Dun's weekly review of trade says The state of trade has not materially tered during the past week, though the change of weather has produced much temporary improvement in some lines and in others the trade is less satisfactory than a week ago. The business failure throughout the country during the last seven days number for the United States 223 and for Canada thirty-seven. For the corresponding week of last year the floures were 241 failures in the United States and forty-eight in Canada.

Change of Pastors.

The Altoona Times says; "Rev.
Father Bush, who for the past twenty years or more has with great zeal and acceptability administered to the spiritual wants of the Catholics of Loretto and vicinity, has been appointed pastor of St. John's Church, this city, and will probably enter upon his new field of labors some time during the coming week. Rev. Father O'Reilly, of St. John's, whom Father Bush will succeed, is to have charge of the new church soon to be built on the east side of the city, and it is understood that Rev. Father Ryan, of St. Augustine, has been assigned to duty at Loretto. Who is to take the latter's place we have not learned."

THIEVING ON AN EXTENDED SCALE. A Boarder Att supts to Get Off With Considerable Property Not His Own. Wm. Michaelson, who has for some time been boarding with George Studeny, at No.161 Feeder street, was arrested Monday at the Pennsylvania Railroad Sta tion as he was about to board a train for Philadelphia. The complaints on which the warrant for Michaelson's arrest was made are numerous and consist of the larcency of $25 from Mr. Studeny, in cash and a silver watch, on which was engraved "Our Father George Studeny."

He also took from the boardira valuable coat and vest

Michaelson left the house yesterday afternoon about 2 o'clock Shortly after he left the money and watch were missed the boarders also missed their clothing.

A warrant was at once issued for Michaelson's arrest, and one of Mr. Studeny's sons, Frank, at once surmised that he would leave town. He therefore watched each train as it went out, having an officer whom he could call at any moment. When the Johnstown Accom modation reached Johnstown, Michaelson walked from behind the Pennsylvania signal tower, where he was secreted, and with coat collar turned up around his neck he made for the train, endeavoring to hide his face. When he discovered his mistake he made his way to the lower end of the platform, but not until he was recongnized by Frank who handed him over to Officer Clark, who is in the service of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. It required several men to take a revolver from him, and a razor was afterward found on his person. When Assistant Ticket Agent Moore took the revolver from him, a friend of his who also in tended accompanying him, interfered, and when thrown out of the baggage room, he immediately entered and again attempted to rescue Michaelson.

This time he was overpowered and the handcuffs slipped on both him and Michaelson. Officer Clark and an Adams Express clerk hustled them off to the Johnstown lock-up, where they will have a hearing before Burgess Horrell to-day on three or four charges of larceny.

Michaelson, before being arrested, had a ticket for Philadelphia, and it is presumed he also bought the one for his friend.

When arrested Michaelson had in his possession $9.33 in cash, a bottle of whiskey, a package of cigars and a number of small articles which he had taken from Mr. Studeny and his Embalmed Cats From Egypt.

A consignment of nineteen and one half tons of embalmed cats from Beni Hassan, Central Egypt, has just reached Liverpool. In this parcel there are remains of about 180,000 cats. They were discovered by an Egyptian fellah employed in husbandry, who fell into a pit which, on further examination, proved to be a large subterranean cave completely filled with cats, every one of which had been separately embalmed and dressed in cloth after the manner of Egyptian mummies, all being separately laid out in rows Specimens of these have been taken by Mr. Moore, the curator of the Liverpool museum, where they can be seen. remainder are about to be employed as manure. Our people now needless tariff tax upon it of $6,000,000 annually. The proposed increase of the tax would carry the sum from $6,000,000 up to $14,000,000 a year. To benefit whom? A set of blood-suckers, who are now infesting Washington and demanding this increase of tax under the pretext of enabling them to make tin-plate in this country. If the farmers, canning manufacurers, and millions of consumers don't stamp this outrageous scheme with their utter condemnation and disgust they will deserve the injury which its adoption will inevitably inflict.

Rev. Dr. Mansell and the Charges Which Were Made Against Him.

The trial of Rev. R. B. Mansell began Monday in the First M. E. Church, Mc-Keesport.

It was decided to hold the investigation with open doors. Dr. Mansell was represented by Dr. Alfred Wheeler and Rev. J. B. Risk, the church was represented by J. E. Wright. The charges against Rev.

Mr. Mansell are lying and defamation. Rev. James Meacham was the first witness who testified that the accused had acknowledged he had wronged certain persons. This witness was on the stand almost the entire day. Dr. C. W. Smith was then called to the stand who testified the "accused said 'I lied and I acknowledged that I did." The investigation interest is being taken in the matter the church being crowded at all times.

Cambria May be for Hastings After All.

Squire Hart, of Johnstown, an ardent Republican, is authority for the statement that the delegates of that county will vote for General Hastings.

"How do the Hastings people hope to bring about such an arrangement?" he was asked.
"The arrangement has been brought about by the force of public sentiment. We have had nothing to do with it, and if it were necessary we would call new primaries. But it is not necessary. voters appreciate that they have been defrauded out of their rights, and the delegates are not disposed to go the to Convention and vote against the wishes of their party and their associates."

