FRIDAY FEBRUARY 7, 1890.

CALL FOR DEMOCRATIC COUNTY COMMITTEE.

To the members of the Democratic County Committee.

GENTLEMEN: There seems to be a prevailing opinion among Democrats that a change should be made in our system of nominating candidates for offices. It is urged that the present system has damaged the party in the county, and a like result has followed its adoption in all other counties where it prevailed. I have been repeatedly urged by prominent Democrats throughout the county, who have no other interest in the matter than the good of the party, to call the County Committee together for the purpose of considering the propriety of retaining the present, or adopting the old style delegate system or increased delegate system. Therefore, I will ask what deems a public demand, That the members of the Democratic Committee meet at the Armory Hall, in Ebensburg on Monday the 24th day of February 1890, at 2 o'clock P. M., for the purpose of deliberating on this and other matters of interest to the party. I would further suggest that each member of the Committee consult his constituents on the the subject so that any action taken by the Committee would be endorsed by the party.

JOSEPH A. GRAY,
Chairman of the Democratic Committee.
Carrolltown, Pa., January 29, 1890.

SPEAKER REED still continues to pursue the method of ruling at the "brink of the volcano."

A CALIFORNIA revivalist says Chicago will be destroyed by an enormous wave from Lake Michigan in the near future. The Chicagoans claim that this is New York's only show to get that Fair.

THE new cruiser Baltimore has for her first honorable duty the carriage of Ericsson's body to Norway. Once across the sea she will show her pretty self in the ports of the old world—the fastest cruiser of her class made by human hands.

HORATIO ALLEN, who recently died at South Orange, New Jersey, was the first man who ever ran a locomotive on this continent. The locomotive was the Stourbridge Lion, and Allen ran it about a mile at Honesdale, then reversed the lever and returned.

WHEN the Republicans bring in rules to stop dilatory motions and make a visible quorum a legal quorum, then it will be fair for them to discuss whether Mr. Reed's flop from the principles he avowed in 1880, is an improvement or the reverse. That will be the legal way to do it. The present is not the right way.

WHAT is said to be the most powerful electric light in existence has recently been put into operation in a lighthouse at Houstholm, on the dangerous coast of Jutland. It is of two million candle power, mounted on a tower about two hundred feet high and can be seen at a distance of thirty-five miles even in rainy weather.

THE preparation of Germany for war is shown by the statement that within seven days she can put 1,400,000 soldiers at any point on her frontier and can reinforce them by 800,000 more in another week. This is calculated to fill good Americans with a sincere gratification that 3,000 miles of ocean interpose between us and such a neighbor.

A WOMAN named Shaw is the plaintiff in a queer suit in New York State. She was a widow and offered $14,000 for a husband. A young man accepted the offer and got the money. Now Mrs. Shaw seems to have repented of her bargain, for she began an action against Mr. Shaw in the Supreme Court in Westchester county asking for an accounting of the estate and a judgment against the property, claiming that her bought husband was only the trustee.

THE PROMISE TO OBEY.

We have arrived at a point where dissent from the popular view is no longer deemed unlovely. Charming young ladies are beginning to have opinions of their own, and we find they can express them without losing the opportunity for family ties and congenial companionship. Life has a broader outlook for woman, and marriage imposes no barrier to progress. An Episcopal lady was asked what she meant by her marriage vows. She promptly replied: "I reserved the privilege of private judgment." Excellent; but why make vows that have no significance? Better drop the form than make the inward reservation. Said Beriah Green, fifty years ago: "I never require the woman to promise more than the man in the marriage ceremony." A wise thought of a great and good man. This is the principle of equality we are contending for to-day. It applies to the family as much as to the State.—Mrs. Maria G. Frost.

SPARING THEIR STRENGTH.

Harper's Young People.

"Look at those men!" exclaimed Harry Delmar, as he pointed to some trackman at work. "It takes six of them to carry that iron rail, and they move like snails."

"They are sparing their strength," remarked his father.

"Well, I should say so," declared Harry. "Four of them could carry that rail with ease."

"Perhaps they could," replied his father. "They are sparing their strength, and they are wise."

Harry looked at his father, a faint, expression of surprise on his face.

"I notice that the foreman does not reprove them," continued his father. "He is satisfied that they are doing an honest day's work. If they worked as you seem to think they ought to work, it is likely they would not be here to-or row, or not on the next day at least. They would break down. They must husband their strength so that they can work day after day without abatement. There is speed in method though it may seem tedious. A quick fire soon burns itself out. The tortoise beat the hare in a race. A rocket makes a big fuss, but it comes down a stick. A volcano creates a great uproar, but it remains still a long while afterward. Tremendous efforts are soon spent. The 'pitching in' process does not last long. It is wise for us, my son, to spare our strength, whether we labor with our hands or brains. It is the secret of long sustained effort. The energy in reserve is often the energy that wins and wears."

