How Parrots Are Brought by Steams from Mexico and Cuba,

One of the Ward line steamers arrived here last week with the largest number of parrots on board ever brought to this city, says, the New York Recorder. They were the property of a set of speculators who fairly "plunged" in parrots, and who counted on making a big thing out of the importation.

on making a big thing out of the importation.

At Tampico a shipment was made of 500 birds. Of course they had to be kept on deck, and matters promised to be lively. When Havans was reached 900 more parrots were hoisted on board. The clamor became awful. No parrot could be induced to sleep after 4 o'clock in the morning, and they held a succession of indignation meetings till night, introducing into their debates a few of the unparliamentary expressions induged in by the rudely awakened passengers.

dulged in by the fudery awarence passengers.

The birds were nearly all very young and not in full plumage. The natives of Mexico are green, with yellow heads, and the Cuban birds quite throw them in the shade with their white heads, red necks, and green and blue bodies. In spite of this grandeus the Havana sneculator only valued throw them in the shade with their white heads, red necks, and green and blue bodies. In spite of this grandeu the Havana speculator only valued his gaudy stock at a couple of dollars apiece, while the men from Mexico counted theirs at $4 or $5.

The poor little things were scarcely able to eat and the attendants of the Mexican birds spent all day and part of the night administering masses of crackers soaked in milk and water, opening their bills and fairly cramming the food down their throats. The others were less fortunate; their dinner was poked into the boxes, and they ate it or not, as they were able, and in consequence nearly half of them died. Several days from forty to fifty soft little green bodies were thrown overboard. By the time New York was reached they were sufficiently thinned out to make their survivors comfortable.

The boxes in which parrots are transported are rough wooden affairs six feet by two feet high and deep, the front and back covered with wire netting, and a long, rough perch inserted. In most cases the birds are packed in as tightly as animals in a cattle-car, and numbers of them never succeed in getting down to the food cups. For some mysterious reason no water is given them, except that which moistens the crackers, and it is really a case of survival of the fitest, only a very robust bird living through these days and nights of torture. Then it is a very bedragged and dilapidated, tail-featherless object that is presented to the inspector's gaze, and it takes fully a fortnight to restore the smoothness of plumage and vivacity of disposition which is the stock in trade of a pairrot.

Influence of Language on Character, I am quite certain that if te-day

I am quite certain that if to-day France and Germany were suddenly and miraculously to interchange tongues, the two nations would shortly undergo some unlooked-for alterations. I have known several people whose superficial characteristics were quite different according as they spoke French or Englis'i, although they were as fluent in the one as in the other. I know o' one woman who is common and illbred as an Englishwoman, but who, when she speaks French, which she knows well, is apparently well-mannered and rather attractive. Nor, as we reflect, does this seem altogether strange when we consider how much national character has to do with the evolution of language, and how impossible exact translation is. I have heard a man say that to read or speak French made him feel gay, and that the effect of fike uses of German was quieting.—Dr. Weir Mitchell, in Century.

OPIUM to 20 days. No pay till cured. $65 A MONTH for Shright Young Me Daylor Dr. J. Street Message Pr. Address Pr. Address Pr. Co., Palian, Pr. Co., Palian,

Did you hear of anybody sleeping himself fat? No! Well, it's a common enough thing, says a physician. Almost every young man who nas lived leisurely all his life until he is thirty will begin to show signs of fat at that age. The usual theory that obtains is that a man only grows fat on the food that he consumes, and technically that theory is all right. But it makes all the difference in the world how a man lives whether a given amount of food taken daily will have any increased effect on his avoirdupois. There are three simple rules that I try to enforce on men who come to me to be cured of fat. First, I say, "Eat less." Then, "Work more." And then, "Sleep less." I have often noticed a curious look in the eye of the patient who is told to sleep less. He inwardly jests at such advice, or he grumbles against it, and concludes that it may be disregarded. But let me tell you, sleep is the great fattener. It will produce flesh more rapidly than anything that I know of.

Small Feet Rare.

An interesting fact was brought out at the historical exhibition in Paris, where specimens of gloves were seen dating back to those of the Grecian Empire. The sizes of those gloves were proof indisputable that among the belies of ancient days, and even those of the middle ages, the tiny hands so common among the women of to-day were entirely unknown. A visit to the Hohenzollern Museum will convince any one that the small foot was equally rare in earlier times, and that, judging from their slippers, the feet of the famous Prussian queens and princesses would do credit to a dandy in the Grenadier Guards. Only the beautiful Queen Louise possessed delicate and pretty feet, the satin shoe belonging to her lamented and revered majesty seeming like those of a child beside the squaretoed No. 6 slippers of the Empress Augusta and the No. 5 wedding slippers belonging to the ex-Empress Fredericks.

A male swan is a cob, a female one a hen. The term "cygnet" is applicable to the bird during the first year of its life only, a "gray bird" being the proper term for it until the maturity of a white swan is attained.

The ordinary pill. Trouble when you take it, and trouble when you've got it down. Plenty of unpleasantness, but mighty little good.

With Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, there's no trouble. They're made to prevent it. They're the original little Liver Pills, tiny, sugarcoated, anti-bilious granules, purely vegetable, perfectly harmless, the smallest, easiest and best to take. They cleanse and regulate the whole system, in a natural and easy way—mildly and gently, but thoroughly and effectively. One little Pellet for a laxative—three for a cathartic. Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels are prevented, relieved and cured.

They're the cheapest pill you can buy, for they're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned.

Washington Was Wealthy.

George Washington was one of the richest men of his time in America. He attached to his will bearing date of July 9, 1799, a schedule of his property and placed the total valuation of the same at $530,000. His estate was undoubtedly worth more, and all of $600,000 and even more. The estimate of $530,000 was considered by Washington himself a very low one, for in the notes which accompanied the will and schedule he frequently refers to the "moderate value" and 'lowest price affixed" of the various pieces of property. The Ohio lands included in the estate increased immensely in value. creased immensely in value.
