

SOME VERY NOTED WOMEN

WHO THEY ARE AND HOW THEY SPEND THEIR MONEY.

Mrs. Pullman, of Chicago—Her Magnificent Home and Entertainments—Mrs. Davis' Strange History—Mrs. Senator Edmunds and Miss Jones, a Washington Debutante.

In many respects Chicago is fast treading on the heels of New York. In the latter city there is a class to whom the acquisition of wealth is a matter of no moment; not the artist class, who are proverbial for their contempt of money, and who enjoy life in a Bohemian fashion, but a class so rich that any effort to add to their wealth appears undesirable to them.

This class, imitating a similar class in England, gives itself to pleasure. A surfeit of means having been gained, another object of interest must take the place of its acquirement. The wealthiest and most ambitious become leaders, from the fact that they give the most splendid entertainments.

In the summer they are at their country seats, but they have only put off one dress to assume a similar one. The balls of winter have become fetes, with the cotillon often danced with as much vivacity as in mid-winter.

Among the wives of these millionaires there is one who, even if her husband still clings to his office, seems inclined to break over the line and become a leader in the same sense that there are leaders in New York.

There is a debutante in Washington this season who has created quite a sensation. She is Miss Mary Jones, the daughter of Senator and Mrs. Jones, of Nevada.

Naturally Anna was ambitious to get above the social level to which she was born, and she set about fitting herself for some profession by which she could become self supporting.

to feel the rich generosity of her heart. Miss Agnew was courted by men of wealth and position, while the wives and daughters of the opulent in their jealousy turned up their dainty noses and sneered at the "beautiful seamstress," as she had become to be known.

But all this flattery and all this fawning seemed to make no impression on the young lawyer, and the mothers and fathers and daughters began to wonder if he was a misogynist, a woman hater.

"What's the matter?" inquired Davis. "Oh, ho! What do you think your horse did?" asked the real estate man.

"I don't see anything strange in that," quietly replied Davis. "That horse has been in the habit of taking me to that house pretty often lately. I'm going to marry Agnew's daughter."

Mrs. Senator Edmunds is another interesting person in the social world of Washington. She is the wife of Senator Edmunds, of Vermont.

Proposed Presbyterian Revision.

Nothing has recently caused greater interest in the religious world than the discussion of proposed revision of the Westminster Confession by the Presbyterians.

Here is a cut from the Columbus (O.) Post of the ruin wrought by the recent explosion of natural gas in that city.

THE BLIND TWADDLES.

AN OHIO FAMILY OF NINE, NONE OF WHOM COULD SEE.

Their Remarkable Powers, which Attracted the Attention of Scientific Men Seventy Years Ago—The Death of the Last One Brings Out the Story.

"Blind Andrew Twaddle" remained seated in his pew after the benediction, and his friends and neighbors passed down the aisles. With a calm smile upon his aged face, his large eyes sightless no more now than they had been during the three score years and four of his life, and turned toward the rude pulpit, he sat quiet and still in death.

The state of Ohio, by a special act of its legislature, decreed to the parents for the support of their children a quarter of a section (100 acres) of the best of the agricultural lands of eastern Ohio.

They were as able to go to any place upon their farms or to surrounding towns and perform all their necessary farm work without attendance or help, as if they had perfect eyesight.

But perhaps the most remarkable as well as the best authenticated of their acquirements was the power of telling the colors of animals by touch.