"I see now, papa, that I spoke too hastily," Harry said. "The men are not shirking their work. Yes, they are wise."

THE BURIAL PLACE OF THE MOTHER OF WASHINGTON.

Marion Harland, the friend and helper of women everywhere, has taken up the work of restoring the ruined monument marking the burial place of Mary the Mother of Washington.

One hunered years ago this venerable woman was interred in private grounds near Fredericksburg, Virginia. In 1833, the corner-stone of an imposing memorial was laid by President Andrew Jackson. A patriotic citizen of New York assumed the pious task, single-handed, but meeting with financial disaster, was compelled to abandon it.

Marion Harland says truly—in her appeal to the mothers and daughters of America to erect a fitting monument to her who gave Our Country a Father—"that the sun shines upon no sadder ruin in the length and breadth of our land, than this unfinished structure."

The publishers of The Home-Maker, of which Marion Harland is the editor, offer, as their contribution to the good cause, seventy-five cents out of every annual subscription of two dollars to the magazine sent in during the next six months. Every such subscription must be accompanied by the words, "For Mary Washington Monument."

The offer is generous and should meet with an enthusiastic response.

CHATTEL MORTGAGES.

Of all the States and Territories in the Union, Pennsylvania is the only one in which chattel mortgages are not recognized under the law.

A man may own a plant of machinery and appliances and fixtures in our State free from all encumbrances, yet no matter how badly he may be pinched for money in a time of pecuniary stress, he cannot borrow money on such security, unless by such evasions of the laws of the Commwealth as no honest man cares to resort to, and under circumstances which render the creditor liable to loss.

Under the laws at present in force, the manufacturers and business men of our State are deprived of the benefits of a chattel mortgage law, which in many cases would save them from considerable loss.

Advocates of the adoption of the system urge that in other States there is no difficulty in placing chattel mortgages on record, nor has the law authorizing them operated disadvantageously in any way. It has, it is stated, on the other hand, been of great advantage to manufacturers by enabling them, in times of financial stringency, to obtain money advances upon machinery and valuable goods when the banks were unable or unwilling to afford the usual discounts.

Pennsylvania has made great progress in the accumulation of wealth since the laws now enforced governing mortgages were enacted, and the problem now is, "where shall we find a borrower?" rather than as formerly, "to whom shall we lend our money?"

The adoption of the chattel mortgage system would greatly enlarge the field for both borrowers and lenders, and thus afford a new and comparatively safe outlet for much of the money now compelled to lie idle in the hands of private capitalists, and at a good rate of interest.

As it is now, few business men in Pennsylvania care to make loans on "bills of sale," covering plants and machinery, which, when the pinch comes, are of no real value; or in the way of "borrowed and received" contracts, which have decided against by our highest legal authority as "conditional sales;" or by any of the numerous forms of leases, which are seldom sustained by our courts when appealed to by creditors.

It is well said that few capitalists care to risk money on such doubtful expedients; hence the necessity for the passage of a chattel mortgage law that will enable a man to advance money upon chattels as securely as upon real estate, protected by deeds duly recorded in the proper county office, where access can at all times be had to the records to ascertain the claims filed against individuals or firms.

ANOTHER SUICIDE.

Joseph Bernd, of the South Side, Puts an end to His Life by Hanging Himself.

The dead body of Joseph Bernd was found Wednesday forenoon dangling at the end of a rope, the other end of which was attached to a small tree in a field near Grand View Cemetery. The find was made by John Bishop, brother-in-law of the deceased, who had gone in search of him.

Bernd had left his home shortly after midnight the night before notwithstanding the strenuous efforts of his wife and friends to prevent him. He got up from bed and said that he must go. Mrs. Bernd called in help from her mother's ends of the house, which stands on Benton street, Fifth ward, but it was all to no purpose. John Bishop, brother of the wife followed the apparently demented man to near the entrance to Grand View Cemetery, when he turned back, fearing violence, as Bernd threw a stone at him.

Joseph Bernd was an Austrian by birth, and came to this country about fifteen years ago. About ten years ago he married Miss Bishop, who with five children—three girls and two boys—survives him. Seven years ago he and his family moved to Braddock, from which place he moved to Homestead in February last to take charge of the plate mill at that place. Shortly after the flood the family again moved to Johnstown. On the lot on Potts street, owned by the deceased, a house is nearing completion. The flood had carried a house from that lot, causing the owner much worry.

The deceased was a temperate man and very much engrossed in his work, so much so, in fact, that at times his mental balance was questioned. He belonged to the Austrian Musical Society and enjoyed the confidence of those with whom he came in contact. He has a sister, Mrs. Sholdner, of Woodvale, who is a widow. The rope with which he accomplished the hanging had been cut from the clothes line in the yard as he left the house.

