that it was communicable to man by eating pig's flesh. It was well known that this leprosy or measles could be detected under the pig's tongue, and these two facts would appear to have been the origin of the tongue inspectors, (the languayeurs,) whose active working before 1375 is proved by an ordinance of the Provest of Paris dated in that year. When leprosy diminished in the human subject, the inspection of pork became more lax, as Le Grand d'Aussy testifies in his "Vie Privee des Francais, 1, 317. Professor Stact, it is true, maintains that the term "mesel" (which we have seen above as mezel) for a leper has nothing to do with the word measles; but this leading fact about the pig disease seems to have escaped him. Du Cange, in his "Observations on the Life of St. Louis," says that mezeau (a form of mesel) and ladre (a lazar, a leper) were synonymous. The assertion that the low Latin noun messellus, a leper, came from the very classic diminitive adjective miscellus, wre

The Canals of Mars

The Canals of Mars.

Through the agency of the Lick telescope, the surface of the planet Mars has been manped out with additional clearness. The canals which can be very plainty seen, lie in the torrid and warmer portions of the temperate zone, and extend from the Northern to the Southern ocean. They are, in general, 2,000 or 3,000 miles in length and over thirty miles in breadth. They are generally arranged in pairs 200 or 300 miles apart, and so exactly parallel that usually no deviation can be detected.

They cut up the continent surface so there is no spot more than 400 miles distant from one of these markings. There is still much surmies as to whether these assumed canals are artificial or natural. It is argued that they cannot be artificial, because of their great width, but on the other hand, it is equally inconceivable that the forces of nature could, by the laws of accident, have constructed such an intricate system of markings and observe an equal width in every case. The late Professor Proctor suggested that the canals are the diffracted images of rivers, produced by mists which hang over the river beds.—Exchange.

Insect Scavengers.
"Under the microscope," says Mr. Henry J. Slack, F. R. M. S., "it is seen that as animal and vegetable matter rots away, swarms of ferments come into existence. For example, in a drop of water the flesh of a dead water-flea was notteed in commotion while the writer was engaged on this paper. Thousands of U shaped vibrions were living upon it. All were in brisk motion, straightening and bending their bodies with whip-like flicks. "They were a company of scavengers,

"They were a company of scavengers, sweetening the water by a chemical of process necessary for their own nutrition. Our rivers and ponds would become factories of deadly poisons, and all the earth's soil would be contaminated, if inexpressible myriads of minute plants and animals did not attack dead organic matter and cause its elements to enter into new and useful combinations. If we find thousands of such little ferments at work upon a fragment no bigger than a full stop of this print, what must be the numbers in operation when tons upon tons are dealt with in the contents of our sewers, in the manures we put on our fields and in the vast multitudes of human and other bodies than perish on land or sea."—Exchange.

An s-Months-Old Bride.

An announcement which appeared in an Indian paper of recent date throws a most remarkable light upon the child-marrings question:

most remarkable light upon the child-marriage question:
"An INFANT BRIDE.—A curious mar-riage ceremony took place at Bamun-daugah, near Jonai, Hooghly district, a few days ago, a baby, 8 months old, of the Brahmin caste, being married to a charitri Brahmin, 28 years old. The father of the bride gave the bridegroom a present of Rs. 200 in cash for marrying his daughter."

scotland's Opportunities for Sport.
The value to Scotland of the opportunities for sports is very large. The deer forests, of which there are 109, covering 3,000 square miles of land useless for agriculture, rent for £100,000 annually. £12,500 of this goes to the local taxes. If any forest fails to be rented, the whole neighborhood feels it greatly in the diminished amount of money expended there. The grouse moors rent for £400,000, and pay £55,000 in taxes. Most salron rivers are let with the moors, but some are rented alone, and add a considerable sum to the total already given.—
