ACCUSED HIMSELF FALSELY.

And was Sentenced to the Western Peniten tiary-Strange Case of Nicholas Parel. Last weak there died at the Western Penitentiary an Irishman who had a history. Hs was sentenced to the penitentiary under the name of Nicholas Parel, but his real name was Herman Fitzgerald, and he was the son of a well-to-do farmer in Ireland. Last spring he drifted into Perry county, Pa., and afterward fell in love with the the ninteeen year old daughter of his employer. Their court ship was clandestine, as both feared the farmer would disapprove of the match. But they could not keep their love hidden for any length of time. Among those who noticed the attachment were several neighboring swains who had cast their nets for the heart and hand of Fitzgerald's fiance, and who had all made water hauls. They began to sneer at Fitzgerald for his presumption in aspiring to a marriage which they thought was far above him.

One day he met two of his tormentors on the highway, and a sneer from them sent all the Irish blood in his veins to his head. He knocked one of them down and the other felled him with a stone. The two then jumped on him and gave him an unmerciful beating. Notwithstanding the odds, he felt that he was forever disgraced by permit ing the two men to defeat him so easily. He was afraid to face his sweetheart, thinking that she would chaff him about the fight, so he turned his face sadly away from his employer's home and left the girl he loved without saving even farewell to her. He had no money and he started to tramp through the country in search of work in some retired place where he could forget the joys and sorrows of his Perry county career. He stopped at a farm house and heard the owner talking about a couple of mysterious fives in that neighborhood a shore time before. He was discouraged and concected the idea of getting up a story of him being the incendiary, knowing that arson was a penitentiary crime. Assuming the name of Nicholas Parel, he accompanied the farmer to the home of the Justice of the Peace, where she made a fu'l "confession," which he had already prepared in his mind. He was sent to the Juniata county jail, where he awaited the next term of court. At his trial he entered a plea of guilty, and when the court sentenced him to ten years and six months at hard labor in the Western Penitentiary he was speechless. He realized too late that arson was a very serious crime. When the Sheriff led him back to jail he broke down completely, and he confessed the deceit he had practiced. He said he never thought for an instant that he would be imprisoned longer than six months, or he would have never made the confession of barn burning. His only motive, he said, was to get out of the way temporarily of his Perry county friends.

His friends in Perry county were called on and efforts made to have him pardoned, but before it could be done he died

Like One Come Back From Deat

Last week Miss Polly Lunsford of Gaddistowu, Union county, aged sixteen years, was taken suddenly ill, and Dr. Jones of this city was summoned to her bedside. He pronounced her illness due from cold and exposure, and told the mother of the young lady that there was tittle chance for her daughter's recovery. For three days the young lady grew worse, and on Tuesday morning she to all appearances died. The neighbors and friends of the family had gathered in, and the body of the dead girl was prepared for burial. Her arms were crossed over her breast and her eyelids closed. No color of life was visible in her cheeks. Her hands and face were cold, as if dead. Her pulse had ceased to beat. The coffin

HEAD FIRST INTO A WELL.

A Boy Climbs Out of One Forty-Five Feet Deep.

A lively fourteen-year-old lad named Jones, of the country town of Preston, Conn., had an experience the other day, the memory of which will abide with him. In the rear of his home, near the Shetucket river, is a very deep well, the curbing of which is of seamless s ctions of big drain tile smoothly dove-tailed together. In leaning over the well curb to recover his jacknife, which had fallen on the edge of the well, he lost his balance and, like a plummet, plunged head first down the dark cylinder. It is forty-five feet to the water and fourteen feet farther to the bottom.

The boy caught the well rope, broke it, and boy and rope went to the bottom in an instant. Then he came to the surface, and, being an expert swimmer, easily kept himself afloat. He called for help, but evidently his voice barely soared to the surface of the earth. He swam around the sides of his perpendicular prison a few times, and the desperate nature of his condition was apparent. But he was plucky. If he kept on swimming, he reasoned. he would soon be exhausted, and sink.