TERRIBLE EXPLOSION AT GALLITZIN.

A Gasoline Pit Goes off With Frightful Results.

Mr. Joseph Bengele keeps a large store at Gallitzin, near the western end of the tunnel. In the rear of his extensive building, part of which is used as a dwelling, he has, or rather had, a large pit or shed in which he kept a large quantity of gasoline, from which he obtained a supply of gas for lighting his storeroom and dwelling.

On Tuesday evening about 4:30 o'clock, Mr. Bengele and some others were at work fixing something that had got wrong with the arrangements about the pit. Mr. Bengele had gone down into the pit to make some adjustment, when he was overcome by the gas, which had escaped from the gasoline vessels. Some one went to his assistance, carrying a light. Just as the light got near a terrific explosion took place, knocking the men in all directions. In a moment the whole wreck was enveloped in flames. Mr. Bengele was lying in the midst of all, with flames all around him. A young man named Adelsbarker jumped into the wreck and threw Bengele out, thus saving him from being consumed in the flames. Some others who were present and sustained severe injuries were James Gillen, James Pigeon and two men named Brannan and McTage.

Mr. Bengele was very badly burned, as were the other gentlemen, but it is thought that all will recover, as the best of medical skill is in attendance.

DIED OF HIS INJURIES.

Thomas Plummer, of Summerhill, Meets With a Frightful Accident Which Terminates Fatally.

On Tuesday evening between the hours of 7 and 8 o'clock Thomas Plummer, Jr., who was employed as a freight brakeman on the Pennsylvania Railroad, had both his legs cut off while on duty at South Fork. Dr. W. B. Lowman, of this city, was summoned, but it was impossible to prevent a fatal ending of the sad accident. Death resulted about 1 o'clock yesterday morning.

The deceased was an unmarried young man, and a son of Mr. Thomas Plummer, for many years Pennsylvania railroad watchman at Summerhill, where he lives. Father McHugh, of Willmore, happened to be on Philadelphia Express east, and was notified at South Pork of the accident. He stopped off and administered he consolations of his religion to the dying young man, who remained perfectly conscious to the last moment.

More Human Remains Found.

Part of a body, found at Coopersdale on Tuesday, has been brought to the morgue. It is described as follows:

No. 533, portion of a trunk and lower limbs, evidently of a female; brown piece of canton flannel underwear, two pieces of cotton dress goods (one green, the other blue with white spots) found with the body.

WEATHER HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF.

People Should Not be Alarmed About the Present Mildness.

An exchange says, to show how idle is all this talk about mild winters being something new under the sun and due to changing seasons, the reader is invited to persue the following extract from the diary of Sir Samuel Pepys: "January 21, 1661, he writes: 'It is strange what weather we have had all this winter; no cold at all, but the ways are dusty and the flies fly up and down, and the rose bushes are full of leaves, such a time of the year as was never known in this world before here.' On January 15th of the following year, the state of the weather appears to have been of such unusual mildness, that Parliament ordered a fast day to pray for more seasonable weather. He writes on that day the following: "Mr. Berkenshaw asked me whether we had not committed a fault in eating today; telling me that it is a fast day ordered by the Parliament to pray for more seasonable weather, it having been hitherto summer weather, that it is, both as to warmth and every other thing, just as if it were the middle of May or June, which do threaten a plague (as all men think) to follow, so it was almost last winter, and the whole year after has been a very sickly time to this day."

Testimonial to General Hastings.

The testimonial to General D. H. Hastings and his acceptance of the invitation to visit Johnstown with Mrs. Hastings, is printed on another page. The General has many warm friends here among people of all parties, as is well attested by the signatures to the invitation. They well remember the kind yet resolute course taken by him to restore and preserve order during the trying times subsequent to our terrible calamity. To his coming we all say welcome.

In a Critical Condition.

John McColgan, who was so frightfully burned at the Steel Works some days ago, was in a critical condition all day yesterday, but late in the evening his condition was reported as somewhat improved. He is at the Cambria Hospital. Dr. W. B. Lowman, the attending physician, is doubtful of his the recovery of his patient.

Then I'd not hope in vain
Thine ear to gain;
But now I halt—I—quail—
Ah! must I fail?

So small my skill to plead
My earnest need,
Love—love is all the plea
I bring to thee.

Important to Raiload Men

A. E. Smith has been for forty-nine years road master on the Boston & Maine system, and is now residing at Great Falls, N. H. He says trackmen, brakemen, firemen, engineers and conductors, as well as baggage masters and expressmen, are subject to kidney disease above all others. All, therefore, will be interested in the statement of his experience. "I have used Brown's Sarsaparilla for kidney and liver troubles, and can truly say it has done more for me than all the doctors I ever employed, and I have had occasion to require the services of the best physicians in the State. My wife also has been greatly benefitted by its use.
