CORRESPONDENCE.

THE COUNTY CAPITAL.
Moving next in order. The changes here are not many.

The best evidence of the contentment of our citizens is that our town has not had one public sale of household goods this spring.

It seems that from actual statistics that the would be metropolis of Somerset county is not "in it." Figures are stubborn things and facts are not to be gain said.

J. C. Lowry is improving his property on Main street, very much, and will have a comfortable and handsome home when it is completed.

The usual number of people from the various parts of the county are in town this week anticipating and preparing for that great day of business in this part of the county—April 1st.

Easter falls on the 17th of April this year.

The health of our community is exceptionally good this spring.

Mr. E. Kyle is here, ready to take hold of the Somerset house, April 1st.

Somerset would like to be on the electric string that ties Meyersdale and Salisbury together. Can't the editor of the Commercial extend the line? Air is at all times a good conductor of electricity.

Socially our town is on a stand still and our series of hops and parties seems to be ended.

We see the genial face of Major Stutz man once more on our streets.

Soon the traditional fable of the frog and the boy will be enacted.
March 29th, 1892.

Boyston.

Wm. Baker, section foreman on the Grassy Run branch, who had been housed up with the gripe for several weeks, is again able to be about.

R. F. Thomas purchased a fine mare from N. B. Keim.

C. J. Fike has secured the agency for the Adriance mowers and binders.

The busiest men are the train men on the Salisbury branch, hauling coal from the Elk Lick region.

John Hoover spent the past week in Somerset with friends.

Mr. Jerre Rihnhart spent several days last week at Paw Paw, W. Va.

The oil well drillers are again here and at work.

A. L. Maust, teacher of the Litchy school, had the school photographed.
The scholars are all anxious to see how they look in a frame.

Lloyd Fike says it would not pay to boil sugar if it were not for what a fellow could eat.
PLOWBOY.

State Line.

C. J. Folk traded horses with Joel Kincinger, for what is known as the Folk station.

Nate Keim and Miss Lydia Stevannus were united in wedlock, Sunday evening last, at the bride's home, by Rev. Geinert.

Another little run of sugar water, last week.

Farmers having apples for sale are now busy hauling them to the railroad.

Last week another car of apples was loaded for Gnagey & Hershberger, of Pittsburgh, and today C. J. Yoder will load a car to be sent to Indiana. Another man is also loading a car, which will be shipped to Columbus, O. That will make four carloads of apples shipped out of this locality this spring, and still there are some back.

L. J. Swartzentruber last week moved his cider mill from near Cumberland, Md., to Aurora, W. Va., on the Petersheim farm.

Last Saturday evening while D. J.
Swartzentruber was at home for supper and to do his feeding, some mischievous boys stopped at his sugar camp and put two lids on the furnace flue. Boys, that was not so slow, but Dan will be apt to watch the next time.

S. S. Folk says he has eleven traps out for skunks. He expects to make a fortune in that way and wants to buy a fast horse to look after the traps and haul the fur to market. Up to date Mr. Folk has captured nine of the fragrant creatures.

A New Enterprise.

We are informed there is a move on foot to organize an elevator and milling stock company, with a view of erecting at the railroad track, in West Salisbury, a large elevator and storage building to be fitted up with all the necessary modern improvements for speedily un-loading from cars, loading, drying, cleaning and storing large quantities of grain, flour, feed, salt and a general line of country produce.

We wish our enterprising citizens success in this proposed enterprise, hoping they may be able to speedily secure the necessary amount of stock to carry the venture to completion, believing as we do that no better paying stock could be secured in this section than this would prove to be; besides, being of vast interest and convenience to the business men, farmers and community at large.

The object of this company, if we understand correctly, is to conduct business on a general wholesale basis and be able to connect with the principal grain markets of the west, and through this they would be able to get special inducements in buying such grain and feed necessary to supply our wants which our home production is insufficient to fully supply.
The fact that in the past six months there has been shipped in and unloaded at West Salisbury, 25,000 bushels of corn and oats, from 1,000 to 1,200 barrels of flour, and a vast quantity of mill feed, potatoes, salt, etc., as the consumption in bread and feed is rapidly increasing annually, the advantages this enterprise would produce over the present disadvantageous mode of conducting business may readily be figured on.

A large amount of additional trade could be brought here, which under present circumstances is going elsewhere.
The farmer may ask what advantage or benefit all this would be to him. In answer we will say that an elevator in your midst would offer you the advantage of hauling your grain right from the thresher to the elevator and the opportunity to sell for full market price for ready cash; or, should you prefer, to store it and hold for future change of market value; besides, the great advantage of properly curing, drying, and cleaning your grain, thereby getting it in proper condition to command top market price.

A very large amount of the grain raised in this section is not properly cared for after harvest, but is hurriedly threshed, and while very damp, is dumped into the farmer's bin, and in a short time he too often finds his grain molded and spoiled and of no value for flouring—sometimes scarcely fit for feed —and then expects to sell it to the millers, who after purchasing and in their vain endeavor to make good flour from it, find to their sorrow that by placing such flour upon the market their custom has dropped off, and with ready cash gone in search of Minnesota flour, thereby sending into the pockets of the western farmers cash that should have gone into the pockets of the tillers of the soil nearer home.

The object is to combine with this elevator the Roller mill and milling business, at West Salisbury, which would give it the advantages of the well equipped Roller mill and milling business of H. A.
Reitz. Mr. Reitz will take a large interest in the new proposed enterprise.

The amount necessary to carry on this elevator and milling business successfully on the proposed plan would be a capital of $15,000. Of this amount about one-half would be necessary to procure the mill and erect the elevator and storage building with the necessary improvements. The balance would be used to buy stock and carry on the business.
Over half of the $15,000 is already secured, and the enterprise should have the earnest support of our business men and farmers in soliciting and securing the balance.