So he managed to fix his head and shoulders against one side of the well and his feet against the opposite one, and in that position rested several moments. He gazed upward. The tall shaft narrowed lika tunnel above, and at the top was capped by a round segment of blue sky, which seemed immensely far away. boy decided to make the effort to climb to the top of the well. The well tile is very wide, but the boy was barefoot, and his muscular toes and fingers stuck to the curb like the feelers of a leech. He began to crawl upward. Up he went slowly and without a slip, until he was within a foot or two of the shaft, and then sud denly his clutch slipped, and a second time he shot down the wall, going to the bot-

He came to the surface of the water quickly, and after a moment's rest again began his toilsome upward climb; and again, when within a foot of the top, he lost his hold and plunged again to its bottom. A third time he essayed the feat, and that time was successful. He pulled himself out of the shatt, stepped over the well curb, and fell breathless and exhausted on the ground. The flesh had been stripped from his fingers by the cut-ting grain of the drain tile, and his finger nails were worn to the quicks.

Stephen B. Elkins's Ninety-room Castle.

The ninety-room house that Stephen B Elkins is building near the town of Elkins, Randelph county, West Virginia, will be finished about June 1st, It is one of the finest country residences in the South, and is at the top of a high hillabout ten minutes walk from the railroad station. In front is an extensive lawn Around the building is a wall three feet higher than the first floor. At a distance the house, with its towers, does not look unlike a European castle. It is an extensive three-story structure with shingled sides and slate roof. On the first floor is a large, hall which will be lighted with six ornamental torcheres, which will cost about $200 apiece. parlor, dining room, and library, all about the same size, are on the same floor, and will be fitted up luxuriously. The children's room is also on the same floor, but is smaller than the other three. All the rooms are finished in hard wood. The fire places are massive. The walls of some of the rooms are ador ned with hand some paintings. On the ground floor are the sleeping apartments, and about half a dozen bathrooms. The bathtubs are of solid porcelain. The kitchen extension is a two-story building. The first floor contains the kitchen proper. and servants' dining room, and the floor above their sleeping and bathrooms.

WON ANOTHER MAN'S WIFE.

Bret Harte's Son Must Pay an Injured Husband $10,00 N. Y. World, May 27. A Sheriff's jury, over which Gen, Sickles presided, yesterday found a verquet of $10,000 against Francis K. Harte, a son of Bret Harte, in a suit intstituted by James J. Smith for the alienation of the affections of his wife, Eline B. Smith. The suit had been tried previously in the Supreme Court, where judgment had been in favor of the husband by default, the Court ordering damages to be assessed by the Sheriff's jury. He sued for $10,000, and the verdict was for the full amount

Mr. and Mrs. Smith were married in 1879, and lived together until 1888. They have two children, for the possession of whom Mr. Smith has been fighting legally ever since they were spirited away by his wife. Mr. Smith's application to confirm the report of a referee, who recommends that the children be given to him, was argued before Judge Lawrence yesterday. The dicision was reserved. These proceedings were referred to before the Sheriff's jury when it began its inquiry late in the afternoon.

Mr. Smith is a real-estate dealer, and several of his business friends testified how happily he and his wife lived together prior to the separation. The troub'e seems to have dated from the time the tamily went to board with Mrs. Detley, in Pittsfield, Mass-, where young Harte was a guest. Mrs. Detley testified that Harte's attentions to Mrs. Smith became so marked that it caused commentamong the guests and compelled her to speak to When she upbraided him for his conduct Harte told her that he was obliged to leave Blook Island because a married lady fell in love with him.

Laura S. Kerrison testified that Harte and Mrs. Smith live together at Rockland Lake. She was a nurse in the Smith family, and when Harte and Mrs. Smith went abroad togetl er in November, 1888, Mrs. Smith placed the children in her charge and told her not to tell any one where they were.

Mr. Smith said that he had remonstrated with his wife. He is a cripple, and says that he experienced mental anguish and passed sleepless nights. He did not learn of his wife's departure for Europe with Harte until long after they had gone. He made every effort to ascertain the where abouts of his children and, after spending about $500 for detectives, succeeded in locating them. Then he began the proceedings to get possession of them.