LITTLE STORIES OF ANIMALS. A Dog That Died for a Fool Master-Curi-

"I have never let any of my dogs re-trieve birds since an experience I had with a cruel sportsman over on the Dela-ware river late one fall," said a Scranton bird shooter the other day. "The n owned a spiended pointer that knew a good deal more about some things than his master did, and we were both shooting quails over him along the banks of the river. He was harsh with the dog, and the poor creature was often compelled to do what he knew to be sense less things, just because he felt certain that he would be licked like the mischief if he didn't obey. Each side of the river was frozen over out to the main channel. where there was a strip about a foot wide that wasn't covered with ice. One of the quail that I shot started to fly across the river and dropped dead on the thin ice within a few inches of the open chan-nel. My companion ordered the pointer to go and get it, and the obedient dog dashed out upon the ice till he got within a couple of yards or so of the dead bird, when he halted, for the ice had begun to crack under him. Then he looked back at his master and wagged his tail, and his actions told us as plain *s words that he knew it would be dangerous for him

I begged the man to sail the dog back and let the minks have the quail, but he wouldn't listen to me. Again he ordered the dog to fetch the quail in, and again the dog made an effort to reach it, but the ice cracked and he turned about, whined piteously, and in every way that he knew how begged his master to call him back. But the heartless man was determined to make the dog said, and he velled savagely at the pointer to get the dead bird. dog sprang forward and seized the quail. The ice gave way under him, the current was swift, and out of sight the poor thing went, with the bird in his mouth. That was the last the cruel man ever saw of his obedient dog. He hunted down the river for a long distance, but it was use s, for the dog had perished under the ce while faithfully performing his duty

The man was sorry, then, of course, and indeed the poor dog's death taught him a lesson he never forgot."

While hunting partridges near Round Swamp, in Clifton township, last fall, Aaron Bidgood saw a fox scrambling around in a mud puddle at a great rate. He was sixtyrested in the animal's never. He was interested in the animal's queen antics, and after he had watched the lively fox for awhile he came to the conclusion that it was catching frogs, or at least trying to catch them. Its tail was covered with mud, and it was hopping covered with mud, and it was hopping and jumping around it toud and water upon its belly when Bidgood stole up near enough to see that the sly fellow was really gobbling up a frog every few seconds. Bidgood said he didn't care to molest it just then, and while he was watching its capers from the midst of a clump of bushes another fox, apparently the first one's mate, agrang into the mud hole from the opposite side and went to catching the long legged occupants of the puddle on its own hook. When Bidgood had looked at the cuming frog eaters as long as he cared to, he yelled, and the two mud covered foxes floundered out of the puddle in a hurry and scampered directly toward the clump of bushes where the hunter was concealed. They were very much frightened, and They were very much frightened, and the mud on their bushy tails and in the long fur kept their speed down considerably, and when they came along Bidgood killed each of them with a charge of bird shot.

A fox that had been chased by a hound

A rox that had been chassed by a round for ten hours lost its life in a peculiar way in the Lackawanna valley late on a day in January. Reynard had been pursued until he was pretty well tackered out, and he ran down into the valley from the Spring Brook side. He pointed for the Lackawanna river, but year the for the Lackawanna river, but near the bank he changed his course, swung around a large coal breaker, and ran up the steep incline to the head house at the top of the breaker. Through the head house he dashed, and then ran along a beam, sprang from the end of it to a culm pile, and scampered up the refuse railroad track to the summit, where culm was dumped. At the dump the fox darted past a boy and a mule, and started to slide down the steep pitch of loose mine refuse toward the river. The base of the culm pile has been on fire for several years, the fire extending up the side for forty or fifty feet. When the fox had begun to slide down he couldn't stop himself, and he slid right into the mass of glowing anthracite and was so badly burned before he got through it that he lay down and died close to the river bank. The hound, inside of half an hour, loped up the incline to the head house. It nosed around and bayed for a few seconds, lost the scent, and then dashed down the slope to a spot where it had left the level ground. There it got on the track again, and when it started up the plane the second time one of the men threw chunks of coal at it and it went yelping out of sight.—Scranton Letter in New York Sun.

A Deputy's Eccentricity.

M. Thivrier, a workingman, elected as such to the present chamber of deputies such to the present chamber of deputies in France, wears all the time in public the blouse which is the badge of a laborer in that country. M. Thivrier began work in the coal mines at Commentory, France, when twelve years old, and for twenty years remained in them, handling the pick. Afterward he became a vinegrower and dealer in wines. He is a Socialist, but not a communist, "for, having," as a French paper puts it, "acquired his capital by his own hard work, he cannot easily understand how that capital should belong to all the world." Through all his career he has stuck to his workjingman's blouse, and it was his workingman's blouse, and it was largely upon the strength of that pecu-liarity that he was elected a deputy. He is said to be a man of unusual intelligence and a good speaker. When he came to Paris to take his seat his blouse, which he wore not only at the chamber but at receptions and all other functions which he attended, made him at once famous.—Paris Letter.

Important to Raiload Men!

A E. Smith has been for forty-nine years road master on the Boston & Maine system, and is now residing at Great Falls, N. H. He says trackmen, brakemen, firemen, engineers and conductors, as well as baggage masters and expressmen, are subject to kidney disease above all others. All, therefore, will be interested in the statement of his experience. "Thave used the statement of his experience, "I have used Brown's Sarsaparilla for kidney and liver troubles, and can truly say it has done more for me than all the doctors I ever employed, and I have had occasion to require the services of the best physicians in the State. My wife also has been greatly benefitted by its use. A. E. SMITH. Road Master B. & M. R. R. !!."

The kidneys have been labored hard all win-ter, as the pores of the skin have been closed, but now the springtime har come, and they need some aid. May be you have that pain across the back; that tired reclup; those drawing down pains. If so, you can get immediate relief by and use that never-falling and grand corrector or the kidneys, liver and blood,

BROWN'S Sarsaparilla.
