FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 7, 1890

Andrew Weaver, sixty-five years of age was found murdered on Tuesday morning in front of the house of his daughter-in law, Fiette Weaver, about three miles from Coburn, in Centre county, Pa. He had been stabbed through the heart with a butcher knife. Fiette Weaver, Jonas Auman and his mother, Mrs. Auman, were arrested, and Fiette Weaver was commited by a justice of the peace as the murderer, and the others were committed as accessorits. They were lodged in jail at Beliefonte. Weaver and his daughterin-law had frequently quarrelled, and she is said to have threatened to "kill him if she got the chance."

A beautiful young lady became so sadly disfigured with pumples and blotches that it was feared she would die of grief. A friend recommended Ayer's Sarsaparila, which she took, and was completely cured. She is now one of the fairest of the fair.

Poor Hunanity !

Poor Hunanity:

The commol to is one of sorrow say—at least—the pessimists, they who look at the worst side. Certainly what would otherwise be a bright existence, is often shadowed by some allment that overhangs it like a pall, obscuring perpetually the radiance that else would light the path. Such an aliment, and a very common one, is nervousness, or in other words, weakness of the nervous system, a condition only irremediable where ineficient or improper means are taken to relieve it.