Emma Coburn, a witness for Harte, testified that Mrs. Smith had told her she was tired of living with her busband and would have to leave him. Harte did not put in an appearance. The jury was out but a few minutes.

A Dynamite Gun Weighing 23,500 Founds

Explodes Into a Thousand Pieces,
Perryulle, N. Y., May 28.—A large number of people from all over Central New York came here by the special and regular midday trains yesterday to witness the public experiment of the Doctor Justin dynamite gun. The cannon was fired at 3 P. M. and exploded into a thousand pieces. Nobody was hurt, but there were many parrow escapes. Huge masses of iron were thrown hundreds of feet. A piece of the cannon, measuring about four feet through, came flying through the air and landed within a few feet of a Syracuse Herald correspondent, who was watching the proceedings from behind a tree. Another large piece went in the opposite direction, tearing a large chunk from the counter of a temporary refreshment stand about five hundred feet away. The keeper of the stand was inside, but the missle grazed his head and scattered the contents of the stand. It is said the dynamite did not explode the guu, but the charge of powder. Among the visitors who arrived this afternoon were Lieutenant Commander Washburn Maynard and Lieutenant Davidson, of the Navy, and Commander Theodore F. Jewell, of the U. S. Naval Station, Newport. The cannon used weighed 23,500 pounds. The bore is twelve feet long and nine inches in diameter. The targent was a bluff about one-third of a mile from the gun. Dr. Justin and his assistants this morning loaded the six shells with dynamite. Two of the shells were charged with eighteen pounds each of dynamite and four had twenty-five pounds each. Young Wing, representing the Chinese Government, was here during the day.

Narrow Escape,
Our versatile constable, Mr. P. R. Miller, reports having had a very narrow escape from the electric fluid Tuesday. cart, when a bolt of lightning struck tree close to him. The shock seemed to most bending the poor brute double. But the horse being very spirited, soon recovered, and started off at lightning recovered, and started off at lightning speed, throwing Mr. Miller out of the cart and dragging him quite a distance, and finally getting away from him. When the constable got himself and senses together he found his injuries to consist of a few surface bruises and a considerable quantity of mother earth distributed over his anatomy.

Four Young Fiends. Hamilton, O., May 29.—The lady managers of the Western Female Seminary some time ago forbade tle students of Miami University to visit the girls of the seminary. On Tuesday evening three of the female teachers drove to Oxford to attend a Methodist Church social. When the social was over their $500 horse and carriage were missing. The horse was found yesterday morning. dead and fearfully mutilated. Four Miami University boys have confessed to President War field (who refuses to give their names that they did the work.

Opposed to Compulsory Education. Chicago, May 29.—A large meeting of Germin Lutherans was held in Gentral Music Hall, last night, to protest against the Compulsory Education law of this State. Speeches were made in English and German, in which suggestions of political action against those who favored this law were received with much favor A resolution was passed calling on Governor Fifer to include in his call for : special session of the State Legislature, to take action on World's Fair matters, the subject of the repeal of this law, also. The object of this was to eliminate this question from the next State political campaign.

Liquor Debate in the Senate.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—The Senate again discussed the original package bill yesterday, but failed to reach a vote. Blair asserted that the usually dignified body was in no condition to decide a temperance question. The constitutional points of the measure were argued at length.

Senator Blair, from the Committee on Education and Labor, reported favorably, with some amendments. The House bill for the appointment by the President of a ommission of five persons to be selected solely with reference to their personal fitness and capacity for an honest, im partial and thorough investigation of the liquor traffic.

Died on H.s Child's Grave.

Mercer, Cal., May 29.—The body of Frank M. Ostrander, ex-District Attorney of Mercer county, was found by his child's grave in the cemetery yesterday. He had quarreled with his wife on Mondayt and went to a drug store, where he purchased laudanum. He went to the cemetery yesterday, and after watering the flowers on his child's grave, lay down and committed suicide.
